DEMOCRATS PRESS CHARGES ON FUNDS; SAY BARNES'S SUBSCRIBERS BROKE LAW; COX SENDS EVIDENCE TO COMMITTEE

WHITE AND MARSH TESTIFY

Jamieson Admits Democrats Dodged Law That Forbids Seeking Funds of Them.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Wilbur Marsh, its treasurer, testified today before the Senatorial committee investigating campaign expenses that they brought no evidence from Governor Cox to sustain his charges of a Republican corruption fund, but that they believed that the charges were true.

Messrs. White and Marsh backed up their candidate's assertions and in addition Mr. Marsh provided photographic copies of subscription lists to a Republican book published by William Barnes of the Albany Evening Journal, which, he said, indicated a violation of the Federal statutes forbidding political subscriptions by corporations.

Mr. Marsh told Senator Kenyon, Chairman of the investigating committee, that the original lists were "either in the hands of Governor Cox or the Department of Justice." Asked why they had not been turned over at once to the Attorney General's office as a basis for possible prosecutions, he replied:

"We considered them an excellent campaign document. Besides, we have had them only about two weeks."

"Well," said Senator Kenyon, "if any of the signers of these lists have violated the law, they ought to be jailed, no matter whether they are Republicans or Democrats."

The photographed pledge to the Barnes Book bears this caption:

"The Albany Journal.
"Republicanism of 1920.
"To be published by the Albany Journal and distributed throughout the United States.
"A victorious 1920 for reconstruction."

The pledge reads:

"We, the undersigned, appreciate the necessity of restoring to power the Republican Party and approve the widespread distribution of militant Republican propaganda under the direction of the Hon. William Barnes. To this we herewith pledge our moral and financial support."

Among the names read into the record as subscribers to the Barnes publication were those of John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., J. Leonard Replogle, Peter Cooper Brice, Starr J. Murphy, H. T. Sinclair, W. Murray Crane, A. McNeill, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Clarence H. Mackay, Walter C. Teagle, L. F. Loree, John McE. Bowman, J. L. Livermore, H. H. Rogers, Chauncey M. Depew, Ogden H. Mills, Senator James W. Wadsworth, William Wrigley, Jr., and W. Averell Harriman.

On the witness stand tonight W. D. Jamieson, Democratic financial director, admitted that the National Committee had dodged the provision of the law forbidding the asking of contributions from Federal office holders. This was done by using special delivery letters to convey the request.

Democratic Treasury Empty.

Messrs. White and Marsh stated during their testimony that the Democratic coffers were practically empty, but both hoped for better conditions soon. They said that the party as yet had no Campaign Committee, no Finance Committee, and Mr. Marsh added that the heads of bureaus had not yet been appointed.

They agreed that there was nothing in the budget of $3,079,000, presented on Monday by Will Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, that was in itself "evidence of a desire to corrupt the American electorate." Mr. Marsh thought that the amount named was not excessive for a Republican campaign, but he said it would be far more than was necessary for a Democratic effort to elect a President.

The officials differed as to the amount needed for this year's campaign by their party. Mr. White made a "strictly personal estimate" of $2,000,000, but Mr. Marsh held that this was too high a figure, and that in the two months remaining before election as good a campaign as the 1916 effort could be conducted for $1,200,000. He said that he would "be very happy" with that amount at the disposal of the committee. The evidence confirmed previous assertions that the 1916 campaign cost the Democratic organization $2,300,000.

Mr. Marsh said that to his mind the Barnes subscription list indicated a plan to collect large campaign funds inde-

Upham Says Big Fund Scheme Revealed by Cox Was Proposed to Republican Committee but Vetoed

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, issued a statement tonight in which he declared that when Governor Cox "charged that the Republicans were seeking subscriptions of $5,000 to $10,000 and quoted a document marked 'Form 101' as his proof, he was speaking of a plan which was never adopted."

"Form 101" called for such a plan, but was "never ratified or put into use and was expressly vetoed," according to the statement, which added:

"The records in my office show conclusively that the statement of Governor Cox with reference to plans for increasing the limit of contributions is based upon a suggested plan which never was put into operation. The facts are simple and I have records to back them up. June 14 of this year Harry M. Blair of my office prepared a tentative campaign fund plan, which proposed abandonment of the plan previously adopted by the National Committee to try to keep the limit of contributions down to $1,000. This was in a document, Form 101, which Mr. Blair prepared and which provided that individual subscriptions of $5,000 and $10,000 be taken. Suggestions were made in this tentative plan for definite city quotas.

"Mr. Blair brought this plan to New York, where I was, and proposed it, but it was promptly vetoed by the committee. It not only was not adopted, but was hardly considered. The committee was determined to try out the $1,000 plan. So far as I have been able to learn, only one copy of this was ever sent out of my office and it was promptly returned."

The statement also said that on July 6 Mr. Upham issued a circular with reference to the campaign calling attention to the fact that no subscription of more than $1,000 was to be solicited and that contributions could not be accepted from corporations, as it was against the law.

MOORE TO PRESENT CASE FOR GOV. COX

Starts for Chicago Armed with New Material to Prove Fund Charges.

MAY TURN TO THE COURTS

Threatens to Call on Department of Justice if Republicans Withhold the Truth.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 1.—The statement that there would be no hesitancy in calling on the Department of Justice to act, if Republican workers who will be called before the Senate Sub-Committee investigating campaign contributions refused to reveal the truth in regard to their operations, was made tonight by Edmond H. Moore, former Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, who left on a late train for Chicago, to appear as personal and confidential representative of Governor Cox at the committee hearings.

Governor Cox, Mr. Moore, Senator Atlee Pomerene, a member of the Senate Sub-Committee, and other Democratic leaders spent the day in conference here at the Executive Mansion. They were smiling and were confident of their ground, they said, when the last of the conferences was ended.

Governor Cox made the brief statement that Mr. Moore was going to Chicago as his representative, and that it was his guess that the Senate Sub-Committee would be in session for some weeks. Mr. Moore then made his statement, intimating also that in his opinion Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee, and Fred W. Upham, Republican National Treasurer, would be recalled to the witness stand and put through a severe cross-examination in regard to the testimony which they have given.

Says Cox Has Been Conservative.

"I have been going over the matter in regard to campaign contributions with Governor Cox," said Mr. Moore. "I feel that he has been extremely conservative in his statement. If the Republican Party were indicted I would be willing to hazard my reputation as a lawyer on my ability to convict before any Republican jury, just as Senator Newberry was convicted in Michigan before a Republican jury.

"I am going in a confidential capacity for Governor Cox. I will be ready to go on the stand if the committee wishes to call me."

Mr. Moore had a great bundle of documentary evidence, which he never let get beyond the reach of his hands. He smiled broadly as he held it out. He added that there was other material in his head which was not included in the pile of documents.

"If the men called deny the existence of the proof and refuse to produce," said Mr. Moore, "I can get it for them, but I don't believe they will deny it when they are faced by the pain and penalty of perjury. If they do, I will have no hesitancy in calling upon the Department of Justice to act.

"We want the so-called district representatives and the paid State directors and the unpaid district directors and those under them called.

Suggests a Separate Fund.

"If Fred Upham, the Republican National Treasurer, is telling the truth," continued Mr. Moore, "then there is an entirely separate fund held by somebody. Who has got it? We don't know. We expect them to tell us. We don't suppose the collectors knocked it down."

The point that the cross-examination of witnesses, including Upham and

Shevlin Agents, 150 Strong, Swoop Down on 50 Drinking Places.

TRUCKS COLLECT 'EVIDENCE'

Total Contraband Found Estimated at 2,500 Gallons—Dealers Are Summoned.

In the first big drive in Manhattan on alleged violators of the prohibition law, 150 prohibition enforcement agents recruited from all parts of the State swooped down simultaneously upon 50 saloons and restaurants at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the district between Twenty-third Street and Fifty-first Street and between Sixth Avenue and Eighth Avenue, searched the places from top to bottom, seized about $75,000 worth of liquors, and summoned many owners and bartenders to appear this morning before the United States Attorney. Search warrants have been issued the 150 additional pieces, and these will be visited by the officers before the campaign is over.

Directed by John J. Quigley, chief assistant to James Shevlin, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Agent, the raids were conducted with the utmost precision. Virtually no resistance was offered at any of the places. Acting under instruction from Washington, preparations for the raids had been quietly going on for the last two weeks, agents having visited all the places to be raided, and obtained, they asserted, evidence of violations as set forth in the affidavits upon which the search warrants were issued. Mr. Quigley said the big drive was but the beginning of a carefully prepared campaign to rid the city of prohibition violaters.

Raids Continue at Night.

Prohibition agents were instructed by Mr. Quigley to continue the raids last night in different parts of the city, but the result of these raids, widely scattered over Manhattan, he said, would not be made known until this morning. Instructions were given to the truck drivers to call at certain saloons along given routes to pick up any liquors that might be seized by the agents.

Coincident with the raids in Manhattan, Federal Judges Chatfield and Garvin and United States Attorney Ross in Brooklyn held a conference and formulated plans for a more rigid enforcement of the prohibition law. It was decided that hereafter heavy penalties should be imposed upon violators of the law.

Despite the raid it was reported that liquors could be bought in nearly every section of the city in the afternoon and last night, and that even in the raided district there were wet spots.

Returns were in Mr. Quigley's office by 4 o'clock from virtually all of the fifty saloons raided. In a few of the places, it was said, no evidence of violations were found, and no subpoenas were issued. Summonses were issued in thirty-four places, according to report to Mr. Quigley's office. He estimated that a total of 2,500 gallons of liquors were seized.

Four five-ton trucks were used in collecting confiscated liquors. It was taken to the Knickerbocker Warehouse.

Agents Kept in Dark.

When evidence sufficient to obtain search warrants had been obtained by agents detailed for this work, Assistant Chief Prohibition Agent Quigley brought in a large number of agents from Albany, Syracuse, Buffalo and other points in this State. They had no ink-

Newark Policemen Barred From Attending State Benevolent Association Session

Following up his action of several weeks ago in refusing to allow Newark firemen to attend the St. Louis Convention of the Fire Fighters' Union, William J. Brennan, Director of Public Safety, of Newark, yesterday barred Newark policemen from attending the two-day convention of the New Jersey Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which opened at Clifton yesterday.

"I believe the citizens of Newark are well able to look after legislation affecting the Fire and Police Departments and that it is not necessary for these public servants to have State associations to do it," Mr. Brennan told a delegation.

Director Brennan's attitude is the direct result of the forcing through the last Legislature by a policemen's lobby of a pension bill that puts an extra burden of $500,000 on the taxpayers. Brennan blocked formation of a policemen's union nearly three years ago.

Among the policemen who were ordered to remain on duty today and to stay away from the police convention were Harry Hammond, State President of the association, and John J. Dwyer, President of the Newark association. Several delegates were also compelled to remain at home.

Edward Davey of Kearny was elected President and Mortimer Cullity of Jersey City Vice President of the association at the opening session of its annual convention at Masonic Hall, Clifton. More than 200 delegates, from fifty-two locals throughout the State, attended the convention. The election followed a business session at the hall.

Discussion for a time was centred on the action of Commissioner Brennan in refusing to allow the Newark policemen to attend.

PREMIER MAIL PILOT DIES IN FLAMING FALL

Lieut. Miller's Mechanic Also Killed in All-Metal Plane Crash at Morristown.

DUTY THEIR FINAL THOUGHT

Aviators Dropped Letter Bags to Safety as Plane Became a Blazing Meteor.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 1.—Lieutenant Max Miller, premier pilot of the United States Air Mail Service and the first aviator to carry mail in this country on a regular flying schedule, crashed to his death here today in one of the new all-metal monoplanes after six years of flying without a serious accident. His mechanician, Gustav Rierson, also was killed.

Apparently seeing that he would be unable to bring his blazing plane out of its dangerous nose dive safely, Miller evidently had ordered his mechanician to release the stays that held the nine bags of registered mail so that the mail service might not suffer loss by their destruction.

Men who saw the plane plunge said they noticed the bags leave the fuselage one by one, as if the men in the craft were hurling them out. Some of the bags popped open as they struck the ground, and letters flew up in clouds, but only one bag of registered letters was destroyed. Most of the letters from the broken sacks were recovered.

Flying on the regular schedule from New York to Chicago, a leg of the Air Mail Service in which Miller himself was the pioneer flier and the pathfinder, the big metal monoplane hummed over Morristown shortly before 8 o'clock this morning on the first stages of a ten-hour hop from Newark to Chicago. So many planes have flown over Morristown since the route was established two years ago that the powerful metal ship would have attracted no attention had not its motor been backfiring with an ominous thundering noise. The craft seemed to be gradually losing altitude.

Plane Becomes Flaming Meteor.

As the craft flew slowly over the estate of R. H. Thomas, ex-president of the New York Stock Exchange, a little south of town, employes there saw it head down to an altitude of about 1,000 feet, the thunder of backfire still continuing at irregular intervals. Suddenly the plane tilted forward and shot toward the earth with flames streaming behind it. Seeing the first of the mail bags leaving the plane the witnesses thought the aviators had jumped, but then they saw five other objects fly from the plane as if the pilots were hurling them out.

Barely missing a line of heavy trees, the plane crashed into a field and the gasoline tanks exploded with a report that was heard more than a mile away. Blazing gasoline splashed into an area of fifty feet around the smashed plane, setting fire to some of the letters from the broken bags which came to the ground a few seconds after the aircraft had struck. A charred bag remained in the crushed fuselage, with most of the registered letters destroyed.

When the few men who had witnessed the accident at close range reached the spot the inflammable parts of the machine were still burning fiercely, and the bodies of the two men were buried so deep in the tangle of metal that they could not get them out. Officials of the Air Mail Service who were called from Heller Field, Newark, said they thought that Miller and his mechanician were burned to death before the plane struck the ground.

While firemen were still raking over the debris in attempts to identify the two men, officials arrived from the Newark field and quickly identified the plane and the two bodies. They also assisted in gathering up the scattered letters, many of which were from foreign countries and directed to towns in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Miller Was First Mail Pilot.

Lieutenant Miller was the first man chosen by the Post Office Department for the new Air Mail Service two years ago, and was the pathfinder of the route to Chicago. He flew for a long time on the Washington-New York route and then was withdrawn to undertake the pioneer work on the longer flight to Chicago. He had been an army flier and during the war was an instructor at Kelly Field, Texas, and other aviators' training camps.

Miller held many of the records of the Air Mail Service and was rated as its

"Vacations" and Outlaw Strike Expected to Close Entire Anthracite Field Today.

INSURGENTS SEEK CONTROL

Leave Mines While Union Scale Committee Is Accepting Majority Scale Award.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 1.—Despite the fact that the Scale Committee of the United Mine Workers of America, representing three anthracite districts, today agreed to accept the majority award of the Anthracite Wage Commission, 300 insurgents from 65 out of 120 unions of District No. 1 voted here today to remain on "vacation" until their demands as represented by the minority report are granted.

This "vacation," coupled with an outlaw strike which also began today, is expected by tomorrow to cause a general shutting down of the anthracite industry in defiance of the orders and advice of the national leaders of the United Mine Workers and the wishes of President Wilson.

Fifty-five collieries in district 1, 7 and 9 were in idleness today and more than 80,000 of the 175,000 men employed in the field failed to report.

Show Fear of Federal Laws.

The insurgents, who were led by Enoch Williams of Taylor, at their convention displayed a wholesome fear of Federal laws in refusing to talk strike, walkout, tieup, in fact anything but a "vacation." The motion to follow such a course came after a discussion lasting several hours. When the convention had talked itself out, a delegate arose and moved "that we take a vacation until the coal companies grant our demands."

On the call for a yea and nay vote not a voice was raised in protest.

Before the delegates left the hall Chairman Williams said:

"Like that glorious patriot in Ireland, I will take all that comes to me. I will go to jail, I will suffer in any way for this cause, but I am determined that we shall win." A like sentiment was expressed by Rinaldo Cappilini, who has led the strike of 10,000 men in the Pittston section for the last six weeks.

Williams asserted he had been reliably informed that the majority award of the Anthracite Wage Commission provided an increase of 27 per cent. for the day men when the report was filed with President Wilson.

"What has become of this other 10 per cent.?" he asked. "I admit I do not know. You men may answer that for yourselves."

He declared that not a pound of coal would be mined until the contractor system was abolished and the men of the anthracite fields received the increase granted bituminous workers.

In opening the convention Williams referred to the telegram sent to President Wilson and read the President's answer. Delegate Moran argued that the commission's report left a loophole through which an appeal could be taken.

A delegate from Local 901 started the ball rolling for a "vacation" when he said:

"Let's go home, brothers, and tell our friends to take a 'vacation.' It was our understanding last Saturday that we would take a 'vacation' if our demands were not granted."

National Leaders Attacked.

Delegate Garfield Lewis, one of the signers of the resolution sent to President Wilson, attacked the officers of District 1. He contended that the national and district leaders were not "fit" to lead the miners.

Cappilini said that President Wilson had plainly answered them. "The miners of District 1 should all lay down their tools," he exclaimed. "Let's go out."

George Evans of Olyphant warned the convention that the miners could not get anywhere with a strike. He was informed that a strike was not being talked of. Evans insisted that the only organization with power to act was the United Mine Workers of America and that the union had pledged its honor to abide by the award of the Wage Commission.

The action of the insurgents not only threatens a complete tie-up of the anthracite field but opens a fight between the insurgents and the union administration forces in which leadership is at stake.

Union leaders maintain that the insurgents have no power to declare a walkout. But the latter have usurped that power. Insurgent leaders claim proper

B.R.T. MEN REJECT OFFER, MAKE NEW ONE; VIOLENCE GROWS AS SERVICE IMPROVES; LEADER THREATENS EXTENSION OF STRIKE

Garrison Blames B. R. T. "Bolshevist Element"; Says He Is Satisfied With Service Improvement

Receiver Lindley M. Garrison of the B. R. T. yesterday said the service was improving rapidly and that he was satisfied with the developments in the strike so far.

"The public realizes," he said, "that this is not a case of oppression, or unfair treatment of men, but a case of wild-eyed agitators running amuck.

"The company had acted in good faith and accorded the men good treatment, but in spite of that they have permitted the Bolshevist element to control the organization and sway their action. A few of the radical leaders worked on the feelings of the less responsible and less thoughtful men and were able to stampede the meetings which were attended by a minority of the employes. The others who quit did so because they did not want to subject themselves to the persecution and annoyance which would be inflicted on them if they remained at work, not to speak of the serious injuries which they might be exposed to if the violence of last year were repeated.

"Frankly, we do not know who are striking and who are not. For the present we are not attempting to draw the line between the men who are on strike and those who do not want to strike but are staying home on account of it. We are paying off all employes of the last fiscal week, which includes pay for a day and a half of the present week, while the strike has been on. The paymasters are not saying anything to the men about turning in their badges or losing their priority. We are hoping that we can bring about peaceful conditions without taking any radical action."

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the strikers, said that the issue of the strike was the insistence of Judge Mayer on retaining the power to reduce rates of pay after an impartial arbitration board had determined what was just.

"This means, basically," he said, "that they insist on the right of taking away money which is justly due their employes in order to use it for other purposes. This amounts to levying contributions on their employes for the support of the road. That would be fair if the workingman had the power to reduce the price of bread to fit his financial ability."

BOY KILLED BY AUTO AFTER STRIKE RIOT

TWO VICTIMS LIKELY TO DIE

One Sergeant Twice Charges Mob of 200 and Makes Arrests —Other Disorders Reported.

Brushes with the police throughout the day and several near riots yesterday indicated a growing resort to force by the strikers of the B. R. T., due to bitterness developed by the importation of new men to operate the lines. The temper of the public, too, began to turn and when strikers attempted a disturbance at one point citizens aided the police in dispersing them.

It was announced last night at the office of District Attorney Harry E. Lewis that the prosecutor was personally investigating the strike and that he had made a tour of the various car barns to get first hand information on the reports of violence. At Brooklyn Police Headquarters, Second Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Lahey assumed command of the "flying squadron" of strong-arm detectives mobilized there for trouble.

In an affray that occurred at the West End station of the B. R. T. at Coney Island late in the afternoon a boy lost his life when an automobile ran him down. An emergency call went into the Coney Island police station and Captain Byron H. Hackett sent a strong force to the station.

Police Disperse Crowds.

Arriving there, the policemen found a crowd of several hundred strikers gathered under the elevated structure and stoning passengers waiting for a train. The police charged the stoners with their night sticks. The strikers ran across Surf Avenue toward the Bowery and the beach. Several groups, however, climbed into automobiles and made off down Surf Avenue.

While the police chased the strikers toward the beach a crowd flocked out into Surf Avenue, attracted by the wild flight of the strikers' automobiles. Among those who ran into the street was an unidentified boy, about 13 years old. He stepped into the path of a machine driven by Alexander Corsori, a commission merchant with offices at 113 John Street, Manhattan. The boy died on the way to the Coney Island Hospital. Corsori was held in $2,500 bail on a technical charge of homicide.

Two victims of strike violence on Tuesday night have little chance for recovery, it was said at the Kings County Hospital. They are John W. Fairbanks, motorman of a Sea Beach line train, and Frederick Friedman, a passenger, whose skulls were fractured by stones thrown at the train near the New Utrecht Avenue station.

Infuriated by a concentration of 300 strike breakers in the B. R. T. barns at Third Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, several hundred strikers grouped themselves before the barns and began to taunt the men standing at the doors. The sight of a big truck which came out of the barn with Policeman John F. Fitzsimmons of the Fourth Avenue Station riding beside the chauffeur diverted their attention. It was quickly shouted around that the truck was being used to convey strike-breakers to the barns.

With shouts the strikers followed the slowly moving machine until it reached

Hundreds of Others on Way Here in Special Trains from West and New England.

ONE GROUP GOES ON STRIKE

Unfamiliarity with Safety Devices on Subways Puts Several Cars Out of Commission.

Three thousand men had arrived here last night to break the strike on the B. R. T., and hundreds of others were on their way to this city. This was the statement made to a TIMES reporter by a representative of Bergoff Brothers & Waddell, one of the agencies which has contracted to supply the B. R. T. with man power.

The men were recruited in factory towns in the Middle West, in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and New England industrial centres where unemployment has resulted from the shutting down of many mills. There were many veteran "professionals" in the ranks of the strikebreakers, and not a few boastfully declared that they had "broken" the Denver car strike, strikes in Chicago and Boston and Seattle.

According to operating heads of the B. R. T. few of the men supplied by the agencies were unfamiliar with controller or air brake or the handling of surface cars, but the men who got jobs as subway guards delayed the service many times during the day through unfamiliarity with the electric pneumatic door system employed on the B. R. T. Many cars has to be taken off the line because of the jamming of these doors and others were put out of business because there were no electricians to make needed repairs.

Arrive in Special Trains.

The strikebreakers have been arriving at the terminals in special trains. Some were transported to Brooklyn yesterday in motor trucks from the Grand Central Station; those who got in at the Pennsylvania Station found special B. R. T. subway trains awaiting them at Thirty-fourth Street. Thence they were carried to Brooklyn for distribution among the car barns.

Early in the day it was reported a group of strikebreakers went on strike themselves, declining the $7 a day offered. They held out for $8, it was learned, and in some cases they got it.

The subway express system was operated on a ten-minute schedule during the day and on an eight-minute schedule from 5 to 7 o'clock. But there was no rush crowd, the usual throng apparently having chosen other routes.

Most of the strikebreakers worked in the clothes in which they arrived. The nearest approach to a uniform was a khaki shirt and cap, but there were many straw-hatted guards and conductors in their ranks.

The new men were housed in steel cars at the Bay Parkway and West End stations. Others were supplied with cots in one of the Brooklyn surface car barns. These points took on something of the atmosphere of an army recruit camp during the days of the selective draft. Kitchens were rigged up and cooks were busily preparing meals for the strikebreakers at the company's expense.

Experienced on Surface Cars.

Only a small per cent. of the 500 or more men who appeared for work at the Ninth Avenue barns needed drilling in the operation of surface cars. Many were experienced motormen and conductors, but during the first few trips

SURFACE CARS OPERATED

Additional Vehicles Also Help Relieve Congestion and Better Service Is Promised Today.

MEN VIRTUALLY UNANIMOUS

Vote 4,000 to 4 Against Acceptance of Company's Offer, Which Is Called 'Ridiculous.'

Surface cars were put into operation in Brooklyn yesterday, service on the subway and elevated lines improved considerably, and the crowds suffered somewhat less hardship in getting to and from their homes. Meanwhile efforts to end the strike failed for the time at least, violence increased, and threats were made that the strike would spread.

The B. R. T. promised better service today, announcing that the 75 surface cars operated during the evening rush hour yesterday would be increased to 175. The army of strikebreakers had increased to 3,000, or more than one-fourth of the number of men on strike—a factor making against the peaceful settlement of the strike, because the first demand of the strike leaders in any settlement will be that all new men hired during the strike be discharged. Subway and elevated service increased by 25 per cent. yesterday over the preceding day.

Mayor Hylan will resume his efforts to end the strike by conciliation. The strikers, who rejected by an overwhelming vote yesterday the terms of Federal Judge Mayer for unlimited arbitration of working conditions, but for the reduction of wage awards by him if he thinks necessary, authorized their leaders to place a counter-proposal before the Mayor.

Strikers' Counter-Proposal.

The counter-proposal is that Judge Mayer shall offer a flat increase of wages and unlimited arbitration of working conditions. This will be discussed by the strike leaders with Mayor Hylan this morning, and it is expected that Mayor Hylan will confer with Judge Mayer in the afternoon.

Another proposal, which Mayor Hylan is expected to transmit to Judge Mayer, is that a disinterested board, with representatives of both sides on it, shall make a study of the financial condition of the company and determine as a fact how great an increase of pay is within the financial ability of the company. Receiver Garrison has offered the men a flat increase of 8 per cent., stating that this increase was the utmost which the financial ability of the company would permit. Judge Mayer has held firmly that he must have the power to reduce financial awards to meet the financial ability of the B. R. T., indicating that no award of more than 8 per cent. would be admissible, if Judge Mayer agreed with Receiver Garrison as to the company's finances.

No effort was made by either side to promote a conciliatory spirit. Patrick J. Shea, leader of the strikers, denounced the terms of Judge Mayer as "ridiculous." Receiver Garrison called the leading spirits of the strike "Bolsheviki."

Extension of Strike Predicted.

Reports that the employes of the Interborough and the New York Railways Company were contemplating a sympathetic strike were thoroughly discredited, but a further extension of the strike in Brooklyn unless a settlement was reached in twenty-four hours was predicted by James Sheridan, who presided at the meeting of strikers at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum last night.

"If Receiver Garrison does not meet your committee in the next twenty-four hours," he said, "I say we will have the motormen, the signalmen and the towermen with us."

Those three orders of employes belong to railroad brotherhoods and have so far voted against participation in the present strike and in favor of sticking to their contracts, which will not expire until the end of the year. The extensive use of strikebreakers by the B. R. T. is the argument now being used to induce them to change their position and refuse to take out trains on which members of the crews are strikebreakers.

Want Flat Offer from Mayor.

"The men authorized us to consider a flat increase in pay, if a new one is offered by Judge Mayer, with unlimited arbitration of working conditions," said Louis Fridiger, counsel for the strikers, "because that would do away with the delay and cost involved in arbitration. If the other side will agree to unlimited arbitration, which is to have a body of disinterested men decide what is right and to have both parties abide by the decision, the men will be ordered back to work in five minutes. In lieu of that we are ready to carry proposals for a flat increase to them to vote upon.

Receiver Garrison, with the sanction of Judge Mayer, has already offered an increase of eight per cent. over present wages, or ten per cent. over the wages which were paid before the strike of last year. Strike Leader Shea and Mr. Fridiger did not name any rate of increase which would be acceptable. According to reports at the strikers' meeting, the prospect for an immediate settlement of the strike would be good, if Judge Mayer would agree to raise the increase from eight per cent. to ten cent.

Mr. Fridiger said the counter-proposal had been talked over with Mayor Hylan at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Estimate and framed in part at the Mayor's suggestion, as a substitute for the terms of Judge Mayer, if the latter were not acceptable to the strikers.

Mayer's Terms Restate His Position.

Judge Mayer's terms, which contained no change of position on his part, but merely redefined his attitude in favor of unlimited arbitration on working conditions and limited arbitration on wages, were speedily rejected. In order to avoid any public show of opposition to these terms, the strike leaders read them, together with the recommendation of the Public Service Commission, for an immediate cessation of the strike, and made no direct comment on them. After Mr. Fridiger had read the letters of Mayor Hylan and Judge Mayer, a man on the floor asked:

"What is Mayor Hylan's opinion?"

"Don't take any expression of the Mayor or the members of the Board of Estimate as their opinion," Mr Fridiger replied. "They are public officials and their first duty is to the public."

There was general applause for this statement, indicating in advance of the vote that the meeting was against accepting the terms, which had already been disapproved by W. D. Mahon, International President of the Amalgamated Association. When the vote was put four men voted in favor of accepting the terms and the rest of the strikers, about 4,000, against.

One man then moved that the present terms be accepted, provided that Judge Mayer agreed to raise any award which should be made, provided the financial ability of the B. R. T. should be increased by an increased fare. This motion was in opposition to the stand of the union leaders, who have argued consistently that the wages of the men should be determined by the nature of their work and living costs, rather than by the B. R. T. finances. Only two voted in favor of this plan.

Motions Calmly Discussed.

Both motions were discussed calmly by speakers from the floor. The meeting was extremely quiet, compared to the hurly-burly mass meetings on Saturday night, which resulted in the strike. There was no demonstration against the four men who voted to accept the terms of Judge Mayer or against the two who voted for a compromise. After the vote had been taken, Mr. Shea said:

"The international officials took no part in discussing the matter prior to the vote. Now that the vote has been taken, I will say that, in my opinion, Judge Mayer's offer was so ridiculous that there was no need of the international officers aiding in one way or the other to accept or reject.

"Further than that, I don't want anybody here to have any hard feelings against the Mayor or the members of the Board of Estimate for sending this proposal to you. They are acting in a fair way and doing everything in their power to end the strike."

Mr. Shea then told of the proposal suggested at the conference with Mayor Hylan for a flat increase, coupled with the arbitration of working conditions. He asked for authority to lay this suggestion officially before Mayor Hylan and it was granted unanimously. The terms of Judge Mayer were rejected and the new negotiations authorized in the same fashion by the three other meetings.

"It is not true," said P. J. Shea, "that I have agreed to accept a 10 per cent. increase or any other increase. The proposal merely calls for an offer of a flat increase by Judge Mayer, and it will then be up to the vote of the men to say whether they will accept or not."

Strikers Meet Hylan Today.

The two strike leaders were expected at City Hall late in the afternoon, but they did not arrive. An appointment was made for them to meet with Mayor Hylan this morning. Judge Mayer has positively refused to see P. J. Shea or Louis Fridiger personally, and on Tuesday he declined to allow Acting Public Service Commissioner Barrett to repeat their views to him. He did, however, confer with the Mayor and Board of Estimate, after they had listened to Louis Fridiger, and it is expected that considerations of etiquette will not interfere with further conciliatory efforts to be attempted by Mayor Hylan.

It was reported that W. D. Mahon, the International President of the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Workers' Union, was on the way to this city to take charge of the strike situation, but this could not be confirmed.

"I wish he were," said Mr. Fridiger. "I had not heard that he was due here or that he was coming here at all."

The Public Service Commission will resume its efforts to effect a solution of the strike today. The hearing was adjourned yesterday at the request of Charles E. Buchner, associate counsel for the strikers.

Anxious for Free Discussion.

"The Commission is anxious that there should be a free discussion of opinion among the men employed upon the various roads," Acting Commissioner Barrett said. "We are anxious to find out the opinion of the entire organization. This Commission wants to assure the men that it will exert itself to the utmost to do anything that is in the interest of the men employed upon these roads.

"If there is any suggestion from them as to what service this Commission can be to them in order to settle this difficulty the Commission anxiously awaits and urgently requests them to present it.

"It is a source of great gratification to the Commission to note the great efforts being made by Mayor Hylan and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to use their good offices in cooperation with the Commission in bringing an end to the difficulties which now confront them, and we feel assured that mature deliberation will bring the result we all desire."

BALTIMORE'S NEWS BY AIR.

Evening Sun Buys Plane to Cover Events of Chesapeake Bay.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 1.—The Evening Sun, evening edition of The Baltimore Sun, has purchased an airplane for regular use by its reporters and photographers in covering "rush" stories developing at distant points.

As pilot the newspaper has engaged Lieutenant William D. Tipton, former flight commander of the 17th Squadron of the American air forces, who shot down four enemy planes and a balloon in France.

In its announcement to the public the newspaper says it is the first in the country to make such use of aerial transportation. The addition of an airplane to its facilities, it says, "marks a new era in the gathering of news."

The plane has been bought outright and will be used to reach points not readily accessible by ordinary routes, due to the geographical division of Maryland by Chesapeake Bay. It is expected especially to aid quick reports of happening on the Eastern Shore.

Following the plane's maiden flight today, late editions of the paper showed two photographs it obtained, one of the Timonium Fair, some distance from Baltimore, and another of a train wreck. The pictures were taken by Florenz H. Sheppard, nephew of the New York theatrical man.

CONGESTED CROWDS FIND SOME RELIEF

Improvement in B. R. T. Service and Increase in Number of Vehicles Eases Conditions.

MUCH CONFUSION REMAINS

Atlantic Avenue Still Is Storm Centre—Appeal for Help Made at Long Island City.

Improved service on subways and elevated lines, a partial resumption of surface car operation, and an increase in the number of automobile vehicles, brought further relief yesterday from the congestion due to the B. R. T. strike although hundreds of thousands of Brooklynites found the way to and from work to be devious and filled with delays. Automobiles from as far away as Albany, Troy and Philadelphia were put into service to transport the crowds.

Traffic again got the one-way signal at certain hours on the bridges, but trucks and taxies, clerks and laborers again went into the same old tangle at the bridge termini. At one point in Long Island City, the congestion became so great that business interests appealed to the Public Service Commission for relief.

Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, where the B. R. T., the Interborough and the Long Island come together, again was the most congested point in the metropolitan district. A strong squad of policemen was stationed there, and kept busy preventing accidents. Automobiles plowing through the crowds time and again just missed hitting an excited man or girl. To which was added the babble of ceaseless arguments over justlings or taxi overcharges.

So serious became the crush at the Jackson Avenue Interborough subway station, Long Island City, that commuters, police officials and business men joined in a protest which was forwarded to the Public Service Commission. At this station nearly 50,000 women and men from the Greenpoint and Williamsburg sections of Brooklyn, as well as from Long Island City, pased through the gates on their way to and from work. This was estimated as twice the usual traffic. The crowd was augmented by fifty buses that came over the bridges with cargoes of passengers.

Platforms Built for One Car.

The platforms at the Jackson Avenue station were originally built in connection with the Steinway tunnel and were designed only for trolley service. Only one full subway car can be accommodated at a time. The crowds have been so great since the strike that the small platforms are jammed almost immediately the doors of the cars are opened. In the crush women were thrust in and out of the cars in hasty fashion.

When the crush was at its height Police Captain McNally attempted to regulate the conditions by limiting the numbers of persons who were permitted to enter the subway. With the policemen at his command his efforts were only partly successful.

Seventy policemen, fifty on foot and twenty-five mounted men, in command of Inspector Thomas McDonald, of the First District, regulated traffic over the Williamsburg Bridge during the evening rush hours. Crowds watching the tangle of motor vehicles were dispersed by the police detailed to the bridge plaza and on Delancey Street. Despite the jam in the surrounding streets, there was neither disorder nor accident.

Traffic conditions over the Brooklyn Bridge were much improved by the time the rush hour congestion began to lessen last night. Although no surface cars were crossing the bridge, trains were being operated from time to time on the elevated lines. Reserve policemen were on duty and reported the situation well in hand.

2,000 City Buses Operated.

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, reported 2,000 city buses in operation yesterday. He said about 200,000 persons had found the buses the shortest way to and from work. Figures made available by Inspector James W. Hallock, in command of the Police Department's Marine Division, disclosed that 5,000 persons patronized the city's ferry boats. The John F. Hylan, the Patrol and the Correction plied all day between Whitehall Street, Manhattan, and Sixty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, for the convenience of persons residing in Coney Island, Bay Ridge and South Brooklyn.

Commenting on charges that exorbitant prices were still being exacted by the independent taxi and jitney operators, John F. Gilchrist, Commissioner of Licenses, said:

"Without going into details I wish to say my department has certain ways of treating the profiteer, and I think the average chauffeur or driver appreciates the wisdom of being fair in the present emergency. We have tried to keep the prices down to a minimum, but of course there have been cases of ten and twelve mile hauls where a chauffeur would get 25 cents from passengers that we could not very well stop."

HEDLEY DENOUNCES STRIKERS ON THE B. R. T.

President Declares Interborough's Defeat of Amalgamated Saved Transportation in Manhattan.

Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, denounced the strikers on the B. R. T. lines in a statement yesterday, and pointed out that if the Interborough had not fought and defeated the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes the strike would probably be crippling transportation in Manhattan today, as well as in Brooklyn.

He appealed for public support of the efforts of the B. R. T. to break the strike on the Brooklyn road. Mr. Hedley pointed that, in addition to the traffic congestion which has been experienced on the Interborough lines for months, the Interborough had carried 1,000,000 passengers in excess of normal traffic since the strike began, making it difficult to keep up schedules.

"The public of New York ought to appreciate," he said, "the efforts made in the past by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which has spent millions of dollars to keep the employes on its lines in such a position that they conduct their own business and say for themselves whether they shall work or strike.

"Our employes are not directed by any out-of-town people who have no interest directly in the welfare of people who live in New York. If the Interborough had not fought the Amalgamated and its followers the result would be that today the lawlessness on the lines of Brooklyn would be extended to every rapid transit line in the whole city.

"The present car fare is inadequate and it is obvious that no new capital can be attracted until arrangement is made whereby the passenger who receives the service pays at last a car fare which equals the cost of operation."

passengers found them unfamiliar with Brooklyn's streets and avenues. This also was true of the subways. The new guards in many cases did not know where the trains were going, and did not change the cars' side signs.

A four-car train service was maintained during the rush hour, each train accompanied by a guard of four policemen, one to each car, but no violence was reported. Earlier, and after the expected rush did not materialize, the trains were reduced to two cars, and these ran smoothly on a ten-minute schedule. Company officials were making an effort to restore to the service the cars put out of commission by strikers who abandoned them at the terminals, locked by the safety devices. It was reported yesterday that 175 cars had been rendered temporarily useless in this fashion.

Several cots and dining tables were set up in the Chambers Street subway station of the B. R. T. for the use of strikebreaking car crews.

Some of the strikebreakers who came from Chicago were veterans of the 1910 strike. They were at the Ninth Avenue barns in Brooklyn. One of these men, a professional, admitted he had been up and down the country breaking strikes, and had been shot at several times.

He Heard "Pickings Were Good."

"I've been pretty much all over the country," said another, who described himself as Ray Schoop, originally of Dallas, Iowa. "Sometimes we make a lot of money breaking car strikes, and some of the boys have cleaned up as conductors on street car lines during labor disturbances. I came here from Cleveland. I was on the list of one of the agencies there, and the man who sent for me told me there should be good pickings in Brooklyn, so I came here. I didn't sign up with one of the gangs that came in. I came alone, but I had my expenses paid. I started out as a mechanic, and can run all kinds of cars, electric, steam and gas. I know signals, too, and could run a subway train, I guess, without much trouble. I don't believe in unions, though I belonged to one once."

Huge pine tables, each seating ninety persons, were erected at the rear of the Ninth Avenue barns. The breakfast ration for the men there consisted of oatmeal, eggs and bacon, coffee, fresh butter and an abundance of bread. A room has been fitted up for the amusement of the strikebreakers and there they may play cards or checkers. A piano is provided.

Definite figures as to the number of strikebreakers at each of the barns was lacking last night, but several estimates were made by officials, who said they were unable to keep track of the men as new groups were arriving constantly.

At the subway terminal at Bay Parkway and West End it was reported that 750 strikebreakers had been on duty on the subway lines during the day; 650 made up the quota of the East New York barns, it was reported at the B. R. T. clubhouse. To the man from this barn who takes out the first car this morning the company will give a bonus of $200, it was announced.

About 700 strikebreakers worked the elevated system, according to one unofficial statement, while the complement of the Flatbush barns amounted to more than 400; there were 200 at the De Kalb Avenue and 200 at the Ridgewood stations.

B. R. T. Rush-Hour Service Increases 25 Per Cent; 75 Surface Cars Operate in Brooklyn at 5 P. M.

Rush-hour service on the B. R. T. subway and elevated lines showed marked improvement yesterday. Officials reported 125 trains running at 5 o'clock, an hour when 215 trains are ordinarily in service. This was a 25 per cent. gain over the day before, while the number of cars in commission also registered a 25 per cent. increase. Norm l midday service was maintained. A further gain today on the elevated and subways was predicted last night.

Hourly schedules were as follows:

In addition, the company for the first time in the strike's four days managed to put surface cars in service. Seventy-five cars, screened and guarded by police, were in operation at one time. The lines over which they ran were the Flatbush-Seventh Avenue, Park Slope, Flatbush Avenue and Gates Avenue. The first car started at 6:05 A. M. and at 7 P. M. the service was discontinued through fear of violence.

premier flier, taking his regular schedule for as long as fourteen months at a stretch without forced landing for any cause. He set all the records on the Chicago route, and a year ago flew the 181 miles from Bryan, Ohio, to Chicago in 80 minutes, or swifter than 120 miles an hour. He was carrying 450 pounds of mail.

In an accident similar to that in which he lost his life today, Lieutenant Miller saved his life and all his mail bags near Bellefonte, Pa., on April 20, 1919. Miller was flying in V-formation with two other planes at about 2,000 feet when his plane took fire. Throwing his machine quickly into a nose dive, Miller straightened out again about 200 feet from the ground and made a safe landing. He had only three other forced landings in his last eighteen months of flying. Rierson, who had been his mechanician for several months, came from Troy, Idaho.

Officials of the Air Mail Service said that the plane was one of the new Larsen all-metal monoplanes with which the Army Air Service and the Air Mail Service had been experimenting for several months. They said that the ship had been dubbed the "German Junker" by the fliers, and that one of the new ships had been intrusted to Lieutenant Miller because of his skill.

U. S. TROOPS ATTACK WEST VIRGINIA SNIPERS

Firing on Village of Chatteroy and Thacker Mine Is Resumed.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Firing from the wooded heights on the village of Chatteroy, in the coal strike country, near here, continued during most of the night, according to belated information received from there this afternoon. Attacks also were renewed on mine No. 2, of the Thacker Coal Company, two miles up Thacker Creek from the Norfolk & Western Railroad. Reinforcements of Federal soldiers were sent to both points.

Only eight soldiers were on duty in Chatteroy when the shooting from the mountainside began, but they returned the fire.

The shooting at mine No. 2 of the Thacker Coal Company became so heavy at 11 o'clock last night that a special train was made up at Sycamore Hollow and a large detachment of men hurried to the town. When they detrained, according to the report, they were sent into the woods, spreading out along the mountain in an effort to drive out the attacking party.

The situation in Pike County, across Tug River, in Kentucky, caused some apprehension here, because of the reported extension of the strike in mines along Pond Creek.

PLYMOUTH PAGEANT STARTS

English City Opens 11-Day Celebration of Pilgrim Tercentenary.

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 1.—The eleven-day celebration of the Mayflower tercentenary, which will reach its highest point in the early days of next week, began today with a pageant at the Drill Hall. The program includes a wide range of entertainments and historical, literary and religious ceremonies, one at the famous Mayflower Stone.

The American Embassy is represented by its chargé, J. Butler Wright. It has been intimated that Premier Lloyd George might accept this opportunity to deliver an important message to America, but he has not yet decided whether he will interrupt his holiday at Lucerne to attend.

Special entertainments have been arranged for the many Americans who are expected to arrive here in a day or two.

ASK BURRELL TO WITHDRAW.

Bay State Republican Committee Sends Note to State Treasurer.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The Republican State Committee sent a letter to State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell tonight, suggesting that he withdraw his candidacy for renomination at the primary next week. This action was decided on at a meeting held today.

Burrell has been much criticised for soliciting bank contracts for his advertising agency. His name is the only one printed on the ballot as a candidate for the nomination, but James Jackson and Frederick N. Kerr will run on stickers. Mr. Jackson became a candidate at the request of the Associated Republican Clubs of Massachusetts.

LEAGUE BUYS IN GENEVA.

Acquires a Hotel at a Price Said to be 5,500,000 Francs.

GENEVA, Sept. 1.—The National Hotel in Geneva has been sold to the League of Nations for 5,500,000 francs, according to The Tribune.

Rabbi Langner Arrives.

Rabbi Isak Langner, known among Jews of Europe as the "Stretiner Rabbi," arrived yesterday on the Holland-America liner Noordam from Galicia and was taken to Ellis Island by the immigration officials through a slight irregularity in his papers, but was soon released. His fortitude in fighting the persecution of his people during the war and his courageous endurance of his own hardship and cruel treatment have made him famous among Jews throughout Europe.

Election Officials May Strike.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Election officials have announced they will go on strike if their salaries are not increased. They are asking $10 a day and $15 for their services on election day. They have been receiving $5 a day and $10 on election day.

Fifth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. Bricks were grabbed up from in front of a building under construction there and a shower of them was hurled at Fitzsimmons. None found their mark and the policeman, nightstick out, climbed off the truck.

Alone and with the club as his only weapon, the policeman charged the 200 men and before they fled he had stretched four of them unconscious on the pavement. In addition, Fitzsimmons arrested Lawrence Railly, a striking conductor, of 1,031 Fortieth Street, whom he charged with disorderly conduct. He took the prisoner to the station house in the truck and ten minutes later he was called upon to charge another mob, this time at Fourth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. The policeman arrested Edward Norwood, conductor, of 138 Graham Avenue, and Edward Lewis, conductor, of 312 Fifty-fourth Street. He declared he recognized both men as having been in the crowd that threw the bricks.

Saved by "Flying Squadron."

In his second attempt to quell 200 singlehanded Fitzsimmons nearly went under. He was saved, however, by the arrival of Sergeant Patrick Sheridan's "Flying Squadron" from Brooklyn Police Headquarters.

Shortly after this disturbance policemen were dispatched to the Parkway Assembly Hall, Fourth Avenue and Fifty-first Street, on complaint that the union's headquarters was producing too much noise. When the reserves got there they found about 700 strikers out in front conducting a debate. They ordered the men to disperse. They declined to do so and the police charged, passersby joining in the onslaught on the strikers. No arrests were made.

A few blocks away, at Third Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, Police Sergeant Sheffler found 200 men assembled in front of the car barns. He tried to reason with them in an effort to persuade them to disperse. He was set upon and was being beaten when Sheridan's squad rescued him.

According to the police of the Brownsville Station, an attempt was made during the afternoon to cut the current-carrying cable of the Fulton Street elevated line at Rockaway Avenue. John Gutman of 126 Marion Street, a former B. R. T. conductor, was arrested on a felony charge in connection with the alleged attempt. Detectives O'Connor, Rief and Sauerberri of the Brownsville Station said the alarm that led to the discovery of the attempt had been given by a woman living near the Rockaway Avenue station. They said she had seen Gutman climb to the top of a delivery wagon and swing himself up under the station. The police charged that he was striving to cut the cable when they arrested him. A group of strikers was in the street, cheering Gutman's work. He denied the charge.

Strikebreakers Surprise Assailants.

A lone strikebreaker left the Bergen Street carbarns, Bergen Street near Kingston Avenue, late last night to walk a block for a meal. He was attacked by three strikers. Several others stood by to watch the result. They got a surprise. The strikebreaker made short work of his original assailants, landed a couple of punches on the spectators and continued on his way for food.

Salvatore Abruzzio, a conductor living at 201 Wilson Avenue, and Martin Schultz of 113 Schley Avenue, Glendale, Queens, were arrested at Evergreen and Gates Avenues by Policeman Byron of the Wilson Avenue Station. Byron charged that the men had been in a party of stone-throwers which had attacked the Gates Avenue car he was riding on.

Attempts to interfere with the operation of the seventy-five surface cars sent over the four trolley lines put in commission by the B. R. T. were confined almost entirely to verbal assaults. One of the heavily screened cars running on the Park Slope line, however, was volleyed with stones and milk bottles as it passed the wall of Prospect Park Southwest. The missiles bounced off the screens and no effort was made to round up the assailants.

Joseph Wagner, a striking conductor of 246 Henry Street, was fined $20 by Magistrate Steers in the New Jersey Avenue Court. He was charged with assaulting Edward Crawford of 582 West Eighty-second Street, a B. R. T. guard. The assault was alleged to have taken place in front of the East New York car barns late Tuesday night.

ling of what was going to happen, merely being told to report at headquarters at 9 o'clock in the morning. One of the men said they thought another reorganization was planned.

Promptly at 9 o'clock 150 agents were assembled in the Custom House and fifty search warrants, obtained from Commissioner Hitchcock on evidence of agents who had visited the different places in the last two weeks, were handed to fifty picked men. Two men were assigned to accompany each of these fifty men to the localities in which the respective raids were to be made.

Although all these precautions had been taken to prevent a leak, in several places visited the agents found only discolored, but highly odorous water, and broken bottles and glasses, indicating that advance word of the raid had been received.

The procedure followed by the agents was first to make an effort to buy a drink in the saloon and, whether failing or succeeding, to proceed with a search of the premises, the warrants giving them authority to search all the cellars, sitting rooms and all public store rooms in the same buildings as the cafes and liquor stores. In some places the agents were unable to buy a drink. The agents were instructed by Mr. Quigley to smash all doors and locks, where the doors were not opened voluntarily, even if the rooms were used for sleeping quarters. It was said that the agents met with no opposition of this kind and it was not necessary to break any doors or locks. In the following places liquors were found and summonses served:

The Opera Café, at 561 Seventh Avenue.

Joel Rinaldo's Café, 206 West Forty-first Street.

Martin Fitzgerald's café, Thirty-fourth Street and Seventh Avenue.

Dunnivan's Café, 490 Seventh Avenue.

Riley Brothers, 790 Eighth Avenue.

O'Harra's Café, 618 Eighth Avenue.

Thomas Nolan's place, 419 Eighth Avenue.

Hallinan's Café, Twenty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue.

Griffin & Carlin, Forty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue.

Murphy's Cafe, Forty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue.

A place at Thirty-first Street and Sixth Avenue, name not given.

A place at 706 Eighth Avenue, name of place not given.

The place at 238 Eighth Avenue.

The Castle Cave, 271 Seventh Avenue.

A place at 596 Eighth Avenue, no name given, containing fifteen gallons of sherry wine.

The Ionistic Café, 392 Sixth Avenue.

At Bergen's Hotel, 225 Seventh Avenue.

In the saloon at 637 Sixth Avenue, ten cases of whiskey were seized. A quantity of liquor was found behind the bar.

Reilly's Café, 501 Eighth Avenue.

Degnan's Café, Forty-second Street and Eighth Avenue.

McKenna & Ginnity, 496 Eighth Avenue.

According to the agents Volk's Hotel, Forty-second Street and Eighth Avenue, and the Cappion Café, 476 Sixth Avenue, and the Kenny Café, 467 Sixth Avenue, were raided, but no liquor found.

Three arrests for alleged violations of the prohibition law were made yesterday in Patchogue, L. I., on evidence obtained by three agents attired as soldiers. Henry Ridenhaur, Richard E. Curry and Henry Bernstein were charged with selling. It is said that the agents found forty-four pints and four quarts of whisky and five gallons of cologne spirits in Bernstein's place.

Thomas Brennan, a laborer of Mills Hotel No. 4, 160 Bleecker Street, was the victim yesterday of "instant home brew," which he made Tuesday night. When a friend he met at Third Avenue and Thirtieth Street refused to try the stuff Brennan drank the contents of the bottle. He fell to the sidewalk. By the time an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital arrived Brennan had revived and started home.

CALLS GOV. LOWDEN 'CROOK'

"Liar" Another Epithet Used by Mayor Thompson in Speeches.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Mayor William Hale Thompson, addressing two political meetings today in the Illinois Republican Primary campaign, declared Governor Frank O. Lowden was a "crook and a liar."

The Mayor said "he helped to elect Lowden four years ago," and added:

"But we won a hollow victory for we elected a crook for Governor—and his word is no good."

At another meeting the Mayor said Governor Lowden, in his campaign, promised the people home rule and "then sold them out. That means," he continued, "that Frank O. Lowden is a liar."

PRIORITY ORDER SUSPENDED

Has Caused Coal-Car Tieup at Atlantic Ports.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Owing to congestion of coal at Atlantic ports, the Interstate Commerce Commission today suspended for five days, beginning tomorrow, its recent order giving priority to coal shipments by water to New England States.

According to the order, coal held under priority in railroad cars at Atlantic ports has resulted in undue delay to rail equipment, as ships are not available for loading. By suspending the priority order the commission hopes to end the congestion and release many coal cars.

authority inasmuch as the "vacation" was voted by duly elected members of local unions in good standing.

The Department of Justice is likely to move swiftly. Federal agents were in the city today. They examined several persons, among them reporters, for information regarding the meeting. They visited among the delegates and it is more than likely that some attended the convention, for it was not secret. The agents are reporting to Washington. They refused to discuss what may happen. Union officials are pledged to stand with the Government in breaking the insurgent movement.

WAGE AWARD ACCEPTED BY MINERS' LEADERS

Enter Protest and Will Make New Demands—Meet Operators Today.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 1.—The Scale Committee of the United Mine Workers of America, representing the three hard coal districts, late today agreed to accept the award of the Anthracite Coal Commission under protest and follow this up with the presentation of new demands. The Miners' Committee will meet the representatives of the operators in Scranton tomorrow in pursuance to a call issued by the Secretary of Labor, W. B. Wilson, to write the terms of the award into a two-year contract.

Whether the operators are willing to sign the contract in the face of the widespread suspension of mining as a protest against the terms of the award was not known here tonight. The operators, it is known, are willing to sign if the miners are ready to carry out the award. The moment the operators place their signatures to the contract they obligate themselves to give the mine workers $18,000,000 in back pay, and they do not care to do this, it was stated here tonight, if the men repudiate their end of the bargain by staying away from the mines.

The Scale Committee today considered the majority and minority reports of the Wage Commission, and announced that it had decided upon "plans and autlined policies calculated to serve the best interests of the anthracite mine workers."

A statement to the operators, it was announced, would not be completed until tomorrow morning, and would not be made public until after it had been presented to the joint conference at Scranton. It was learned that the new demands will be along lines that will equalize the pay of the anthracite men with those in the bituminous field. The procedure, it was said, would be about the same as that used by the soft coal miners and operators.

Lewis Orders Strike in Alabama.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 1.—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, late today issued an order for a general strike in the bituminous coal field in Alabama. The order followed a report made by the Organization Committee of the International Executive Board declaring that the operators had failed to put into effect the awards made by President Wilson's wage commission last March.

EXPECTED TO FAVOR BRITISH COAL STRIKE

Miners' Federation Will Vote Today—Attitude of the Triple Alliance in Doubt.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—There is a general belief tonight that the executive meeting of the Miners' Federation tomorrow will recommend the issuance of strike notices expiring in all coal fields on a uniform date, probably about Sept. 18. It does not follow, however, that a strike will result.

Opinion is still conflicting whether the triple alliance will decide actively to support the miners or will devote its energies to attempts to mediation. The alliance today appointed a sub-committee to sit permanently, with power to cooperate with other members or convene a full meeting of the executive, and this is regarded as showing a general stiffening of their attitude.

No step whatever has been taken by any party to approach the Government.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Austin Chamberlain has issued a striking statement in a Birmingham publication on the general labor position in Great Britain.

"At the moment two great dangers confront us," writes the Chancellor of the Exchequer. "We have the widest suffrage and the most democratic constitution. Yet this is the moment chosen to start a Council of Action, to try to supersede Parliament and to override the electors by the methods of the Soviet and the anarchist.

"It is treason to democracy. That way lies anarchy, the tyranny of small minorities of violent men, the enslavement and ruin of industries and the orderly masses. The miners' wages have been raised, they are the best paid class in the country; yet here, too, we are threatened with a national strike which would paralyze industry, destroy trade and bring suffering and want into every household. Confronted with these dangers, the Government must take a firm stand. Minorities cannot be allowed to dominate the State, to plunder the community at large. Public opinion must support the Government. The community must help to protect itself. Public opinion is sooner or later the decisive factor in all such disputes. A national strike now would be a crime against the nation. Direct action is a crime against democracy."

Corned Beef was an Early Effort at Conservation

In figuring the cost of meat dishes you must add to our figures the cost of cooking.

IN the days before refrigeration was fairly well understood, what to do with meat that was hanging around too long was the butcher's chief problem. Some provident man discovered a way of "pickling" or "corning" meat that made it possible to keep it indefinitely. It was a good idea. It saved millions of dollars. The consumers understood why it was "corned" and consequently insisted on having it for less money than the fresh cuts. That's why, if you are lucky you can buy it for 40 cents a pound. 9% of it is waste. What you eat contains 49% water. The net food cost is 86c. per pound. At 190 Sheffield stores you can buy a pound of solid milk food for 52 cents.

This is no effort to cast aspersions on corned beef. "Corned beef and cabbage" has been an honored and economical dish in most American homes, but it costs more than milk.

FRELINGHUYSEN HITS 'SLUSH FUND' CHARGE

Secretary Denies Republican Senatorial Committee Will Spend $500,000.

PUTS TOTAL AT $200,000

Allegations of Cox Are "Beneath Contempt" and Only Politics, He Says.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Secretary of the Republican Senatorial Committee, denied yesterday that his committee was to have a fund of $500,000 and characterized as "beneath contempt" the charges of Governor Cox that the Republicans have a large "slush" fund. Senator Frelinghuysen said his committee had decided to ask for only $200,000 with which to cover the necessary expenses for the Senatorial campaign in thirty-two States.

"Both parties must spend large sums and every one knows it, and until such time as the Government sees fit to pay the expenses of election, the public must pay," said the Senator. Let us do away with hyprocrisy. No one is going to debauch the electorate. The charges made by Governor Cox of "slush" funds to buy the Presidency and bayonets to fight labor is only politics and beneath contempt.

"It is a cowardly retreat from the true issue of Article X. of the League of Nations which commits the boys of America to protect European boundaries and which Mr. Cox has swallowed in one gulp from President Wilson and which issue he fears.

"No such smoke screen as this will blind the American people. I wish we could have more than $200,000 for necessary expenses of the Senatorial Committee, every dollar of which would be honestly and properly spent."

Regarding the necessity of large campaign funds, Senator Frelinghuysen said:

"Postage, printing and publicity are very costly. It takes forty pages of typewritten matter to cover the six-year voting record of the most inactive Senator. It would take $50,000 in postage alone to send a circular to all voters in New York State, leaving out the cost of paper and printing. It would cost $150,000 to send a circular informing the voters of the record of one candidate.

"The direct election of the Senators by the people makes the campaign very costly if the voters are to be informed of the public record of their candidates. We are dealing with a system of publicity that has been in vogue year after year by the political parties.

"Nowadays every movement for popular reform has been supported by voluntary contributors who believe in the cause; otherwise the public could not be educated in regard to the question. The propaganda for woman suffrage, for prohibition and for other movements has necessitated the expenditure of large sums which are never questioned. It is the modern method of arousing the people to the support of public and moral issues.

"In view of the fact that the Government does not defray the expenses of the political parties in the campaign, it becomes imperative that both parties rely on those who believe in the party cause to subscribe to legitimate expenses. This is a big country and there will be nearly sixty million voters this year with woman suffrage—all of whom should be informed about their candidates.

"Both parties have spent and will spend considerable money to inform the people of the complete and official record of candidates in order that the voter may select intelligent representatives. Until some other method of publicity to inform the electorate is provided, the system of voluntary subscription must be continued. The defeat of any program of publicity will compel the voters to cast their ballots in ignorance of the candidates and be detrimental to the best interests of the country."

HARDING COMMENT ON COX'S CHARGES

Sees No "Signs of Alarm" Over Alleged Attempts to Buy the Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 1. — Senator Harding declined once more today to discuss at length Governor Cox's campaign fund charges.

"I haven't noticed any signs of alarm in the country that it is being bought for the Presidency," he said with a smile as he returned to work on his speeches in the "Summer kitchen" of his campaign headquarters, the home of his Secretary, George Christian, Jr.

While he was engaged on his Marion Labor Day address and his agricultural speech to be delivered at the Minnesota State Fair next Wednesday, the Senator's attention was called today to the proposed abrogation on Sept. 30 of certain commercial treaties that have been under consideration by the State Department and the United States Shipping Board. Discussing the debate over shipping bill preferentials Senator Harding said this afternoon:

"This bill was passed while I was engaged in my pre-convention campaign, and I am not entirely in favor of it. I voted for it and have never resisted favoring American bottoms. It is my deliberate judgment that the way to promote the American merchant marine is to take cognizance of the specific requirements of our shipping conditions which competing nations do not require and adjust ourselves to that situation. If the La Folette Seaman's act represents the conscience of America—and I believe it does—and that imposes unusual exactions on our shipping enterprises, American shipping, in order to expand and at the same time be just to the men, must meet these requirements squarely and make necessary adjustments. You might call it a subsidy. This Government should pay its shipping for carrying its mails, as other countries pay. About all that would have to be done would be for us to pay as subsidies what other nations are willing to pay us for carrying their mails."

A former Democratic member of the Shipping Board admitted to him, Senator Harding said, that the only way American shipping could be put on an equal footing with other nations would be by means of subsidies.

LODGE EXPLAINS STAND ON PEACE

Denies Democratic Platform Charge That He Was Inconsistent.

MISREPRESENTED, HE SAYS

Senator, in New Hampshire Speech, Declares Democrats Guilty of Falsehood.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 1.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, speaking here today before the Merrimack County Republican Club, accused the Democratic Party of "unlimited misrepresentation of well known facts" in its platfrom reference to alleged inconsistencies in his attitude on the making of peace with Germany.

"I am charged with inconsistency," said Senator Lodge, "because in an address I disapproved of deserting our allies and making a separate peace in the midst of the war, and yet was willing to make a separate peace with Germany two years and a half after that speech was made, and when all our allies had left us and had themselves made peace with Germany. I was right on both occasions and entirely consistent."

"I think I am safe in saying," he continued, "that never before has the declaration of the principles of a great national party carried an attack on any individual member of the opposite party. But the Democrats at San Francisco selected me by name for a subject of attack in an effort apparently to prove that I had been inconsistent.

"What they did exactly was this: They quoted from what they called an article of mine which they said appeared in the Forum magazine of December, 1918, in which I had denounced any attempt on the part of the United States to make a separate peace with Germany at that time. On the publication of this statement in the Democratic platform many of the leading newspapers of the country immediately pointed out that the article in question was not published in the Forum of December, 1918, but appeared in the Forum of June, 1918—that is, appeared while the war was at its height and before the great advance which resulted in victory.

"The falsehood was so flagrant that the Democrats admitted it themselves and changed the date of the statement several weeks later in the official publication of their platform to June, 1018. This, of course, destroyed the main point of the attack and got rid of the most obvious lie, but it still remained with a large burden of falsehood upon it, because in the article as published by the Forum in June, 1918, there was a note appended saying that this article was an address delivered by me before the Massachusetts Historical Society and was printed by them with the permission of the society. This note the author of the statement in the Democratic platform must have seen if he had looked at the copy of the Forum from which he professed to quote. As a matter of fact, I delivered the address printed in the Forum of June, 1918, on the 11th of October, 1917, and it was printed in the October number of the Proceedings of the Historical Society, only six months after our declaration of war and when the war was, of course, still raging.

"At that time voices were heard, not only here, but elsewhere, suggesting that the United States should make a separate peace. A separate peace, then would have meant the desertion of our allies in the midst of war. What I then said in October, 1917, was right, and I am glad that I said it, and I am glad that my address was reprinted, and I have not a word of what I said to change or withdraw.

"I know that I was absolutely right in voting for the Knox resolution. All the other countries had made peace with Germany. We had declined to ratify the Treaty of Versailles on account of the covenant of the League of Nations, except with reservation which would have protected the United States. But all our allies had ratified the treaty of peace in May, 1920, and it was then our duty, as it is our duty now, to put an end to the technical state of war between the United States and Germany. It is wholly technical, and it is not a little difficult to establish that even a technical state of war exists."

Hays, had not been very severe or searching up to this time was raised. This was admitted by Mr. Moore, but with the strong intimation by some of the advisers gathered about him that neither Hays nor Upham need expect to find his ordeal concluded at this juncture of the proceedings.

In this connection, after a short consultation with Governor Cox, this addition was made to Mr. Moore's statement:

"In regard to the statements that charges have been made and the charges denied, it should be said that the cross-examiners have not had the information from me on which to conduct the cross-examination of Hays and his associates."

Mr. Moore added that Senator James A. Reed, a member of the Senate subcommittee, who has been taking part in the questioning of the witnesses, would prove both his democracy and patriotism before the hearings were over, and that he was skilled as a lawyer and a most searching cross-examiner. From this it was inferred that Reed may be found in action soon, and that there will be plenty of fireworks to awaken the period of comparative calm which has so far marked the sessions of the committee.

In the package of documents which Mr. Moore guarded so closely was one letter from which he consented to have a quotation made. He said the letter would be introduced at the committee hearings, but he felt that "the country might want to have a good laugh in the morning," and he was willing to give a few lines of quotation now.

Quotes "Money Digger's" Letter.

The letter was on paper of the Republican National Committee, 111 West Washington Street, Chicago, and was signed by one of the divisional directors of the Republican campaign collection organizations. It was addressed to a worker in a Southern State, to whom Mr. Moore referred as "a money digger." It dealt with the reference which Senator Harding made in his speech of acceptance to the negro situation.

The first quotation from the letter read:

I have been wondering if you will get any reaction from the paragraph of Senator Harding's speech of acceptance which covers the enfranchisement of the negroes. We, of course, do not want to discuss this phase of the situation, but I would like to be advised if this stirs up any antagonistic sentiments in the Southern States.

This is a paragraph intended as a sop to the voters of the Central Western industrial States.

The letter then dealt with the collection of money in this connection and concluded with this paragraph:

"Keep an eye on Birmingham, because there is where the real money lies."

"Apparently," said Mr. Moore, with a laugh, "they wanted to make a drive for the negro vote in the Middle Western States, but were afraid that what Senator Harding had said would interfere with the collection of funds in the South. That's just one bit that is so amusing it's almost too good to keep."

Mr. Moore said the package of documents which would be made available to the committee was to be supplemented by information which he "carried in his head," and which had been supplied to him by Governor Cox during their conferences today. He added that he also had other information which had come to him and of which Governor Cox knew nothing until today.

Tells of New Evidence Daily.

Mr. Moore expressed absolute confidence in the case which had been built up. He said additional evidence of the efforts which Governor Cox charges is being made by the Republicans to buy the Presidency by the use of a campaign fund of not less than $15,000,000 was coming in every day.

There was the further inference that the production of this evidence in detail had been held back until several of the Republican leaders and workers had been called and permitted to testify without knowing too much about the ammunition which Governor Cox and other Democratic leaders had collected.

It is probable that Mr. Moore, as representative of the Governor, will ask that all of the Republican witnesses who have testified be recalled for cross-examination.

Governor Cox was asked if he expected to appear before the committee. He replied that Mr. Moore was acting as his personal representative, and that, as the party's nominee, he did not wish to discuss personally any phase of the committee's operations. He was satisfied to let Moore do the talking.

Mr. Moore was told that State chairmen of the Ways and Means Committee named by Chairman Hays to take charge of the collection of money were due to call on Senator Harding at Marion on Saturday and talk things over with him. It was suggested that it might be an excellent idea for the Senate sub-committee to go there and "lassoo the group."

"Oh, there are two branches of them," said Mr. Moore, with a laugh. "These are just the million-dollar shirt front men. We also want the paid directors and all the others called, as well."

Governor Cox will start tomorrow night on his swing into the West. His first address will be in Lansing, Mich. on Friday afternoon. He will be in Chicago on Sunday. He is expected to talk at length in regard to the campaign contributions.

pendent of the regular Republican machinery. He stated that there were several organizations engaged in similar work, and at the request of Senator Kenyon he mentioned the National Young Men's Republican League, the Southern Protective Tariff Association, the Committee of American Business Men, the American Defense Society and the Republican Publicity Association.

There was a deal of discussion about the Southern Protective Tariff Association. The letter submitted from this organization asked that $20,000 be collected in Texas alone and notations indicated that four Democrats and eight Republicans had already given $1,000 each to the Association.

Senator Kenyon wanted to know if Mr. Marsh thought that the Republicans had any reason to spend money in Southern States and the latter retorted that he had heard that the Republicans expected to carry North Carolina and "on very hopeful days" extended this hope to Texas.

Senator Kenyon asked if the League to Enforce Peace was not spending considerable money in advocacy of the League of Nations and whether the witness thought the Democratic National Committee ought to do that work instead.

"If you mean the organization of which William H. Taft is the head, I see no reason why we should undertake work that Mr. Taft is doing so well for us," replied the Democratic official.

White Says Cox Has Facts.

Chairman White was the first of the Democratic officials to appear before the committee.

"Do you know of any sinister financial or industrial interests which are seeking to make profiteering possible by contributing money or assistance to the Republican National Committee or the Republican Party?" he was asked by Senator Spencer, who presided in Senator Kenyon's temporary absence.

"I have, of course, read the Governor's speech at Pittsburgh," Mr. White replied, "and from long association with him believe he can prove anything he charges."

"Then so far as you know personally there is no such attempt by sinister interests?" Senator Spencer asked.

"No, I haven't any evidence myself."

Mr. White added:

"I talked with Governor Cox last Sunday for a few minutes. I asked him: 'Are you sure of your grounds?' He said he was and I told him: 'You are the boss and you run it.'"

Senator Kenyon read to the witness telegrams from Governor Cox to the committee and to Senator Reed, a member, dated Aug. 24 and 23, wherein he promised to furnish the investigators with information. The latter message told the Missouri Senator that the candidate would "get some matters into your hands soon." Mr. White said that he had brought nothing for Senator Reed. The latter explained that he had informed the candidate that the committee would welcome any information.

Pressed by his questioners, Mr. White said he was willing to abide by the judgment of Governor Cox as to what the material should be furnished the committee.

"Is it the idea, then, that we are to sit here and wait until Governor Cox is ready to come to us?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"I did not say that," replied Mr. White.

"But you have a speaking trip arranged for Governor Cox next week, and you would not wish us to interfere with that," argued Senator Kenyon. "In fact, we have no desire to interfere with it."

"The committee has jurisdiction over its own affairs," said Mr. White.

Reed and Kenyon Clash.

Mr. White, under questioning by Senators Spencer and Kenyon, said that the only example of a "sinister influence" backing the Republican Party which he knew of personally was the year book published by William Barnes.

Discussion of this publication disclosed that photographic copies of pledges of "moral and financial" support to the book had disappeared from the records, in which they were introduced on Monday. A warm clash between Senators Reed and Kenyon followed when Senator Reed insisted on an investigation of the disappearance of the papers.

"Do you understand that these pledges related only to the support for the book?" Senator Kenyon asked Mr. White.

"They could mean anything," the witness answered.

"Do you think they relate to support for the Republican campaign?"

"Yes, through Republican propaganda."

Senator Reed objected to the line of questioning and Senator Kenyon heatedly retorted that the Missouri Senator seemed to have "one line of examination for a Republican and wants to use another line for a Democrat."

"Do you think the Barnes book is a more sinister influence than the circulation through country newspapers of propaganda favoring the League of Nations, such as this story of 'Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge,' and having it paid for by a particular political party, and having the man who reads it not know that it is political propaganda?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"I don't apologize for wanting to circulate that story," Mr. White rejoined. "The editor of the paper is responsible if he uses it. He isn't paid to print it."

"The Barnes book shows right on its face who is behind it, but your 'Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge,' wouldn't show who paid for it. Which do you think is the more sinister?"

"I wouldn't know until I see the Barnes book."

Senator Kenyon inquired particularly about Prof. John O. Hall, head of the Scandinavian Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, who was shown in letters, read by Senator New yesterday, as negotiating with both the Democratic and Republican Committees for his services.

The inquiry showed that Mr. White had dismissed Professor Hall last night, following disclosure of the New letters.

Chairman White told the committee that he thought a $2,000,000 fund for National Committee purposes would provide for an adequate Presidential campaign this year. He was careful to impress upon the committee that this estimate was a personal opinion.

Mr. Spencer asked the Democratic Chairman to produce a list of all employes of the National Committee, and their salaries, which he promised to do. No speakers are receiving salaries, the witness said, and he does not plan to pay any. He added that he had authorized the expenditure of $100,000 by the Speakers' Bureau, so far.

"Is it true," Senator Spencer asked, "that you have stated you will not place any limit on campaign contributions?"

"I did say that. There is no limit on the size, within the discretion of the Treasurer and myself after considering both the size and the source."

Senator Kenyon reverted to the Barnes political publication and the Chairman and witness agreed that they were anxious to have the committee's judgment on whether the missing subscription list referred to anything except the book itself. The Iowa Senator asked Mr. White's judgment on what would happen if Barney Baruch wrote a book indorsed by Thomas Lamont and other New York Democrats, and immediately added that all the financiers were not in the Republican Party.

"Well, our receipts would indicate that," rejoined Mr. White.

"You are broke and your cupboard is bare, is that it?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"The cupboard is bare, but I hope the people will fill it by popular subscription," said Mr. White.

Senator Kenyon took up campaign advertising and publicity and drew the statement that William J. Cochran, Democratic publicity director, had planned a $400,000 billboard campaign, but the arrangement lapsed because funds were not available.

Mr. White explained again and again that, while he believed the 1916 fund of $2,500,000 was spent for legitimate purposes, he did not believe so large a fund was necessary this year and was planning a more economical campaign.

Marsh on Federal Office Holders.

Wilbur Marsh, Democratic Treasurer, denied before the committee that special efforts had been made to get contributions from Federal office holders.

"Never since I have been Treasurer has any letter asking money been sent sent to a Federal official, as such," he said.

"You mean with your sanction?" queried Chairman Kenyon.

"With or without!"

"Do you want to say that?"

"Yes."

Senator Kenyon then read a letter from W. D. Jamieson, asking for lists of names of possible campaign contributors, and specifying that any who held Federal posts should be so designated.

From Mr. Marsh's books for 1919 Mr. Kenyon picked out a contribution of $5 by William B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission, and asked the witness if he could supply a list of all Federal employes who had given to the Democratic funds. Mr. Marsh said he could not.

The testimony of the Treasurer was marked by rapid thrust and counter-thrust between him and Kenyon, the sallies keeping the committee and its audience in a state of amusement. The Committee Chairman recked about the possibility of small party organizations raising money in addition to the national funds.

Mr. Marsh said the Republican and Democratic financial plans were much alike, except that the former employed "commercial travelers" to get the funds while his party used a "mail order plan." He had no criticism to offer of the Republican plan as such.

Mr. Marsh thought the 1916 Democratic campaign "very intelligent, but a bit extravagant in some respects." He said that the estimate which Chairman White gave at the morning session of $2,000,000 for this year was too large. "I would be very well satisfied today if I knew we were going to have $1,200,000." Expenditures thus far were set at $80,000.

"What is your idea about this Republican budget?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"I don't think it is excessive for a Republican campaign. It would be very excessive for the Democrats. We have always got along without much money."

Subscribers to the Barnes Book.

The Barnes book here bobbed up again when Mr. Marsh produced new copies of the photographs of alleged subscription lists to the book, and a lively series of questions and answers followed.

Mr. Marsh, in introducing the list of pledges, suggested that some violated the law against corporations subscribing to political campaigns, as the signers were individuals on zehalf of corporations. He pointed to a subscription of $1,000 from the Delaware & Hudson Coal Company, by L. F. Loree, President.

He also called attention to the name of Christian Feigenspan, a New Jersey brewer, whom, he said, "the Alien Property Custodian uncovered as having passed the money to buy one or two of the leading newspapers of the United States" during the war.

From the pledge sheets Senator Reed read these contributions into the record:

John D. Rockefeller	$1,000
John D. Rockefeller, Jr.	1,500
J. Leonard Replogle	2,500
Jacob Ruppert	1,000
Peter Cooper Brice	300
Samuel H. Colt	550
John D. Rockefeller, Jr.	1,000
H. T. Sinclair	1,000
W. Murray Crane	1,000
A. Monell	1,000
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation	500
W. F. Jackson, Salisbury, Md.	500
W. R. Colt	1,000
R. W. Rice, Jr.	1,500
C. E. Danforth	1,000
Clarence H. Mackay	1,000
C. M. Warner	1,000
Walter C. Tagle	1,000
L. F. Loree	2,000
John M. Bowman	1,500
J. L. Livermore	1,000
Percival S. Hill	2,000
William H. Rogers	1,000
Chauncey M. Depew	1,000
Edwin J. Berwind	1,000
C. L. Anger, Paterson, N. J.	1,000
Dunlap Morrow	1,000
H. A. Van Zant	1,000

The twenty-eight subscriptions total $31,850.

Mr. Marsh admitted that all these men had sent their gifts to The Albany Journal but said that inasmuch as the book was to aid the Republican cause, the Republican National Committee was responsible for it.

Mr. Marsh—I think the documents speak for themselves.

Senator Kenyon—Can you show me where these documents indicate in any way that the National Committee is any way connected with Mr. Barnes's project?

Mr. Marsh—The pledges show.

Senator Kenyon—Show what?

Mr. Marsh—To be used for propaganda.

Senator Kenyon—By the publication of Mr. Barnes's book, "Republicanism of 1920," is that correct?

Mr. Marsh—Yes, but the propaganda is evidently—

Senator Kenyon—Who is Jacob Ruppert?

Mr. Marsh—I think he was the leading brewer of the United States.

Senator Edge—Is he the Jacob Ruppert whose name appeared on the Reception Committee to Governor Cox in New York last Saturday?

Mr. Marsh did not know.

Senator Reed declared that the subscribers had violated the Federal law and that he would "make an indictment against the individuals stick in any court of record." The fact that several men had subscribed to the Barnes book, Senator Reed said, was clearly a violation of the Federal law against associations contributing for political purposes, unless the amount of those contributions was made public.

Senator Kenyon—You hold that the Federal law has been violated?

Senator Reed—I do.

Senator Kenyon—Then this is a case for the Attorney General. If these men have violated the law they should be indicted and punished.

Senators Edge and Spencer—By all means they should be indicted, regardless of who they are.

Senator Reed—Mr. Marsh, where are the originals of these copies?

Mr. Marsh—Either in the hands of Governor Cox or of the Department of Justice.

Senator Kenyon — Do you know whether or not they are in the hands of the Department of Justice? Who did you give them to?

Mr. Marsh—To W. J. Cochran, our publicity man.

Senator Kenyon—Did you know that the law had been violated before you came here?

Why Marsh Held the Documents.

Mr. Marsh—I was so informed by a man I consider a first-rate lawyer.

Senator Kenyon—Did you submit the matter to the Department of Justice then—did you turn over these documents?

Mr. Marsh—I did not. They were very valuable to us.

Senator Kenyon—I understand their value as a campaign document. You preferred to keep and use them as ammunition rather than attempt to bring those who had violated the law to justice.

Senator Reed (interrupting)—They are still within the statute of limitations.

Senator Kenyon—What has all this to do with campaign funds?

Mr. Marsh—There is a very grave question as to who sponsors this Barnes book.

Senator Reed—I want Mr. Barnes called.

Senator Kenyon—He will be subpoenaed, here or somewhere else. We are as curious to find out about this book as you are.

Senator Kenyon and Mr. Marsh then got into a discussion as to the exact meaning of the pledge, Mr. Marsh contending that it was a pledge not to support the book but to "spread Republican propaganda."

Mr. Marsh told the committee that the special train which would be used to transport Governor Cox on his trip to the Pacific Coast would cost about $30,000. He said the exact figure would not be known until after returns had been received from the score or more of newspaper correspondents who would accompany the candidate and whose employers insisted upon paying their way. He said the trip of Franklin Roosevelt cost about $8,160.

Books submitted by Mr. Marsh included a list of contributors to the Democratic funds and contained thousands of names. The largest single subscription was for $20,000 from E. A. Rowe, a banker of Boston, Texas. Mr. Marsh explained that this amount was made up by several individuals with the understanding that it was to be repaid from funds collected from general subscriptions in the State.

The Republican investigators had Mr. Marsh identify other contributors, bringing out that Edward N. Hurley, former head of the Shipping Board, had given $5,000 and James Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, $2,000. A subscription of $1,000 by William G. McAdoo was mentioned.

Mr. Marsh said he had heard a lot about Thomas W. Lamont supporting the Democratic Party and if it was a fact he would like to be informed of it. He was not sure that Mr. Lamont owned The New York Evening Post.

"Well, that paper is supporting your party," remarked Senator Kenyon.

"It is supporting Governor Cox for President rather than the Democratic Party," said Mr. Marsh. He replied to another question that he would not refuse a contribution from Mr. Lamont nor consider it as "sinister."

Christensen's Publicity Plea.

Other witnesses before the committee today were Parley P. Christensen, Presidential nominee of the Farmer-Labor Party; Guy T. Scott, Treasurer of the Republican Congressional and Senatorial Campaign Committees, and W. D. Jamieson, the hold-over Financial Director of the Democratic Committee.

Mr. Christensen read a statement in which he charged that "both the Republican and Democratic parties are being financed by Wall Street," and that, whichever won, "the Government during the next four years will remain in the hands of the combined capitalists and manufacturers who have been masters of the Government during the past thirty years."

The candidate also charged that minor political groups and the press of the country had established an embargo against publication of utterances emanating from his party and "all that minority groups." He suggested that the Government buy newspaper space and allot it equally to all political parties.

In the course of his statement he said:

"As an instance of the dual political affiliations of the capitalist combination, I would direct your attention to the dominant financial institution of the United States, namely the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. This firm, through two of its members, is openly supporting both the Republican and Democratic tickets in this campaign. Its Republican agent is Henry P. Davison, a member of the firm, who on last Friday visited Senator Harding at Marion and announced his support of the Republican candidates. On the other hand, less than two weeks ago, The New York Evening Post, owned outright by another member of the Morgan firm, Thomas W. Lamont, announced its support of the Democratic ticket."

Dodge Law on Office Holders.

Evidence given at the night session by W. D. Jamieson, Democratic financial director, showed that National Committee requests for contributions from Federal office holders were sent under special delivery stamps for delivery at homes instead of offices to avoid conflicting with the law.

Jamieson, who was called to the stand primarily in connection with an interview published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, which quoted him as saying that $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 would be required to elect a Democratic President this year, also described the "Jamieson plan" of raising money.

Senator Kenyon questioned the witness about the expense of maintaining his collecting agency in Washington, and brought out that $155,000 was spent for furniture and equipment; that the payroll at its peak period averaged $18,000 a month, and that office rentals at their height were $3,600 monthly.

About 300,000 letters were sent to prospective contributors, he said. All letters to known Federal employes bore special delivery stamps.

"That was so they would go to their homes?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"Yes."

"You know that the law prohibited the solicitation of funds in Federal buildings?"

"Yes."

"You thought this plan would not violate the law?" "Yes."

"Did you have any advice to that effect?"

"I talked to one or two members of the Civil Service Commission."

"Did they tell you it would not?"

"No, they wouldn't commit themselves."

Senator Kenyon questioned Mr. Jamieson about the collection of funds by the Iowa Democratic Club, and referred to the letter from I. W. W. Drenner, Secretary to the Postmistress at Norway, Iowa. The Chairman brought out that Wilbur W. Marsh, National Treasurer, and E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, were directors of the club.

Reading from the letter Senator Kenyon quoted, "in order to comply with an old fashioned law I am sending this under a special delivery stamp." The letter said that the club had given $13,000 to the Democratic National Committee, while Jamieson said his figures showed but $5,000 received.

Mr. Marsh, sitting behind the witness, interrupted to say that the figures in the letter might be correct, and in the exchange with Senator Kenyon which followed declared that Mr. Jamieson was being "cowed by the great Senator from my State," and that the witness was "intimidated."

Senator Kenyon asked Mr. Marsh about the letter and the Treasurer replied that it was "a very bad letter, written by an inexperienced boy, but out of all the hundreds of thousands of letters we sent out you are only able to find two or three to which you might take exception.

Mr. Jamieson denied ever having said he planned to raise $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 for the Presidential campaign. Senator Kenyon read the alleged interview, which quoted the witness as saying he planned to get 1,000,000 contributors to give $5 to $10 each, planned to have 1,000 employes in his financial department, would send out 3,500,000 letters and would spend more money for 2-cent postage stamps alone than had been spent in any previous campaign.

Mr. Jamieson replied that he had never said anything about the amount of money he intended to raise, but had said that he wanted to get an army of contributors and had, in fact, obtained about 300,000.

Senator Kenyon asked if he expected to get $5 or $10 from each of the 300,000, but Mr. Jamieson reiterated that no amount had been fixed.

WHEN THE ICE is there on time, Mistress and Maid are happier.

The maid likes to know when to have the ice box ready—likes to have the ice there before she gets her orders in for the day. The housekeeper likes to know when she can count on the maid's being through with kitchen "chores" so she is free for other things. They both like the house to run like clockwork. That's why so many letters are received in praise of the regularity of Knickerbocker Service.

Knickerbocker Ice is delivered at so uniformly the same hour every day it is proverbial that you can "almost set your clock by the driver's arrival."

ROOSEVELT, BACK, FINDS WEST FOR COX

Only Three States Doubtful, Declares Democratic Nominee for Vice President.

SPEAKS TODAY IN MAINE

His Itinerary Allows Him Only Two Days' Rest Up to Election Day.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, returned yesterday to New York from a coast to coast campaign trip and left last night to begin a series of speeches in Maine. His itinerary, arranged yesterday, provides for only one breathing spell of a couple of days until election. For about three weeks he will be in New England and upper New York, following his speech on Labor Day in Brooklyn, and about Oct. 1 he will start on another trip to the West, his return route taking him as far South as New Mexico. Commenting on his Western trip, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"There is one outstanding impression from the trip that I stressed yesterday during my conference with Governor Cox at Columbus. That is the West, all through its length and bredth, wants to be shown. The greater majority of the voters are not willing to make a choice 'sight unseen,' but want to see and size up for themselves the candidates. There is absolutely no question that a widespread aversion, amounting almost to disgust, exists among Republicans of progressive tendencies toward the present reactionary leadership of that party.

"Frankly, they do not like Senator Harding and the Old Guard. There is a strong leaning toward Governor Cox, and I expect to see this sentiment crystallized by the Governor's swing during the next few weeks. The candidates themselves and the great issue involved will influence the votes of the West this Fall, for the voters out there aren't taking any one's word for things. They are doing their own thinking.

"They are doing this thinking in a rather astonishingly unbiased and non-political way, and there is every indication that their vote this Fall will be a repudiation of the present leaders, who foisted one of their own number on the Chicago convention as the party's candidate and now seek to re-establish in Washington a Government for the few and by the few, with a syndicated President.

"After going over the Western country very carefully I am positive that out of fourteen States in the West all but three hold out every hope for a Democratic victory. The other three, I am frank to say, are doubtful."

Mr. Roosevelt said he preferred not to name the three doubtful States. He conferred for some time with Senator Pat Harrison, temporarily in charge of the national headquarters. During the day Mr. Roosevelt received a letter from President Wilson acknowledging the receipt of his letter of resignation as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which reads as follows:

The White House.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 30, 1920.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Acknowledging receipt of your letter tendering your resignation as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, I take occasion upon the acceptance of the same to express appreciation of the able, efficient and patriotic service you have rendered your country in that responsible position during the seven and a half years of your incumbency, embracing the period of the World War, when the navy's contribution won world appreciation.

With congratulations upon the distinguished honor that has come to you, with cordial greetings and sincere good wishes, I am,

Faithfully yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Mr. Roosevelt's first address in the Maine campaign will be made at Kittery at noon today and will be followed by one in the afternoon at North Berwick, winding up at Old Orchard in the evening. The campaign tour just completed by the Vice Presidential nominee was a record breaker in several respects. Starting with his speech in Chicago on Aug. 11, twenty States were traversed in eighteen days, with an average of seven speeches a day for the entire time. In all he traveled about 8,000 miles. The most strenuous part of the trip was made through the State of Washington, where he made twenty-six speeches in two days.

It was anounced at Democratic Headquarters yesterday that Representative James V. McClintic of Oklahoma had been appointed assistant to Senator Pat Harrison, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau. He was formerly Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic Congressional Committee.

LABOR TO CAMPAIGN FOR WOMEN'S VOTES

Compers Committee Calls for Special Effort by Workers to Win Their Support.

PLAN AID IN REGISTERING

National Body Predicts a "Great Influence in Election"—Country-Wide Appeal on Labor Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Organized labor as represented by the American Federation of Labor is playing for the support of the newly enfranchised woman voter for those candidates whom the Federation will support in the coming election.

The National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee of the Federation, of which Samuel Gompers is Chairman, with Frank Morrison and James O'Connell as other members, today sent a circular letter to organized labor's political campaign committees throughout the country, directing them to make special effort to obtain support from the women of the country.

The letter concluded:

"We suggest that local speakers should make a special effort to present to the women of the country the fact that labor's political program is for the better home, the well-fed and happy child, the elimination of exploitation of child labor for profit."

This suggestion has also been followed out in a letter of instruction issued to the four-minute speakers affiliated with the speakers' bureau of labor's non-partisan campaign committee, who will make woman suffrage and the need for a full expression of the women's vote a feature of their Labor Day talks.

The urgency for instructing women voters to register has also been brought to the attention of labor campaign workers in a circular letter issued by the National Committee.

WHITE DROPS HALL; LIGHT ON BARUCH AID

Democratic Committee Breaks with Professor Who Dealt with Republicans.

The Democratic National Committee took quick action yesterday on two charges growing out of the testimony before the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, in charge of the National Committee in the absence of National Chairman George White, discharged Professor John O. Hall, connected with the Scandinavian bureau, who had offered his services to the Republican National Committee. William J. Cochran, publicity director of the Democratic National Committee, named Bernard M. Baruch as the "friend of the League of Nations" who was approached to finance the distribution to Western newspapers of "Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge" propaganda for the League of Nations. Mr. Cochran said Mr. Baruch had reached no decision on a proposal that he spend $9,000 to circulate the story.

Senator Harrison, whose regular post with the Democratic National Committee is manager of the Speakers' Bureau, emphatically denied that Professor Hall of Willamette University, Salem, Ore., had been connected with the Speakers' Bureau, as charged by Senator New of Indiana, head of the Speakers' Bureau of the Republican National Committee. He added:

"So far as the Speakers' Bureau is concerned," said Senator Harrison, "it has no knowledge of Professor Hall. I never met him in my life, nor did I ever communicate with him. I never saw him until this morning. The statement that any one connected with the Democratic Speakers' Bureau receives a salary of any kind is unqualifiedly false.

"In the first place, we have no money, in the second place, we do not care to pay them, and in the third place, we don't have to pay them, because of the large number of volunteer speakers. As soon as the matter was brought to my attention,

"Professor Hall was connected with the Scandinavian Bureau, which is a part of the Naturalized Citizenship Bureau of the National Committee. He was engaged by Hans Rieg, head of that department, at $125 a week, and had only completed his first week when I ordered his dismissal."

FOR GROESBECK IN MICHIGAN

He Leads Nine Republicans for Governor—Other Primaries.

DETROIT, Sept. 1.—Complete returns from twenty-eight counties tonight indicated the nomination of Attorney General Alex. J. Groesbeck as the Republican Gubernatorial candidate over eight other contenders, and the renomination of four of Michigan's Congressmen who met opposition in Tuesday's primary.

The 1,959 precincts reported out of a total of 2,453 gave Groesbeck a plurality of 17,536, with a total vote of 78,778. Milo D. Campbell, his nearest competitor, had 61,242, and Charles E. Mott was third with 49,173. The 494 missing precincts were about equally divided between rural and urban districts. It was believed they would not greatly change the relative positions of the candidates.

In the Congressional races the returns appeared conclusive in all but three districts. Congressmen Earl C. Michener of the Second District, Carl E. Mapes of the Fifth, Joseph W. Fordney of the Eighth and James C. McLaughlin of the Ninth were apparently renominated by substantial pluralities.

On the Democratic ticket, former Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris and Colonel Guy M. Wilson were unopposed for nomination for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, respectively. That fact accounted for an exceedingly light Democratic vote, which was not being tabulated in many precincts.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Returns from yesterday's State primary from 3,032 precincts of a total of 6,129 gave Samuel M. Shortridge, San Francisco attorney, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, a lead of more than 20,000 votes over William Kent, former Congressman, while A. J. Wallace, former Lieutenant Governor, was running more than 20,000 votes behind Kent.

Senator James D. Phelan was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 1.—Incomplete returns from yesterday's Democratic primary, from thirty-seven of the forty-eight counties, gave Senator E. D. Smith a wide lead for renomination over his three opponents.

Governor Cooper had no opposition for renomination.

P.P.C. Printing Facts

Black printing ink is made of a vehicle, a pigment, a toner, and a drier. The best vehicle is linseed-oil varnish, but in cheap ink other and cheaper varnishes are used. In the best black inks carbon black is used, but cheaper inks are made from lampblack and other substitutes.

A good printer uses good materials. A cheap printer must of necessity use cheap materials. How often are a few cents a pound saved on ink and an important piece of printed matter ruined!

HAYS DEPLORES BANDYING CHARGES

Tells Mid-West Party Conference Big Problems Are to be Decided in November.

WANTS VOTERS EDUCATED

Optimistic Reports of Republican Prospects Are Made by State Chairmen.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Republican National Committeemen, State Chairmen and other leaders attended the mid-Western conference at national headquarters today to discuss campaign prospects.

Reports made by committeemen and Chairmen were uniformly optimistic and a Republican victory of large size was generally forecast for November. South Dakota, Kentucky and Oklahoma in particular were listed as very satisfactory from a Republican viewpoint, and the election of the Republicans to the Senate to succeed Democrats was predicted in each.

Chairman Hays in an address to the conference urged utmost harmony of Republican action.

"It is a most serious moment in the country's history," he said. "Every one recognizes that upon the proper direction of the Government in the period just ahead depends the wellbeing of our people and the glory of our nation for decades to come.

"Republicans approach this responsibility with a seriousness commensurate with its magnitude. We have no time for backbitings, pullings and haulings. Charges and countercharges accomplish nothing. Serious problems confront the people. An honest effort to aid the electorate to think clearly and act intelligently on these problems is the real duty of a political committee. It is a national service.

"To the discharge of this duty we propose to direct our effort, and from this effort nothing can detract us. We invite the opposition to do likewise."

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Vice Chairman of the National Committee, reported that Secretary Colby had assured her that there was no chance of an upset of the ratification of the suffrage amendment.

The itinerary of Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Raymond Robins was announced. Their dates are as follows: Sept. 6, Kansas City, Mo.; 7, Neosho and Joplin, Mo.; 8, Vinita and Tulsa, Okla.; 9, Hutchinson and Wichita, Kan.; 11, Colorado Springs, Col.; 13, Provo and Salt Lake City.

DISCUSS WOOD PULP SUPPLY

Convention Told Reforestration of Adirondacks Will Cut Shortage.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Sept. 1.—Reforestration of the Adirondacks as a solution of the pulp wood problem was advocated today by George S. Witham, Sr., of Hudson Falls in an address before the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry, which began a three-day convention here. The object of the association is to further the application of chemistry and engineering to problems of the paper industry. The members will visit the large paper mills in Northern New York.

Mr. Witham said that by replanting vast regions in the Adirondacks which are unfitted to agricultural purposes, the National and State Governments could provide a "permanent, scientifically maintained forest, yielding successive crops of pulp wood, as well as timber for other purposes."

He stated that by such methods large quantities of pulp wood are being cut annually from forests in Europe which have been in existence for centuries.

Makes Liverpool to Quebec Record.

MONTREAL, Sept. 1.—The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France, which arrived at Quebec yesterday, broke the record for the Liverpool to Quebec trip, doing the journey in 5 days 23 hours.

Small Investors

There is no reason why the person with only a few hundred dollars to invest should be driven to mines or oils or any other dangerous investment field.

The man of large means has the whole field open to him and can take such chances as he pleases. If he is cautious, he will buy Guaranteed First Mortgages or Mortgage Certificates and, in the long run, be better off.

The small investor should choose only this field, for he cannot afford to lose.

CRAIG HOLDS UP SCHOOL PAYROLLS

Refuses Payment Unless Salaries Are Put on Basis in Effect Before Lockwood Act.

PRALL COMPLAINS TO HYLAN

Urges That New Buildings Be Built Even if the Tax Rate Is Thereby Increased.

Controller Charles L. Craig sent notice to the Board of Education yesterday that the Finance Department would not honor or pay the pay rolls of the board unless they were reduced to the salary basis which was in effect before the Lockwood-Donohue bill raising the pay of teachers was passed. Upon receiving the notice Anning S. Prall, President of the Board of Education, sent a letter to Mayor Hylan notifying him that the Controller's decision meant a holdup of the August payroll.

"Evidently," he wrote "the Finance Department, for some reason best known to it, intends to refuse payment to the supervising and teaching force and all other employes of the department of the increases granted them under the so-called Lockwood-Donohue bill. I therefore request you to direct the Corporation Counsel of this city to take necessary steps to compel the Controller to pay all salaries now legally due."

President Prall in an earlier letter to the Mayor announced that the budget for his department for 1921 would total $136,444,379.95. The amount includes the item for school sites and new buildings.

"When compared with other years the amount requested by this department for the year 1921 appears staggering," wrote President Prall, "but this is due to the lack of sufficient appropriations by former city administrations for sites, buildings and necessary expansion."

President Prall declared that the increase was also due to the "40-cent value of the 100-cent dollar." He added:

"During the past five years there have been practically no new schools constructed, and the taxpayers of this city are now called upon to provide new sites and school buildings in order to house thousands of children now on part time and double session classes. If we are to do our duty in the production of the right type of citizen for the future greatness and benefit of this city, we must unhesitatingly prosecute our housing program to the end. If the tax rate is thereby increased the percentage of increase will be small, and I am sure that the taxpayers and rentpayers whose children are deriving benefit in education will gladly pay the increase. The former city administrations have sidestepped, as it were, the proper expansion and upbuilding of this, the greatest school system the world has ever known.

"The penny wise and pound foolish public school policies have gone hand in hand together too long in this great city, having in daily average attendance more children than the combined daily average attendance of the cities of Chicago with 318,118, Philadelphia with 162,195, Boston with 102,464, Cleveland with 94,167 and Detroit with 84,922, a total of 701,866 as against approximately 800,000 for the same year in the city of New York."

Drys Name Woman for Senator.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 1.—Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger of Upland was nominated a candidate for United States Senator by the Indiana Prohibition Party, which concluded its annual convention here last night. She is the wife of the President of Taylor University. The Rev. C. M. Kroft of Indianapolis was selected as candidate for Governor. A platform was adopted declaring for a League of Nations and the establishment of world courts for the settlement of international disputes.

BOK MUSIC GIFTS $250,000.

Publisher's Book Tells of Aid to Philadelphia Orchestra.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Edward Bok was named today as the "unknown donor" who for four years has paid the deficit of the Philadelphia Orchestra amounting to a total of more than $250,000, and who is bound by a contract of his own drafting to do so for one more season if necessary. Mr. Bok is a member of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association.

The disclosure was made through advance proofs of "The Americanization of Edward Bok," an autobiography to be published by Charles Scribner's Sons on Sept. 20, the fiftieth anniversary of the arrival of Mr. Bok in this country from the Netherlands.

Only two men have shared the secret with Mr. Bok. They were the two other signatories to the agreement, President Alexander Van Rensselaer and one other member of the board.

The yearly deficit has amounted to an average of $50,000. Mr. Bok also has contributed more than $60,000 to the recent $1,000,000 endowment fund.

Marie Dressler at Winter Garden.

Several changes were made last night in the cast of "Cinderella on Broadway" at the Winter Garden, the most notable being the addition of Marie Dressler to the company. Assisted by John T. Murray and Ernest J. Young, she appeared as Ethel Barrymore in a burlesque of the three Barrymores in the first act, and in the second act took part in a burlesque of the League of Nations. She appeared also in a number of individual scenes.

The circus scene has been eliminated from the production in order to provide room for Miss Dressler.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Broadway Brevities of 1920," announced to open at the Lyric Theatre next week, will remain out of town for about three weeks longer.

William Faversham will make his announced production of Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper" this season, using a new dramatization made by Amelie Rives. Mr. Faversham, who will produce the play in association with Lee Shubert, will act the role of Miles Hendon. Rehearsals will begin next week.

Alexander Carr will be presented by William A. Brady in "The Dreamer," by Jules Eckert Goodman. The play will go into rehearsal shortly.

"The Famous Mrs. Fair" will end its engagement at Henry Miller's Theatre on Oct. 9 and a new play by Louis K. Anspacher, entitled "Stepping Stones," will be presented there by Mr. Miller and A. L. Erlanger on Thursday night, Oct. 14.

Sixteen girls from the London Palace have been brought to this country by Charles Dillingham to appear in the Fred Stone show, "Tip-Top." The piece will open in Philadelphia a week from Monday, and will come to the Globe Theatre three or four weeks later.

Two plays by Willard Mack are now in rehearsal. These are "The Girl of the Dance Hall," which A. H. Woods is presenting with a cast headed by Lowell Sherman, Belle Bennett, Robert McWade, Frank Monroe and Leo Donnelly, and "Her Man," which William H. Wellman will present with Mr. Mack and Bargara Castleton in the leading roles.

Jane Manner, dramatic reader, has brought Israel Zangwell's new play, "The Cockpit," to this country.

A new firm of producers, Orion and Colby, will presently offer a musical play entitled "The Temptations of Eve," an adaptation from the Hungarian. Desiree Lubovska, the dancer, will have a leading role.

MUSIC NOTES.

Goldman's Band will play on the Mall in Central Park tonight. In its program are works of Bach, Mendelssohn, Wagner, Massenet, Sullivan, Herbert, and Mr. Goldman's "Sagamore" march.

McEvitt's Concert Band, appearing in Central Park next Sunday afternoon, will play airs of Tchaikovsky, Rubinstein, Puccini, Massenet, Edward German, Rollinson, Tierney, Bruhn's and Turner.

The Seventh Regiment Band will give the last of the Central Park concerts on Monday afternoon, with a trumpet solo as one feature of a holiday program.

Labor Day concerts are announced by Park Commissioner Ryan in Battery Park, Seward, St. Gabriel's, Hamilton Fish, DeWitt Clinton, Hudson and Chelsea Parks.

SIX NEW PLAYS NEXT WEEK.

"Woman of Bronze," with Miss Anglin, and "Poldekin" in List.

Labor Day week, which is considered to mark the formal opening of the theatrical season, will bring six new plays and a revival to the Broadway theatres. The foremost events of the week will be the return of Margaret Anglin and George Arliss to the New York stage after absences of several seasons.

George M. Cohan will make his first individual offering as a producer in New York on Monday night, when "Genius and the Crowd," a comedy by John T. McIntyre and Francis Hill, will be presented at the Cohan Theatre. On the same night "Honeydew," a musical comedy with score by Efrem Zimbalist and book and lyrics by Joseph Herbert, will be produced at the Casino by Joe Weber, and Robert K. Whittier will begin a two weeks' engagement at the Manhattan Opera House in Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People."

Tuesday night will witness the appearance of Miss Anglin at the Frazee Theatre in "A Woman of Bronze," adapted from the French of Henri Kistemaeckers by Paul Kester. On Tuesday, also, Thomas Dixon's Lincolnian play, "A Man of the People," will be presented at the Bijou Theatre, with Howard Hall in the rôle of Lincoln.

"Little Old New York," a play of the New York of 1815, will be presented at the Plymouth Theatre on Wednesday night by Sam H. Harris. It is the work of Rida Johnson Young, and will have Genevieve Tobin and Ernest Glendinning in the leading rôles.

On Thursday George Arliss will be seen at the Park Theatre in "Poldekin," a comedy by Booth Tarkington, produced by George C. Tyler.

Cantor Leaves Ziegfeld Management

Eddie Cantor, it was learned yesterday, has left the management of Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., with whom he has been identified for a number of years. A disagreement regarding a phonograph contract was the cause of the severance of relations. Mr. Ziegfeld, it is said, claimed the actor's exclusive services. Cantor has accordingly left both the "Follies" and the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic.

The comedian, it is understood, will go on tour as the star of "What's in a Name?" seen here a few months ago. It is considered that he will later become a Shubert star. He will make his first appearance under the Shubert management at the Sunday night concert at the Winter Garden this week.

FRANCES STARR IN NEW ROLE

She Will Appear in Knoblock's Play, "One," at the Belasco Sept. 14.

Frances Starr, it was announced yesterday by David Belasco, will come to the Belasco Theatre on Tuesday night, Sept. 14, in Edward Knoblock's new play, "One." The play deals with psychic influences, and in it Miss Starr will have the opportunity to play a dual rôle. The supporting cast will include Randle Ayrton, Philip Desborough, Martin Lewis, Theodore Babcock, Marie R. Burke, Clara Sidney, Daisy Belmore and Lulu Ayrton.

Lionel Atwill also will become a Belasco star around the holidays in Sascha Guitry's comedy, "Deburau," the adaptation of which has been made by Granville Barker. This play, acted in Paris by the author, is to be produced presently in London, with Seymour Hicks in the leading rôle.

MOTION PICTURES. MOTION PICTURES.
A PERSONAL LETTER
To the People of New York:
(This being the first time in person concerning our work.)
The picture of WAY DOWN EAST, which we are presenting at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, beginning tomorrow evening, is just a simple, plain, old-fashioned story for plain, every-day human beings—" even as you and I." If you like this sort of tale, you are most welcome; if you do not, we hope you will come some other time, when we have a different story.
There are no particularly spectacular or massive effects—excepting, perhaps, in the end of the last part of the play embracing the storm scenes and those where the hero and heroine are caught in the ice mass during the river's great break-up—the play mostly depending upon what human interest it may contain.
Nevertheless, it has been most expensive. Over two months with a large working and engineering staff were spent in securing the storm scenes, in picturizing this elemental, resistless force in the great ice-break on the river, raging with dammed up waters.
But, if you are interested at all, we imagine it will be in the characters—comic and tragic—and we hope that we have translated some of the beauty and sweetness of American life; that we bring to you a little fragrance from the fresh fields and from the Spring blossoms; a little of the joy of sleighing parties and the music of jingling bells; a little of the glad spirit of merrymaking and innocent dancing and festivities—and we hope forgivable absurdities; a little of the story of love, not alone the vision of the ideal love of one man for one woman, but we do pray that we have been able to translate a little of that great love, the sweetest and best of all—Mother love.
It represents an actual expenditure of over eight hundred thousand dollars. If any one is interested enough, we will gladly furnish audit from Price, Waterhouse & Company—this being perhaps the most expensive entertainment since Caesar plated the Arena with silver for the citizens of ancient Rome. We know that million dollar productions have often been advertised. Our Press Department will doubtless claim this a two million dollar production, but we are telling you the simple truth.
Also, we realize that all this has nothing to do with the merits of the picture. In the dark the dice of fate are lifted, and when we throw it is for you, oh! masters of the game, to say whether we win or lose.
(Signed) D. W. Griffith

THE INSPIRATIONAL SPEAKER.

In the latest money-digging circular of the Republican Committee which Governor Cox has made public there is one sure mark of genuineness. The direction was to form a strong committee of "at least twelve men" in each city, get them to come to a "luncheon," and then turn loose on them "an inspirational speaker." This is the very latest thing in "scientific" begging methods. It is the pride of correspondence schools. Advertising campaigners must be trained in it if they are to be truly modern. Efficiency experts delight in "inspirational work." It is the final touch in the equipment of the young geniuses whom the business and commercial departments of the colleges are sending out to afflict this fair land.

Few can have escaped this new terror added to public luncheons. While the others are eating, the inspirational speaker is watching for his prey. At a given signal he rises to awaken and thrill them. He recites his little list of numbered formulas. He produces with confidence the phrases which he has been taught and the ingenious word-twistings which have been guaranteed to rouse, to charm and to persuade contributors—the right name, for them is, of course, "prospects." Surveying them as so much raw material under his plastic oratory, the inspirational speaker never falters or doubts. He has been drilled in a style which, he is convinced, cannot possibly fail. And it does not. It indubitably inspires. But what it inspires in most bosoms is a sense of dejection and woe and a resolve to shun, from that day forward, the plague of inspirational speakers.

MR. HOOVER ON REPUBLICANISM.

Mr. HERBERT C. HOOVER has a great store of reticence at all times. Since the Chicago Convention he has been even unusually taciturn. It gave him a good deal to think about. With the oracle at Marion he is understood to have had consultations that seem to have produced in him a misunderstanding or unsatisfactory understanding of Mr. HARDING'S mystic "understanding" and the League of Nations. But he finally reappeared in Wisconsin. He loves difficult tasks, and the re-election of Senator LENROOT in the teeth of Mr. LA FOLLETTE looks more than difficult enough.

Mr. HOOVER'S remarks at a Lenroot meeting are not without something of that cautious, conservative, katydid method of proclaiming the undisputed that marked some of his political utterances when he was a "receptive" candidate; yet he manages to say some things that will be far from relished by the master and the disciples of the Porch. The Republican Party "must be neither reactionary nor radical." "Radicalism is not satisfied with sane and gradual progress." "The test of any law must be the question of whether it is to the benefit of all the people." All this is gnomic, preserved political philosophy. When, however, Mr. HOOVER declares that the Republican Party "must pre-empt the field of progressiveness," he suggests an impossibility.

How is Mr. HARDING, foisted upon the Chicago Convention by reactionary Senators of the straitest standpat sect, a reversion to Republican atavism, a praiser of the past and a traveler on the old backward roads, to figure as the leader of progressiveness? How are progressive and independent voters, and the multitude of young men and women who will cast their first vote this year, to be attracted to a party ruled by the incorrigible opponents of progress? The Republican Party can't be both reactionary and progressive. That is what it is trying to be; or, rather, it is trying to get progressive and independent votes for reactionary principles and a reactionary candidate.

Mr. HOOVER politely inserts a goad into Mr. HARDING. In his travels through the West he found "extreme apathy over the national election," though the people are keenly interested in local and domestic questions. Then, he tries to stir up Mr. HARDING on the issue which he blinks, avoids, and circles with confused and confusing volubility:

> It will be impossible to say to what extent the League will be an issue until the leaders define their position more positively.

For the sake of urbanity Mr. HOOVER attributes want of positiveness to both Mr. HARDING and Mr. COX; but Mr. COX has clearly defined his position. Mr. HARDING modifies or muddles his about every day, according to the taste and fancy of distinguished visitors or instructions from his prompters and teachers. Mr. HOOVER'S observations must be discomforting to Republicans. How can a hunker be made to seem ardently progressive? How can the Republican League and anti-League wings be made to flap together?

INDEPENDENT MR. BORAH.

Senator HIRAM JOHNSON is still "looking down at the bay" sullenly or angrily, but Senator BORAH has ceased to be sedentary. He has left his porch and is speeding eastward. From Sept. 15 till Nov. 3 he will fill East and West with speeches in which he "will deal with the League of "Nations and the restoration of constitutional government." He is going to present his views "without regard to strict agreement with the "view of any leader," and he says that the campaign managers "are anxious to have him do it."

One may suspect that the campaign managers are anxious in another sense. It is a queer campaign speaker who emits his own opinions without any regard for those of the platform or the candidate. To be sure, Mr. HARDING'S opinions about the League of Nations and an "association of nations" are beautifully fluid and subject to daily revision, but to ask voters to support Mr. HARDING on the strength of Mr. BORAH'S individual opinions seems a rather ingenuous proceeding. It shows a noble, if necessary, tolerance. Let both sides be heard. Let Mr. TAFT and Mr. WICKERSHAM opine and interpret in one way, Mr. BORAH and Mr. JOHNSON in another. What are opinions but vain shadows? Power and office are the substance, and by hospitality to divers and even opposing comments, glosses, programs, by varying the bids for votes, can't the supreme aim be attained? Get together and get in! Power is the uttermost fact. To gain it any amount of variants and even fictions are justified.

THREATS OF AN ANTHRACITE STRIKE.

Three hundred delegates, representing 175,000 union coal miners, telegraphed an ultimatum to President WILSON. He was informed that the substitution of the minority report for the majority report of the Wage Commission appointed by him was the only means to promote peace in the anthracite region and an answer was demanded on or before Sept. 1, "otherwise all men will refrain from work." The President replied that, if it was intended as a threat, the miners could rest assured the challenge would be accepted, and that the people would find some means of dealing with the strike "until the real sentiment of "the anthracite mine workers can "find expression, and they are ready "to abide by the obligations they "have entered into." The officials of the United Mine Workers were excluded from the meeting at which the President was defied, and they declare that the proceedings are unrepresentative and without authority to bind the miners. On the other hand, the delegates repudiate the officials of the union, saying that they have survived their usefulness.

How can business be done in that manner? Indeed, how can organizations of men be held together if "all "the laws of honor upon which civilization rests" are flouted? It was reported yesterday that 30,000 men had struck, even while their representatives were meeting to put their signatures to a contract to which they were pledged. As the President said, "collective bargaining would soon "cease to exist in industrial affairs "if contracts solemnly entered into "can be set aside by either party "whenever it wills to do so."

That case is too plain to argue. The facts argue it better than any reasoning. The men direct from the mines met in convention to approve the President's proposal of arbitration, and passed a formal resolution obligating themselves. In due course the award followed — $85,000,000 increase and $18,000,000 retroactive. The men had wanted more, and their representative filed the minority report which the contract breakers want substituted. The representative on the Wage Commission himself promised that "the "majority report shall have the full "practical acceptance of the officers "of the United Mine Workers of "America, and we shall devote our"selves to its application as we obli"gated ourselves to do when we sub"mitted our case to the commission." Now the men themselves reject the official award because it was no better than they could have received by bargaining without a commission. There is a report that the Federation of Labor will repudiate the United Mine Workers if they repudiate their officers and their own contracts. There has been too much playing fast and loose with the public. It is time for labor to discipline itself if it wishes to escape discipline. Americans will not longer listen to anything said by or for men who avow that no threats of the law will deter them from conduct contrary to the general interest.

Neither will the public submit to having the burden of this coal award put on consumers a second time. The award which the President approves says it "offers no justification for "any advance in the retail prices of "coal, but, on the other hand, is con"sistent with a decline in prices." The explanation of this is that the price of coal was advanced $1 a ton in April—more than the award—in anticipation of it. There is no top to the "vicious spiral" of wages and prices if all adjustments are to be upward. The public has reason to keep an eye on both labor and capital. Is labor blind or foolish that it alienates such friends as the President and a public disposed to be sympathetic with the troubles of the poor if the poor will only conduct themselves worthily?

THE FORGOTTEN STATES.

The public hears almost nothing of State elections. Maine is an exception, as her voting in September is supposed to draw the eyes of the nation to her. The Maine election, we are told, will be a barometer, or a weather vane, or a seismograph, or something, to show what the electoral storms and convulsions are to be in November. Elsewhere, however, the preparations to elect Governors and Legislatures pass well-nigh unperceived. In our indestructible Union of sovereign States, the States seem at present to be losing their sovereign power to attract attention.

This is not quite the case with New York. The reason is that the Legislature will in two weeks' time convene in extraordinary session to consider extraordinary difficulties in the supply and building of houses, and some other matters which Governor SMITH is expected to bring forward. Prior to the assembling of the Legislature will come the special elections in the districts now without representatives on account of the expulsion of the Socialist members. Choice of their successors may well assume almost national importance. It will at least help to save New York, for the time being, from being one of the overlooked or forgotten States.

Presidential elections have of old had a lordly way of submerging State issues. Many a dubious Governor or rascally machine has crept into power in a State behind the skirts of the President whom the people were absorbed in electing. These things ought not so to be. The State, after all, by its laws and administration comes closest home to the citizen. Neglect of local government is too high a price to pay for renewing the National Government every four years. It is possible that a new interest in State matters may result from woman suffrage. In the national election, women voters may be expected to divide much as men do; but it may prove true, as some believe, that the women will be less bound by party ties than the men in voting for Governors and Senators. Fear of this is obviously causing a good deal of trepidation in some candidates.

FIUME STILL ON THE MAP.

Reports from Rome hint at a division in the Italian Cabinet on the Adriatic question. Some would annex Fiume outright and give up the Italian claim on Dalmatia to placate the Jugoslavs; others prefer the establishment of Fiume as an independent State, with Dalmatia reserved for further discussion. Italian diplomats, it may be suspected, are not altogether easy over the new Czechoslovak-Jugoslav-Rumanian entente. For one thing, it may look like a step toward that "Danube confederation" which Italy has feared as the revival of the Hapsburg empire in another form; and, of course, the acquisition of new allies by the Jugoslavs is disturbing in itself.

There seems to be little reason for those fears. The Danube confederation is a dream which is not yet possible even economically, and will not be within the realm of practical politics for a long time to come. Sooner or later the Danube States will have to get together and do business with each other, but a political alliance between them seems impossible. Even if it should be attained, it is not likely to be hostile to Italy, despite the mistakes of Italian diplomacy which threw away a good chance to acquire the moral and economic leadership of Southeastern Europe. Czechs and Rumanians have hastened to assure the world that the new grouping has no anti-Italian tendency. It was designed as a defensive, first against Hungary and secondarily against Russia. That either Rumania or Czechoslovakia could be brought into a combination antagonistic to Italy is not conceivable at present. But so long as the Adriatic question is unsettled there is always the possibility of trouble which might begin locally and spread far.

In the meantime there has been announced at Fiume the Constitution of a new republic, an Almost Perfect State, the "Italian regency of Quarnero," including Fiume and the islands in the gulf. The Constitution, we read, is rather long and "written in a poetic style"; doubtless D'ANNUNZIO has outdone PLATO in laying out his Utopia. There is a bicameral legislature and an executive commission, headed by the Foreign Minister. But "in time of extreme danger" a dictator may be selected. Doubtless this is such a time, so D'ANNUNZIO is in no danger of finding Fiume voting him out of a job. As for the rest, the Constitution is highly forward-looking—a bill of rights, universal military service, the minimum wage, unemployment insurance, and the referendum and recall.

All citizens are required to register as workers, and the workers are divided into ten classes. PLATO, if we remember, had only three, and even LENIN lacks the subtlety of definition to distinguish as many as ten. D'ANNUNZIO has improved on his models in several ways. One may conjecture, for example, that poets may perhaps be a class by themselves; and the highest class. In PLATO'S republic poets were to be literally given the gate. But the world has moved forward since PLATO'S time; D'ANNUNZIO has finally accomplished the synthesis of Thought and Act. If the actual results do not seem particularly brilliant, that is because the rest of us are not so far along as D'ANNUNZIO.

FROM BOHEMIA TO BROOKLYN.

A correspondent of ours notes the antipathy of Brooklyn for Greenwich Village, citing an eloquent passage from The Daily Eagle. The Village is "New York's symphony of indolent intellectualism." It is the place "where the principle of self-determi"nation is hugged to the burning "bosom of the enlightened, along with "Russian cigarettes, grape juice and "rejected manuscripts." These are bitter words. Yet the Villager who cites them offers no retort, contenting himself with the mild and curious surprise of a lifted eyebrow. Doubtless the Village is in need of no apologist, no defender; yet it may profit by an interpreter.

In a word, the Village is precious as proving that democracy is able to wear its cloak with a difference. Some decades ago H. G. WELLS pointed out that the curse of modern life is its tendency to a drab uniformity. It was like the wings of a moth-miller, a monotony of dusty gray. Doubtless it contained within itself all the pigments of the rainbow; but it lacked the alchemy which separates and arranges them in pools and patterns of color. In Greenwich Village, democracy has developed a splotch of scarlet. The example has proved stimulating in other quarters. What was once a social and intellectual green sickness in the region of Madison Avenue has now come out into the light and luxuriance of the Turtle Bay colony; it is no longer bilious, but shines in a soupy, pellucid effulgence of green that contrasts bravely with the scarlet of the lower west side. And there are other social beauty spots coming, each with its distinctive form, which await only the kindly assistance of our many committees on housing. Manhattan will be a city of villages.

Self-determination these communities have, and also hearts that burn within them; but they smile at the mention of grape juice. When the smile is directed toward The Eagle it is as superb as our correspondent's eyebrow; but when it is turned upon the restaurant waiter it has a kindly, familiar air. The taunt of rejected manuscripts comes a little nearer, but still the Village jade is not galled, its withers remain unwrung. Though the outside world reject its genius, the Village has still its own magazines, its own theatres. The Eagle may never master the indigenous smile; but the local literary life is open to it, and it will find there an abundance of self-knowledge, of self-criticism and self-satire, surpassing even The Eagle's invective. It is, in fact, through its play shops that the Village has achieved its widest celebrity.

One ray of hope our correspondent holds out to the neighboring borough. In the Meserole Street section "yearning Yiddish poets and dramatists "dream over beautiful things to "come." Most of all, no doubt, they dream over a Brooklyn of the future, no longer drab and dusty, but pigmented in all the hues of Iris.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Victims of the Victorians.

Irritation that is not wholly confined to what is called the younger generation has been growing of late as the result of a sudden outburst of criticism directed against the young by self-elected upholders of ancient virtues of which these lamentably unoriginal praisers of the past modestly assume to be the last, lingering representatives. It is by a recent graduate of Yale, however, that this irritation has at last found vigorous expression, no less sincere because of the humor that marks it.

He is JOHN F. CARTER, Jr., and he says his say in the September Atlantic, which is exactly where he should say it, for in several previous issues the editor of that estimable publication has allowed other contributors to lament and denounce to their hearts' content what they think to be the falling away of modern youth, male and female after their kind, from the morals and manners of a better day.

What right, asks Mr. CARTER in effect, have these elderly folk to find fault with their offspring? The exponents and products of the Victorian age, he declares, brought the world they ruled to a pass which did not speak particularly well either for their efficiency or their wisdom—a pass which does something more than excuse doubt as to the surpassing excellence of their creeds or their conventions, of their reticences or their chivalries. And why should they expect those upon whom they had to call for help and protection in the desperate emergency created by the old methods and ideas to show for those methods and ideas either respect or affection?

Such are Mr. CARTER'S inquiries, and that they are not without a certain pertinence is obvious.

Youth Was Always Rebellious.

It has been, of course, the habit of humankind through all its history to view the past as gold, the present as iron, the future as hopeless. Yet on the whole the movement of the race has been upward as well as onward, and though there have been occasional hesitations and more than a few retreats, the prophecies of general and permanent ruin have never been fulfilled. In all probability they now again will prove false.

The vivacious author of The Atlantic protest against the criticism of his elders seemingly takes for granted in his haste that all changes are for the better. That is a mistake quite as grave as its opposite—the assumption that all changes are for the worse.

He is wrong, too, just as are those who excite his rage, in drawing a sharp line between the "generations." There is no such division, for always the young and the old live together, and always they have been antagonistic to about the same degree. On the other hand, not all conservatives are old, not all radicals young. The difference is not a matter of age, but of temperament, whatever that may mean.

None the less is Mr. CARTER'S indignation fairly well justified, and his confidence in "these wild young people" is far more admirable, as well as far more sensible, than were the lamentations that moved him to write his defense of contemporary customs of speech and dress.

Nobody Believed the Charge.

Mr. FRIDIGER, the counsel of the Brooklyn strikers, was grieved when Mr. HOFFMAN, a brother lawyer serving the B. R. T., referred to him as a loafer. The feeling was natural, for the word is unpleasant. But it was an unnecessary display of sensitiveness for Mr. FRIDIGER to attempt, then and there, to manifest his resentment with his fists.

For one thing, if he had thought a moment—which doesn't take long—he would have realized the inevitability of interference by the shocked bystanders. For another, he knew that the epithet was too absurdly inaccurate to be really offensive.

Nobody is better aware than Mr. HOFFMAN that Mr. FRIDIGER does not loaf—that he is a particularly active and industrious person, highly successful in being on the spot where trouble of the sort in which for years he has specialized either is brewing or has been brewed. A street-car strike in this part of the country without Mr. FRIDIGER serving as its guide, philosopher and friend is hardly thinkable, and always he works hard and works long hours.

Always, too, as now, he counsels gentleness of action on the part of his clients. His success in making them take this good advice has not been notable, but at least he has given it, and that is something.

That a man to whom violence avowedly is so obnoxious should have been moved to resort to it by an offense so trivial is surprising. One cannot but fear that as a result of it his exhortations for the maintenance of peace will be even less effective in the future than in the past—be failures more than complete, that is.

But Buyers Have a Remedy.

Suspicions that already were widely held will be strengthened by the published conclusion of the American Exchange National Bank management, made after a careful investigation of the present relation between wholesale and retail prices. It is to the effect that the ultimate consumer is not getting the benefit of the reductions announced of late, and that the reason is the disposition of the small trader to "hold his prices at the old levels, notwithstanding his ability to buy much lower."

One only need study the daily market reports to find evidence that it is a determination, rather than a disposition, that is displayed in almost innumerable shops.

But there!—why should prices come down while people can and will pay them? The small trader does not ask that question out loud, but he thinks it, and his answer is plainly written in everybody's monthly bills.

'MEMBER, STEVE?

'Member, Steve, when you an' me was boys—contrairy boys?
'Member what a store we sot on certain simple joys—
Markers in our memory that linger through the years,
An' sort o' make ye catch your breath an' fill your eyes with tears?

Used t' set a lot o' store in that ol' cookie jar—
Pleasant kind o' plunder in the pantry of your mar.
Used t' think a lot about a Punch an'
Judy show—
Wonder how we ever cared for anything as slow!

We used t' look upon a hoss with proper,
childish pride.
Nowadays you couldn't get a kid t'
take a ride!
Start to tinker 'round a car t' see where trouble lies;
Any boy, with half a glance, can put a feller wise!

Take a kid—'most any kid—an' look into his mind.
Poke around, inspectin' like, an' see what you will find.
There's motor cars a-runnin', there, an'
life in seven reels,
An' swarms of swoopin' aeroplanes.
That's how he thinks an' feels!

We've moved ahead a peg or two since you an' me was young,
In spite of all the sobbin' songs forever
bein' sung.
Don't tell me things ain't what they was,
with faces long an' sad.
The world is better every way, an' never was it bad.

The hearts of men are soarin', Steve, on braver, broader wings.
The wrath of man is pourin', Steve,
upon the heads of Kings.
We're reachin' out—we're strikin' out,
some way we can't express,
To reach the life of gentle hope and humble happiness.

APPEAL TO WOMEN VOTERS.

The Opportunity for Mothers and Wives to Go on Record.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The wives and mothers of the country who sent their loved ones to France do not need to recall the horrors of a modern battlefield. Its anxieties and miseries are vivid pictures to them. They are now reaching out for the hands of the women who did not suffer. They long to put into the hearts of the women who have young sons or may have sons the fear they know and feel. They are pleading for safety.

Men and women recall the Peace Treaty and League covenant that was presented to the United States Senate, the Treaty that was to cripple forever the German war machine, the covenant that was to bind the nations together so that future wars would be impossible. Then followed the long debate which finally came to have as its object the unqualified defeat of the Treaty. It is an insult to our understanding to declare that such a fight was made to save America. We had forced a smile on our faces and brave words on our lips as we bade the boys to go to France to save America. When the losses came pouring in we steadied our nerves and worked on to send more men to the field of destruction. Does this picture "to save America" bear any resemblance to that other picture in the Senate?

We recall the men who led this fight, Lodge, Penrose, Borah, Johnson—and Harding. We recall the general condemnation of these men. They are responsible for the defeat of the Treaty. Do we women want a member of that group for our President? In this State of Massachusetts Mr. Lodge was besought in letters and petitions representing hundreds of men and women to modify his attitude. We begged for mercy, and many a reverent woman prayed that Mr. Lodge's heart might be touched. He fought on to the bitter end. When the fight was over he was heard to remark "The Versailles Peace Treaty and the League of Nations covenant are dead!" The dislike many Republicans feel for President Wilson is mild compared with the general dislike and distrust of thousands for Senator Lodge.

Governor Morrow of Kentucky says, "The real big issue of this campaign is that we want to get rid of the Democratic Administration." We commend the honesty of this assertion, but do we women want to enter the political arena on a rank piece of partisanship? Every instinct of motherhood and humanity urges against it.

Never again will the women of the country have a better chance to declare for a moral principle. Strengthened by such an independent attitude and unpartisan frame of mind, let us recognize certain clear facts. Cox accepts, Harding rejects, the work of the Peace Council. Cox has a clear, vigorous personality. Harding is ambiguous and uncertain. If he is elected, Mr. Cox's Administration will be his own. If Mr. Harding is elected, the Administration, by his own declaration, will be in the hands of party leaders. Cox welcomes wholehearted co-operation with the nations to bring about the peace and progress of the world. Harding proposes to build a high wall about the richest nation in the world, offering a friendly smile over the wall, but utterly shirking the obligation that England and France were only too glad to accept. We recoil at the thought of the epithets that the rest of the world will hurl at us once it feels at liberty to give vent to the feelings it already possesses.

Thousands will court Mr. Harding's offered retreat and hug to their bosoms the thought that at least during their life there will not be another great war, and who come after them may take care of themselves. By all that is right and holy let us not be identified with these. Let us come out into the open, denounce the clique of men who dictate to Mr. Harding and who, through him, would dominate America.

Mrs. J. S. BASSETT.
Northampton, Mass., Aug. 25, 1920.

Explaining Harding's Plans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apparently undisturbed by the worldwide interpretation of his acceptance and porch pronouncements, Senator Harding continues to apply himself to the welding of party differences with a vision and a magnetism peculiarly his own. Indeed, at no time since the fatal schism of 1912 has the effort toward Republican unification been more evident and determined. And the motives underlying the intensity of this situation are neither hidden nor difficult to analyze.

Hatred of hero Wilson and the burning passion for power are causes commonly assigned for Republican regularity. Moved by the satisfaction of Senator Johnson over the failure of indorsement of the Lodge League program, Governor Cox boldly asserts that "principle has been surrendered to expediency." But the Republicans neither loved Mr. Wilson in the two elections last past, nor were they less ambitious for power. Despite the identity of the so-called "Senate Cabal" with the adherents of Mr. Taft in 1912, every prominent Progressive leader is openly advocating Mr. Harding's election. Whereupon it is advanced that the Progressives have long since lost their identity. But the Progressive movement which expressed itself in the remarkable candidacies of General Wood and Senator Johnson was never more militant and determined. What does all this mean? Does it signify that men of the type of Root, Hughes, Johnson, Hoover, Knox, Lodge and Taft have no other concern for the American people than their own immediate interests? Not at all. Stripped of evasion and equivocation, it simply means to the unsophisticated voter that, regardless of conscientious and irreconcilable differences, Republican leaders and plain people recognize an emergency. They are not blind to the obligations of the Republic toward either humanity or themselves. They behold bleeding and devastated Europe as well as their own disordered state. And we must hasten upon the scene. We must appear, however, not in the guise of impracticable altruists, but equipped in heart and hand for effectual accomplishment of our noble purpose. And this can only be done with every essential organ of government properly functioning.

No careful observer of current events can fail to feel the significance of the following truths: That no League, with or without reservations, existent or in contemplation, can have American sanction without a meeting of the minds of both the treaty-making and ratifying powers conformably to the spirit of our institutions; that under the leadership of Governor Cox governmental co-ordination and functional balance is highly improbable, because the San Francisco designations confer a heritage over which the Ohio Executive has had no control; and that not even the inherent potentiality in the Republican Party which has so often risen to the occasion is now dependable without reconciliation of Republican leadership. It was the astute Beauchamp Clark of Bowling Green, Mo., who admonished his followers to continue the leadership of President Wilson in 1916, because the nomination to any other man would not be worth the award. Senator Harding does well, then, if through his acceptance declaration and porch conferences he is able to evolve a policy expressive primarily of the leadership of his party under the safe theory that his nomination this year is totally without value if he cannot effect the disappearance of powerful group division.

Having in mind, then, immediate and effectual participation in some form of voluntary association for the preservation of world peace through faithful demonstration of the principles of the Golden Rule, the voter is compelled to choose between the combined wisdom of the Republican Party and the unbalanced leadership of the Wilson Democracy. Thus in the success which attends the efforts of the Republican standard bearer at party solidarity do we find hope for a bestowal of governmental balance, the assumption of pre-eminent world leadership and a domestic reconstruction adequate to meet the demands of our disordered Republic.

LUCIUS SUMNER HICKS.
Boston, Aug. 30, 1920.

NEW PAN AMERICAN HEAD.

Dr. L. U. Rowe Succeeds John Barrett as Director of the Union.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—John Barrett retired today from the office of Director General of the Pan-American Union and was succeeded by Dr. L. U. Rowe, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Barrett was Director General for fourteen years. He had been Minister of Siam, Colombia, Panama and Argentina, and was selected, but never served, as Ambassador to Japan. His official international career has covered twenty-five years.

In a statement issued in Mr. Barrett's behalf today it was said that he was obliged to enter private life to make a modest income for his later years. The statement said:

"The conscience which his old Vermont mother gave him and constant attention to duty have kept him from capitalizing his official position. If he remained much longer at his present post he would find himself in danger of going eventually from the beautiful Pan-American Union, which he loves with the affection of a parent for a favorite child, to the lowly Poor House."

After spending the month of September with his mother in their old home in Vermont and accompanying her to her present home in Illinois, Mr. Barrett will make a brief trip to Panama to assist at the opening of a new Pan-American College of Commerce of whose Administrative Council he is President, with headquarters in the United States. After that Mr. Barrett will establish himself as a general counselor and adviser in Pan-American and other international affairs with connections in Washington, New York, Chicago and in a city of the Pacific coast and a city in the South, and possibly in Mexico City and Buenos Aires.

Mr. Barrett will also devote himself to carrying out a project initiated by him for the establishment of "the League of American Nations and Peoples." Its purpose will be to organize those in the Western Hemisphere who desire to promote economic, social and intellectual co-operation between the American countries, free from political, governmental or official control. Canadians will participate in the league.

The transfer of directorship took place in the presence of members of the Latin American Diplomatic Corps, Secretary Colby and other high officials of the United States Government.

Dr. Rowe enters upon the duties of Director General of the union with an intimate knowledge of Latin American affairs, having served as head of the State Department's division of Latin American Affairs for some time and before that having been a member of various commissions for the study of Latin American subjects. He was Secretary of the second Pan-American Financial Conference, which met in 1915, and of the International High Commission, an organization of Latin American republics. Dr. Rowe has received degrees from a number of South American universities.

WILL TRY WAR CRIMINALS.

German Minister of Justice Reports Progress in the Matter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—Many reproaches have lately been leveled at the German authorities by the Democratic and Socialist press for not yet having punished any so-called war criminals, as demanded in the Versailles Treaty, but for once these accusations seem unjustified, as will be seen from the statement which the Federal Minister of Justice made to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today:

"The first list of alleged war criminals submitted by the Entente in February last," said Dr. Rudolph Heinze, "contained some 900 names, but there was absolutely no evidence upon which to proceed legally, which fact even the Entente could not ignore. The Entente then selected from this list forty-five men, who, though not particularly distinguished by rank or notoriety, seemed guilty and, as the Entente thought, might easily be convicted.

"The Federal Prosecutor immediately investigated these cases and forty-three of the accused were successfully arrested and examined. Some had to be set free again in accordance with German law, as there was no danger of their becoming fugitives. Others furnished bail and some still are imprisoned.

"The result of our investigation, as shown by stenographic reports of the examination of the accused, has been sent to Paris, London and Rome to aid the Entente authorities in furnishing evidence and witnesses. We have not yet had any communication from them and of course cannot proceed until that arrives.

"It is only natural that the accused should not admit the crimes charged against them. Most of them have given us the names of French and German witnesses who will, they claim, testify as to their innocence. As matters stand, it will probably be Winter before the first cases are tried by the Federal Court at Leipsic."

X-RAY FINGER PRINTS TRIED.

Rubbing of Metallic Salts Said to Excel Contact Method.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—A new and improved method of "fixing" fingerprints for permanent identification has been laid before the Paris police service by a French physician, Dr. Henry Beclere. He asserts that, while the ordinary method of taking fingerprints of criminals and others is liable to error, there can be no doubt about identifying the print if his method is employed.

This method consists of rubbing into the lines and markings of the fingertips a preparation of carbonate of bismuth or some other salt, which, when the fingers are photographed with X-rays, shows corresponding opaque marks in the picture thus obtained.

"The salt can be made to fill completely the minute markings and glands of the skin, even below the fingernails, and when photographed with X-rays these are said to present a more complete and exact record than any other form of print.

The radiograph also shows the skeleton of the finger and the outline and special form of the nail, which, it is stated, is no less distinctive than the lines in the skin and at the same time invariable in each individual.

Fingerprint experts who have examined the new method declare that it gives much more satisfactory results than any other that has been tried.

RUN TRAIN BY OIL FUEL.

English Express Makes a Successful Trip.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The first oil-driven express train in England made a successful run from London to Birmingham and back today over the London & Northwestern line. The train left Euston Station with a full load of passengers, including Colonel F. E. McDonald, inventor of the system of waste oil used in furnace, about 20 pounds of which is burned per mile. Other features of the system include a tank instead of a coal tender, no smoke or ashes, the necessity of only one stoker, and an easy adaptation of the system to any engine in four days.

It is likely that other trains will now be fitted up, said an official, though how far the new system will supersede coal it is difficult as yet to say. In view of possible coal strikes the advantages of oil-driven engines are readily apparent.

STRAUS MILK PLANT TAKEN OVER BY CITY

Dr. Copeland, in Accepting, Reveals Son Was Poisoned by Impure Article in London.

120 CITIES ADOPT SYSTEM

General Miles Praises Philanthropist Who Maintained Stations and Laboratory for 18 Years.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, in accepting yesterday on behalf of the city the Nathan Straus milk stations and laboratory maintained by the philanthropist since 1902, said that while he was in London recently in his investigation of sanitary conditions in Europe his son, 8 years old, was poisoned by impure milk, and he made a personal complaint to Lord Astor, who is an official of the British Ministry of Health.

The Health Commissioner made the announcement at the Nathan Straus laboratory, 348 East Thirty-second Street, in the presence of a gathering of prominent men and women invited to witness the turning over of the Straus plant to the city. Nathan Straus, Jr., presided in the absence of his father, and Commissioner Copeland represented the city at the request of Mayor Hylan, who was unable to be present because of the B. R. T. strike.

Mr. Straus, Jr., told of the establishing of the milk laboratory eighteen years ago and the extension of the work of providing pure milk for the children of the city. Five milk stations were opened that year, he said, to combat the high infant mortality, due to the use of impure milk, and he said that from that nucleus the idea spread so that at the present time 120 cities in this country and many cities in Europe now have stations for the dispensing of pure milk for infants.

In taking over the laboratory and milk stations for the city Dr. Copeland said:

"In my opinion the great thing Mr. Straus did for this city and for the world was his energy and insistence in impressing upon this and other cities the world over that milk must be pasteurized in order to make it safe.

"Practically all the illnesses of children were due in the past to the dysenteric germ found in milk. Within the last eight weeks my own boy, 8 years old, was severely poisoned in London by London milk. And so I became interested in London milk. I went down to the Ministry of Health to complain about the quality of the milk supplied to London, and the chief executive officer, Sir George Nowlan, said: 'Will you make this statement to Lord Astor?' I replied: 'I will make it to the Lord Almighty if you will give me a chance.'"

Soon after, the Health Commissioner said, he received an invitation from Lord Astor to call on him at his home to discuss the matter. Dr. Copeland said that both Lord and Lady Astor were astounded at his revelations and immediately pledged themselves to do everything in their power to bring about an improvement in the quality of the milk in London.

General Nelson A. Miles told the gathering that when he was in the army he fought a visible enemy and that he had seen all sorts of heroic deeds, but that Nathan Straus fought an invisible enemy in as scientific a manner as ever a soldier had done. He referred to a report of the Health Department that at least 250,000 lives had been saved in this city through Mr. Straus's benevolence.

SUBSTITUTE FILINGS MADE.

List of Candidate Changes Made by the Leading Parties.

Democratic, Republican and Socialist Parties filed substitutions with the Board of Elections last night in a number of districts where original candidates have been superseded by others. The list, filed up to midnight, is as follows:

MISS M. MAGOWAN WEDS E. J. STEWART

Daughter of Late William G. Magowan a Bride in Church of the Transfiguration.

MARRIES MARINA PARTRIDGE

Henry R. Amory, Boston Lawyer, Wed in London on Aug. 4—Manchester-Herrick Nuptial.

The wedding of Miss Marion Magowan, daughter of the late William G. Magowan of 59 West Seventy-sixth Street, and Edwin J. Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Stewart of Asbury Park, N. J., was celebrated at noon yesterday in the Church of the Transfiguration, the Rev. Dr. Clark Houghton officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with rose point lace and a satin train, topped with a veil of rose point lace and tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of Bavardia and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was Mrs. Arthur Geisler who appeared in a satin frock of turquoise blue with an over dress of cream lace and a girdle of orchids. Her hat was of cream georgette with orchid feathers.

Allen B. Frazer was best man and the ushers were Charles J. Trevail, Jack F. Chick and Harold Gerechell, all of whom were in the service with Mr. Stewart. Following the ceremony there was a reception and wedding breakfast at the Hotel Commodore. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will spend their honeymoon touring through the Berkshire Mountains, and upon their return will reside in Asbury Park.

The bride was graduated from the National Park Seminary in Washington, D. C., with the class of '20. She was an active worker during the war.

Mr. Stewart enlisted in the army in April, 1917, and served overseas as an ambulance driver with the Presbyterian Hospital unit. He returned to this country in 1919 suffering from trench fever after having attained the rank of First Sergeant.

Amory—Partridge.

The marriage of Marina Dupre de Oliviera Partridge of London, England, and Henry Russell Amory of Newport and Boston took place in London on Aug. 4, according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Amory was captain of the schooner Kitty A., which sailed from Newport in June, 1915, for a cruise of adventure and scientific research on the West African coast and adjacent islands in the interests of the Department of Comparative Zoology of the Peabody Museum of Harvard University. He is a graduate of Harvard and is now a practicing lawyer.

Manchester—Herrick.

Miss Harriet Mollison Herrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Mollison Herrick of this city, was married to James Greenfield Manchester at 8 o'clock last evening at the Fort George Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Lyman Richard Hartley, rector of the church, officiating.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin topped with a veil that was worn by her great-grandmother. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Gertrude Herrick, appeared in a frock of pink georgette, with a tulle hat and scarf to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Jerome Kroeger served as best man, and the ushers were Arthur Manbach and Ralph Frambach.

Marechal—Perkins.

Miss Lois Perkins, a writer, of 37 Madison Avenue, daughter of Donald Gilbert Perkins, and Maurice Marechal, a musician of Paris, were married yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Transfiguration by the Rev. Dr. Lacey.

The bride wore a gown of beaded French georgette crepe, topped with a tulle hat, and carried a shower bouquet of cosmos. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Elsie J. McClure, and Miss Helen Sperry and Miss Dorothy Wellington of Boston were the bridesmaids. George Rexford Tillson was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride, and was attended by fifty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Marechal left last evening for Fairlee, Vt., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home in this city after Sept. 15.

Levy—Weil.

The wedding of Miss Leonore R. Weil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Weil of 25 Claremont Avenue, and Leonard Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Levy of this city, took place last evening at the Hotel St. Regis. Dr. Rudolph Grossman performed the ceremony in the Louis XVI. suite, under a bower decorated with palms and roses, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a gown of cloth of silver, trimmed with rose point lace and long tulle veil caught up with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Miss Lucile E. Weil, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and the Misses Mirian Berg and Mildred Goodman were the bridesmaids. Sybil F. Weil and Irene R. Levy acted as flower girls. Lawrence D. Epstein was best man, and the ushers were Chester B. Korn and G. M. Minton, Jr.

After a trip to the Thousand Islands and Canada Mr. and Mrs. Levy will reside in this city.

Horstmann—Kolb.

The marriage of Miss Louise Kolb, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Kolb of 433 West Forty-seventh Street, and Herbert G. Horstmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Horstmann of Brooklyn, took place at 7 o'clock last evening at the Evangelical Grace Church, the Rev. E. J. Weyl officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white satin topped with a veil of chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Edith Baker of Brooklyn. The bridesmaids were the Misses Freda Andres, Florence Pape and Dora Boymann. Little Miss Horstmann, a sister of the bridegroom, acted as the flower girl.

Dorr—Leay.

Miss Catherine Margaret Leay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Leay of 25 North Henry Street, Brooklyn, who has been a member of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES for the last two years, was married yesterday morning to Louis John Dorr, son of Mrs. Emma Dorr of 821 Metropolitan Avenue, Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Vincent Delaney at St. Cecilia's Church in Brooklyn. The bride was attended by Miss May Anna Timmons, and the best man was James Joseph Devine. There was a reception in the evening at the Laughlin Lyceum. The couple left for a honeymoon in the northern part of the State and on their return will make their home in Brooklyn.

Fenno-Livermore Engagement.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. George E. Turnure announce the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Fenno, to George H. Livermore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Livermore of Brooklyn, N. Y. The wedding will take place at Beaupré, the Lenox home of Mr. and Mrs. Turnure, on Saturday, Sept. 25. Mrs. Fenno is the widow of Allen Blanchard Fenno, organist at Trinity Church and vocalist. He died of pneumonia at the House of Mercy Hospital in Pittsfield in September, 1918, leaving, besides his widow, two children.

Major Budd, U. S. A., Weds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The wedding took place today at St. George's, Hanover Square, of Major Arthur D. Budd, U. S. A., and Mrs. Ely, widow of Dr. William Ely of Rochester, New York. Major Budd was intelligence officer of the second division at Chateau-Thierry and took part in Saint Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives and was Lieutenant-Colonel of the 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

General Barnett, who has been on sixty days' leave, has been detailed to command of a new department in the West, with headquarters at San Francisco.

BARON FERMOY DEAD.

His Heir Is James B. Burke Roche, Who Married Frances Work.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Baron Fermoy (Edmund Fitz-Edmund Burke Roche) died suddenly today at Barmouth, Wales. He was born in 1850.

His heir is the Honorable James Boothby Burke Roche, who in 1890 married Frances, daughter of Frank Work of New York.

James B. Burke Roche who thus inherits the family estates in County Cork, is now 58 years old and resides at 60 St. James Street, London. His career has been picturesque, including ranching in the West in this country, several Latin American revolutions, gold mining in Alaska, exploring in Patagonia, and blockade running for a wager in the Russo-Japanese war. Neither he nor his brother the Baron ever was wealthy, but his twin sons, Edmund and Francis, received $3,000,000 each by the will of their maternal grandfather.

His coming into the title makes his eldest son, Edmund Maurice, heir to the Barony. It is questionable, however, whether he would accept the honor on the death of his father, as Frank Work, his grandfather, in his will bequeathing his large fortune to the two sons of his daughter after her divorce from Burke Roche, stipulated that should either son accept the title the fortune would revert to others.

The former Frances Work divorced Mr. Roche in the Rhode Island courts in 1901 and in 1906 it was learned that she had for some time been secretly married to Aurel Batonyi, professional whip and riding teacher. This marriage endured only three years, and after her second divorce Mrs. Batonyi resumed the name of Roche. Her daughter Cynthia is Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden of this city.

PROF. WILHELM WUNDT DIES.

German Physiologist and Philosopher Was 88 Years Old.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 1.—Professor Wilhelm Wundt, German physiologist and philosopher, died at Leipsic yesterday.

Wilhelm Max Wundt was born Aug. 16, 1832. He studied medicine at Tubingen, Heidelberg and Berlin. He served as lecturer at Heidelberg and professor of philosophy at Zurich, and in 1875 was called to the chair of philosophy at Leipsic, where he founded an institute for experimental psychology, the precursor of many similar institutions. He wrote important works on logic and philosophy, notably his "System of Philosophy" (1890).

Funeral of George E. Bissell.

Funeral services for George E. Bissell, noted sculptor, who died Monday, were held yesterday afternoon at his home, 342 South Fourth Avenue, Mount Vernon. The Rev. O. Olson, assistant rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, officiated.

F. Wellington Ruckstull, sculptor and member of the Municipal Art Society of New York, of which Mr. Bissell was a prominent member, and Mr. Wright of Brooklyn, who was engineer on the ship upon which Mr. Bissell served during the civil war, and many other friends of the famous artist attended the services. Letters and telegrams of condolence from sculptors, painters and architects from all over the country were received.

Interment will be in Rural Cemetery, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., today.

MAYS HURLS YANKS CLOSER TO THE TOP

Blanks Browns, 2 to 0, in Final of Series, While White Sox Lose to Boston.

ONE INNING IS ENOUGH

Double, Triple and Sacrifice Fly in Second Sheve Over Two Runs for Hugmen.

The Yanks were back on their good behavior yesterday and beat the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 0, up at the Polo Grounds. They can be well-behaved when they want to be. They had the disposition and the ambition to win yesterday and it was easy for them behind the finished pitching of Carl Mays.

The baseball incidents in the American League yesterday have the Clevelands, White Sox and Yankees stepping on each other's toes this morning. Cleveland goes back into the lead and the Yanks and White Sox are practically even in second place, with the Sox having a slight advantage in the figures. Huggins's lads have won one more game and lost one more game than the Sox, so Chicago is in second place actually by the skinny margin of a couple of decimal points.

This flag race looks like a frisky jaunt right up to the wire. As it appears now the winner will not be decided until the last few minutes of the season. The Yanks can play just as good ball as the White Sox or Cleveland and all they have to do to be the drum major in the parade is to play just as well as they know how, which will be plenty good enough.

The Yanks were all wool and a yard wide yesterday. They concentrated their batting attack on Carl Weilman in the second inning long enough to get the runs necessary to win. Carl Mays pitched one of his most workmanlike games and behind him the Yanks gave the kind of support required by law. The victory gave the Yanks the series two games to one. The crowd wasn't as large as it has been, about 12,000 seeing the proceedings. The populace was enthusiastic and admiration reigned throughout the afternoon where exasperation held sway on Tuesday.

Frank Chance Is Surprised.

Frank Chance, who was the peerless leader when he bossed the Cubs, and was less peerless when he bossed the Yankees, saw the Yanks play for the first time since he left them flat here some seasons ago. Chance was astonished. He wasn't aware until yesterday that the Yanks knew anything about baseball. Harry McCormick, the slickest of all pinch hitters, who used to be with the Giants in their pennant-winning days, was also a visitor, and he wanted to know, if the Yanks can play as they did yesterday, why they are not out in front.

Mays gave the Browns only four hits. He was master of all his curves, and had unusual control. There was only one inning in which the Browns threatened. That was in the seventh, when Sisler distinguished himself over and above his clubmates by getting as far as third base. After Pratt had thrown out Gedeon in the seventh, Sisler singled to left. Jacobson was safe when Peck fumbled a grounder, and when Williams forced Jacobson, Sisler went to third. Pratt tossed Smith out at first and brought the inning to a close before anything happened.

Not in weeks have the Yanks been up so high on their toes as they were yesterday. Lately they have performed on their heels to a great extent, but speed oozed out all over them, and they peeled off two double plays and were as lively in the infield as a lot of grasshoppers.

Pratt Gets Two Doubles.

Dell Pratt led the Yankees attack with three hits, two doubles and a single. His first double came in the second, and started the rally on Wellman which gave the Yanks their brace of tallies. Bob Meusel got two hits, but both of them went to seed. His second hit was a screaming single to left in the eighth inning with one out. Meusel died trying to stretch it into a two-bagger.

There would have been other Yankee runs if it had not been for the great fielding of Baby Doll Jacobson in centre field. This beanpole has blossomed into the swiftest fly catcher in the league, and he can pull them down as well as Tris Speaker or Hap Felsch ever did. He robbed Ward and Rued of safeties by his uncanny judgment of drives over his roof.

Wellman, who is so tall that he has to sit down on a chair while the other players talk to him standing up, started out as if he had a box full of pitching tricks. The Yanks were toppled over in order in the first, but in the second Pratt gave the beanpole a surprise by spanking a double to right centre. Lewis laid down a pretty sacrifice, and Del went to third.

Then came the big noise of the afternoon. Ping Bodie leaned on an outshoot and whizzed a terrific three-bagger against the concrete wall in right field. Pratt walked over the plate and Ping pulled up at third. Ward shot a sacrifice fly to Jacobson in centre, and Bodie counted after the catch. Ruel rapped a single off Smith's ankles at third. While Severeid was rolling the ball back to Wollman, Ruel stole second. Mays ended the inning when he flied to Williams.

Yanks Rally Falls Short.

It looked promising for the Yankees in the sixth. After Tobin had captured Meusel's drive in right, Pratt got his second wallop of the game—a double to left—and went to third after Tobin caught a long smash off the trusty bat of Duffy Lewis. Bodie got a pass, and the crowd yelled for more runs. Wardle flied to Jacobson and ended the proceedings.

Again in the eighth the Yanks threatened, but again the alarm was false. Pipp struck out and Meusel smashed a hot grounder to left, but died at second trying to stretch it into a two-bagger. Pratt rapped a single to left and all hands were rooting hard for Lewis to keep up the good work. Williams tossed Duffy out at first and the inning was over.

There was one gone in the ninth when Joe Gedeon made the crowd uneasy by poking a single to left. This did not look any too comfortable with Sisler and Jacobson waving their bats in the offing. Mays buckled down and pitched the kind of ball that not even Sisler could hit safely. Sisler's best was a grounder to Pratt, who tossed him out at first, and Jacobson's answer to his club mates' call for a home run was a hopper to Ward which resulted in Baby Doll's demise at first.

ATHLETICS WIN A COUPLE.

Beat Detroit by 2 to 1 and Then Again by 11 to 4.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Philadelphia defeated Detroit twice today by scores of 2 to 1 and 11 to 4. Perkins's double drove in both of the locals' runs in the first game while Veach's home run in the eighth scored for Detroit. In the ninth the visitors filled the bases after two were out, but Cobb fouled out.

Perry and Morrisette were both batted from the box in the second game. With the score tied in the sixth Dauss struck out the first two batters, then yielded six consecutive hits.

NEW YANKEE PROSPECT.

Outfielder Carroll, a Brooklynite, to Get a Tryout Soon.

TORRINGTON, Conn., Sept. 1.—Arthur Carroll, star outfielder of the Torrington Baseball Club, has been added to the list of Yankee prospects and will be accorded a trial by Manager Miller Huggins as soon as the New York Americans return from their coming Western trip. Carroll, whose home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., is serving this Summer as physical director at Camp Berkshire, a few miles from this city, and he has been one of the stars of the local team since he first joined the aggregation. He has coached high school players in Brooklyn and has played some independent baseball around New York. He is 22 years old.

Andy Coakley, former big league pitcher and now scouting for the Yankees, saw Carroll perform here a few days ago in a game against the Philadelphia Athletics. He was so impressed with the work of the player that he recommended him for trial and Manager Huggins will look over Carroll this month.

Curves and Bingles

The Yanks left for Boston last night. Babe Ruth didn't go but he expects that he will be able to get into the game when the club gets back on Labor Day for two games with the Athletics.

Umpire Dinneen suspected that Wellman was using a trick ball in the first inning. The ump threw a suspicious one out of the game but couldn't find any evidence which would convict Wellman.

Jimmy Austin, who was playing when Washington made a rowing record on the Delaware, was out coaching at first. Jimmy still has as much pep as a table d'hote dinner.

Williams went out of the sight of the people in the grand stand in the fifth to get Peck's foul, and got it, too.

Muddy Ruel made a gorgeous little play in the third when he plucked the ball out of the daisies in front of the plate and threw the fleet Johnny Tobin out at first.

Peck also made a great play when he got Tobin's slow hopper in the third and beat the runner by an eyelash with a rifle-ball peg.

If the Yanks, Sox and Indians keep on see-sawing this way they will have to chuck up a nickel to get the winner.

There will be no game at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The Giants will come tomorrow for a single game with the Boston Braves.

GIANTS GET FOURTH JOLT FROM PIRATES

Early Lead Evaporates When Bancroft Makes Error—Final Score Is 4 to 3.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1.—The Giants, badly battered but still in the running for the National League calico, are longing for that happy moment tomorrow night when they can climb aboard their Pullmans and say farewell to Pittsburgh for the season. That dream of using the Pirates as stepping stones to league leadership before returning to the East has been dissipated and the McGrawmen, as a result of their fourth successive reverse here this afternoon, now trail the league-leading Reds by the margin of two and one-half games. Today's figures were 4 to 3.

The series now drawing to a close here marks the final appearance of the Giants on Western soil this season, unless they get into a world's series with a Western club, and it has proved the saddest shock of the entire year to the McGrawmen. They had only to win three games here to go through the pennant campaign without dropping a series in the West, but instead of winning three they have been on the receiving end of four harsh jolts, with the possibility of getting another in the farewell game tomorrow. Coming so closely after the clean-up at Cincinnati, which success carried the McGrawmen almost into first place, the series of reverses here has been particularly hard to bear.

The Giants are not discouraged at all, but they are quite disgusted with themselves over their failure to embrace the opportunity to continue on their way to the heights. Not since the team began its remarkable pennant drive in mid-July has it sustained any such setback as the Pirates have crowded into the last three days, and the defeats have spliced up at a time when victories meant so much. As a result of successes of the last few days Pittsburgh fans, who had lost much of their interest in the pennant race, have become quite enthusiastic. They point to the fact that their team now trails the Giants by only two games, a smaller margin than that which separates Giants and Reds. So there may be more contenders in the backstretch than had been expected.

Pirates Come from Behind.

Today's defeat, like that of yesterday, was especially galling because of the fact that the Pirates were able to come from behind and win after the Giants had picked up what appeared to be a safe lead. Bunched hitting in the fourth inning sent three McGrawmen galloping over the plate, and those three runs assumed the importance of a dozen when coupled with the brand of pitching then being displayed by Rube Benton. Rube in the fourth frame chased in Frank Snyder with New York's third run and the hit which turned the trick was the ninth for the Giants against their old nemesis, Wilbur Cooper. Up to this time Benton had allowed only one clean single and one scratch hit. It is no wonder that the Giants felt that their spell of reverses was about to end.

In the fifth the break came in the shape of an error by the usually reliable Dave Bancroft, and through this misplay, the only error of the game, the Pirates rode through to victory. If Dave had only glued his fingers to a drive from Barbare's bat in the fifth, this might have been the story of Benton's triumph instead of his failure. The error, coming with two out and no runs in, prolonged the inning until three runs were scored, just enough to turn the game into a defeat for the Giants.

Cooper wasn't as good as he usually is against the Giants, but he was good enough to blank the New Yorkers in eight of the nine innings. He was helped along to some extent by some lucky breaks, however, in adding this latest to his long list of successes. One of these occurred in the second frame when Benton toed the plate with runners on second and third and two men out. Rube did the expected and struck out. In the third a double steal fizzled after hits by Young and Frisch, but Cooper's curve fourth ball with Giants did not get a runner to second base, but a pair of double plays figured prominently in keeping the McGrawmen from appearing dangerous.

Toney Is an Improvement.

Toney did some good pitching after replacing Benton in the fifth but it was wasted on a lost cause. The runs which tied and won the game were scored on a hit made off Toney, but he had come into a legacy of runners on third and second in succeeding innings, the big Tennessean allowed little hitting and no scoring.

The Pirates went to the front in the first inning. Benton started well by fanning Bigbee but Barbare slaped a single to left, Southworth second and went to third on Southworth's infield out. While Nicholson was beating out a roller to Frisch Barbare carried over the run.

Doyle got a single and Snyder a double with two out in New York's second inning, but Benton's strikeout left the runners stranded on third and second. In the third Young singled with two out and galloped to third on Frisch's single to right. This was a fine layout for a double steal but it failed, Young being run down between third and the plate. The Pirates in these two innings did not get a runner to first base.

In the fourth the Giants had their fun with Cooper. With Kelly on the retired list Kelly replied past Barbare and went to third on Doyle's single to left centre. Grimes went in as pinch runner for Doyle but he did not have to show any unusual speed. Snyder slapped a triple to the right field corner, scoring both King and Grimes. Benton sent his battery partner home with a single to left centre, Burns drew a pass and the next two batsmen skied to Nicholson, who is patrolling centre field during the enforced layoff of Max Carey.

How the Pirates Did It.

Nicholson and Caton got to Benton for singles in the fourth but nothing developed in the scoring line. In the fifth the home team did some hitting, got some help from Bancroft's error and put the game away. Haeffner and Cooper had been retired in order and the storm broke when it was not expected. Bigbee hit to left for two bases and then Bancroft fumbled Barbare's smash, Bigbee halting at third. Southworth's single to left scored Bigbee and sent Barbare to third, likewise sending Benton to the clubhouse. Southworth took second on the thrown-in and Toney found second and third bases occupied when he took up the pitching burden. Nicholson singled to left and both runners scored. That was enough to win. Neither team did any scoring in the later innings.

REDS DOWN BRAVES AND TAKE THE LEAD

World's Champions Hit Scott in Timely Fashion and Win Odd Game, 6 to 3.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 1.—The champions made it two out of three from the Braves in the last game of the series today, winning 6 to 3. Scott, who was knocked out of the box on Monday, went back today and was hit freely, all runs off him being earned. Fisher was effective until the eighth, when two hits and a walk with no one out caused him to be relieved by Luque, who got the six men who faced him in order. The victory advanced the Reds to first place by the narrow margin of two points.

SKEETERS DRUB READING.

Win 6 to 4, Even Though Manager Donovan Himself Takes a Hand.

Bill Donovan's Skeeters jumped home after a prolonged road trip yesterday to dispose of a two game series with John Hummell's Reading Miners, Donovan's employes breaking in with an easy victory over the coal barons by 6 to 4.

For four innings the issue was uncertain, but in the fifth and sixth some lusty pounding of the curves of Pitcher Swartz by the Donovan clan earned enough markers to sew up the battle.

Kaiser Wilhelm was sent to the mound by the home pilot and after the second period, in which he was assaulted for a quartet of hits and half as many tallies, Wilhelm settled down to steady business and in the remaining chapters Reading was allowed only three wallops.

Jersey City laced Swartz for nine safe blows, one a double by Tim Denoville, and another a triple by Otto Freitag. In the seventh frame First Baseman Denoville received a wicked blow on the arm by a pitched ball and was forced to retire. Manager Bill Donovan filled in the breach at the initial sack in the two final rounds. Before he became fairly warmed up to the work Manager Bill, in the eighth, was charged a gift of a pair of runs to the opposition. Burns, the first up in that inning, hit to Mooers and the latter's hot throw slipped through Donovan's fingers to the stand and Burns raced to second. Thomas was forced, but a hit by Altenburg scored Burns. Bowman lined to Zitman, who threw to Donovan on the bound and again the ball gave the Jersey City manager another chase, and Altenburg scored. Bowman racing to second, Wigelsworth's pretty catches of long flies by Mariott and Sheridan checked the spurt.

The game was won by the Skeeters in the sixth on a single by McCann, Freitag's triple, Wilhelm's hot blow to centre and the wallops of Zimmerman and Kane.

Alex Ferguson, the pitching ace of the Jersey City twirling staff, was returned to the New York Americans yesterday and is expected to prove a valuable acquisition to the Yankees' corps of pitchers.

WHITE SOX OUSTED FROM FIRST PLACE

Boston Cleans Up Three-Game Series with Chicago, Defeating Kerr—Score Is 6-2.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Boston made a clean sweep of its three-game series with Chicago by winning, 6 to 2, today. It was the first time Kerr had been defeated by Boston this season. Chicago made four singles in the ninth inning without scoring, a double play intervening. The defeat, coupled with Cleveland's victory at Washington, dropped the White Sox into second place.

TWO DEFAULTS MAR TITLE TENNIS PLAY

Alexander Refuses to Play Third-Round Match with Griffin—Mathey Arrives Too Late.

JOHNSTON BEATS NILES

Champion Extended to Four Sets to Overcome Bostonian—Tilden Eliminates Hardy—Juniors Started.

Two defaults marred the third round of the national tennis championship at the West Side Club, Forest Hills, yesterday, Frederick B. Alexander and Dean Mathey thus dropping out of the draw, but this almost unprecedented proceeding was more than balanced by the brilliant display given inside the grandstand enclosure by William M. Johnston, the playing-through champion; Richard Norris Williams, 2d, William T. Tilden, 2d, and Charles S. Garland, comprising the entire Davis Cup team of the recent tour. Captain Samuel Hardy also appeared as an honorable loser to Tilden, completing the unique record of the day. All of the winning internationalists reached the fourth round, the remainder of the sixteen survivors including Watson M. Washburn, Vincent Richards, G. Colket Caner, Irving C. Wright, Roland Roberts, Lyle E. Mahan, Wallace F. Johnson and Clarence J. Griffin.

Among the veterans to advance in their special event were Clarence Hobart, former national champion and last year's winner in this class; Edwin Sheafe, James S. Cushman, W. F. Rowland, S. R. McAllister and R. F. Dana. Vincent Richards started with a victory in the junior tournament, which he enters as a two-time champion, and also eliminated Fred O. Josties in the all-comers singles. He will meet his old doubles partner, Tilden, in one of the feature matches this afternoon. It should be the biggest day of the championship, all told, for Johnston also meets his old rival, Williams. Garland is drawn against Washburn and Wallace Johnson against Roberts.

The champion was hard pressed to win from Nathaniel W. Niles yesterday in four sets, scoring 6—4, 6—10, 7—5, 6—2, while Williams had equal difficulty in eliminating Willis Davis at 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2. Tilden dropped a set to the veteran Hardy, but Garland won decisively over young Frank Anderson after a slow start. Griffin and Wallace Johnson were the beneficiaries of the defaults.

Alexander Resents Summons.

As regards the former match, no official explanation was given of Alexander's refusal to play. The obvious facts, however, were that the temperamental veteran resented a suggestion made by George T. Adee, referee of the tournament, that he hurry and get out on the court, as Griffin was ready to start. He declared that he played tennis for fun and not as a business, announced his determination to default, and changed back to street clothes.

The case of Mathey was more unfortunate. He was delayed by a business engagement and had no time even to telephone an explanation. Wallace Johnson was sent out on the court in the expectation of Mathey's immediate arrival, and waited more than half an hour in his tennis clothes, growing more nervous every minute. When a default was offered him he accepted, being by that time totally unfit to do himself justice. A few minutes later Mathey arrived, and he accepted the decision of the committee with good grace, realizing that a fair test under the conditions would have been impossible. Under the specific and explicit rules of the tournament the default was unavoidable.

Whatever disappointment may have been felt over the sudden cancellation of two feature matches was speedily forgotten in the spectacular exhibitions staged by the four internationalists in turn. Tilden and Hardy were the first to take the court, their match being moved forward to fill the gap left by the Alexander-Griffin and Mathey-Johnson omissions. The old Californian delighted the crowd by capturing the opening set, hitting very well, and making great use of his famous headwork, while the world's champion, as was his custom abroad, took his time in getting his strokes under control, wasting many shots on errors, but finding for speed and accuracy of placement from the outset.

Tilden's Tactics Are Sound.

The effectiveness of his tactics became apparent later, when Tilden was able to score almost at will, with his courageous opponent tiring fast. He took the second set at 6—2 and the third at 6—4, Hardy still resisting gamely. Two breaks through service in the final session brought the games to 5—2, Hardy losing a lead of 40—15, starting with a double fault. On his own delivery Tilden soon had only one more point to go, and he finished with a clean ace down the centre line.

The Williams-Davis encounter was an even faster affair, with the former national champion driven close to his limit by the Californian. Last year, after Davis had beaten Norman Brookes, Williams literally blew him off the court in the all-comers' singles, but yesterday there was a very different story to tell. Davis had been so overwhelmed by the unique style of play exhibited by Williams in their first meeting that he offered practically no resistance, and accepted one of the worst beatings ever seen on the clubhouse court at Forest Hills. Yesterday he knew exactly what was coming, and set himself to use all his speed in an effort to forestall the inevitable. The match soon resolved itself into a battle of two of the best services in the game, Davis relying largely on the terrific power of his first ball, and aiming chiefly at the centre line, while Williams varied both pace and placement, each scoring an unusual number of clean aces. Off the ground, in deep court, the Bostonian was the better of the two, and the aggressive nature of his drives, both fore and backhand, was really the deciding factor. He could volley effectively when the chance occurred, and several of his backhand stabs were marvels of anticipation. But in general his ground strokes won for him.

Davis drove the ball very hard off his forehand, and occasionally made a good backhand shot, but it was obvious that he had no great confidence in the latter, and used it fundamentally as a defensive asset. He lobbed only once during the match, and then the attempt, although weak, produced an error in his favor. The points that Davis earned were scored, as a rule, on sensational hit-or-miss wallops that upset all calculations as to court covering.

Davis Wins First Game.

Davis got the first break for a lead of 4—2 when Williams netted a soft shot, and he started for 5—2 with a couple of clean aces, winning the game after a great rally from deep court. Williams came back, however, and seemed to have saved the set when he broke through for 4—5 through errors following a double fault. Two successive nets, however, brought up the set point with Williams serving, and he lost at 6—4 when his next drive just missed the side line.

Davis played with increased confidence after this lucky break, and took the first game of the second session with four service aces. Williams broke through for a lead of 2—1, but lost it immediately when Davis returned the compliment, making a beautiful backhand shot off service, and after feinting a drive, sending up a short lob which the internationalist smashed into the net. Williams showed that his irresistible tennis was available at almost any time by going right through the Californian's delivery again, finishing with an extraordinary drive straight down the side-line, an unbeatable shot. But once more he lost his advantage on a bad bounce at the base line. They divided service to 4-all, and then Williams secured still another break which he turned into the set at 6—4, with a good overhead shot for a finisher.

Williams was within a point of the third set when leading at 5—3 and 40—30, through the contribution of a double fault by Davis. But the latter pulled out the game, and then had his opponent in the hole 0—40 on the next. A dazzling series of shots brought the server to deuce, and he won the set, 6—4, on two errors by the demoralized Davis.

Keeps Up Speedy Pace.

The former champion kept up his irresistible pace throughout the final set, breaking through for a lead of 2—1 and taking the next with four successive service aces. He went to 4—1 with another break and made it 5—1 on service. The match point came up at 30—40, but Davis saved it by serving an ace, and then pulled out of the same hole three more times, eventually winning the game, his second of the set. Williams was not to be denied, however, and quickly served himself within a point of the match once more. He put over a fast one which was not returned, and they waited a moment for the linesman's decision. It went for an ace, and as the winner ran to the net to shake hands he hit the remaining ball clear over the grandstand, in a fit of characteristic exuberance.

Niles also had the memory of a terrific beating to spur him on against Johnston. When these two met in the challenge round for the Longwood Bowl recently the champion won in straight sets, two of the whitewash variety, ending the match with thirteen straight games. He began yesterday where he had left off, and won four more before Niles could score, making the remarkable record of seventeen in a row against a first-class player.

It began to look like a repetition of the former slaughter, but the Bostonian braced just in time. He began to pass the champion at the net, and as his accuracy scored for him again and again, his confidence suddenly returned. From then on it was practically an even battle, with both men playing as pretty a deep court game as the gallery could wish for. Niles broke through Johnston's service and reached 4—3 on his own delivery. But the champion polished off the set at 6—4 with a great cross-court wallop and a splendid volley.

The second was a surprise. Johnston led at 3—0 and 4—1 through one break in service, but lost his advantage at 4—all, and the games went on to deuce without another break. The champion had another chance to win at 7—6, but threw away his service by netting an easy volley. At 8—7 Niles had the set in sight, when Johnston hooked a short one into the net, but a fine volley saved the situation. This was only a temporary respite, however, for Niles was by this time hitting far too well to be stopped with anything short of super-tennis, and soon had the match squared at 10—8.

Champion Captures Third.

The third set was similar, but this time Johnston managed to squeeze through after the games had gone to deuce, although he was three times within a point of losing. There were reciprocal breaks through service until the score reached 4—all, when Niles went into the lead. Johnston's saving of one of the succeeding set points was characteristic, for it entailed a gradual advance to the net, each shot bringing him a little closer, and each aimed at his rival's backhand, with a spectacular volley finally putting an end to the rally. After he had saved this game the champion went to 6—5 with a terrific drive right through Niles, and closed out the set at 7—5.

The ten-minute rest put new life into Johnston, while Niles was obviously weary from his sustained efforts of the past two sets. Johnston led at 3—2, 4—3 and 5—3, with two breaks in his favor, and the match point came up at 40—15 on his own service. He lost one chance, but put over a great drive for the next, landing the ball cleanly in the corner, where Niles could not even reach it. This set was scored at 6—2, ending the argument.

Garland and Frank Anderson had an interesting struggle, in which the Brooklyn youngster hit hard all the way in a desperate attempt to upset the steadiness of his opponent. Their second game was one of the longest of the tournament, lasting through the greater part of the opening set on the adjoining court, Anderson eventually losing his service. Anderson cancelled this lead later, but immediately lost his own delivery again, and the set went against him at 6—3. Garland was unbeatable in the next, and the youngster failed to score. He came back strongly in the third, however, and carried the game to 6—4 before admitting defeat.

Roberts Defeats Hennessey.

A splendid battle was staged by Roland Roberts and John Hennessey on one of the outside courts, the Californian losing one set to the Indiana youth and being carried to deuce in another. Hennessey has improved greatly since he played here as a junior, and he made Roberts show his best form. Superior speed, particularly on service, was the deciding factor.

Fred C. Baggs, after completing a startling victory over Charles M. Bull, Jr., succumbed in straight sets to H. Broockmann, an Eastern England youngster. Willard Botsford took a set from G. Colket Caner, but could do little with his tall opponent after that. A. J. Lowrey surprised H. H. Bassford by defeating him in five sets after losing the first two. Mahan was a little too strong for Ralph Baggs, and Washburn overcame the best efforts of L. W. Knox. Burdick eliminated P. L. Kynaston and Irving Wright put out Gerald Emerson without difficulty. Walter Westbrook held up the bottom of the draw with a decisive victory over Ludlow Vandeventer.

The summary follows:

Second Round—Gerald B. Emerson, East Orange, defeated G. A. L. Dionne, New York, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4, 10—8; Frederick C. Baggs, New York, defeated Charles M. Bull, Jr., New York, 6—8, 6—2, 2—6, 8—6, 10—8.

Third Round—Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, won from Fred B. Alexander, New York, by default; Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia, won from Dean Mathey, New York, by default; L. E. OUIMET PRACTICES ON ROSLYN LINKS

Other Members of American Team Also Prepare for Golf Match with Canada.

Practically all of the ten members of the American golf team which will play the Canadian group Saturday at the Engineers' Country Club in the annual international matches put in a full day yesterday in practice. This team comprises also the leading amateur golfers of the country who will play at Engineers' all next week in the national amateur championship.

It was Francis Ouimet's first view of the new Roslyn links, and he will never say that he found it an easy proposition. Putting was Ouimet's particular difficulty yesterday, and he wound up his round with no fewer than four putts on the home green, right in front of the gallery. His total was fairly well up in the eighties. Davie Herron played over Engineers' in the morning with Grantland Rice and took an approximate 80, showing he is improving. In the afternoon he devoted his time to the adjoining North Shore Country Club course, scene of half of the qualifying test on Monday.

Yesterday also was Chick Evans's first day at Roslyn, and his round was nothing to boast about. That's the experience of most newcomers. Bob Gardner, former champion, but now doubly famous for his sensational thirty-seven-hole match with Cyril Tolley in the final of this year's British championship, was on hand yesterday, as was Bobby Jones.

Several New Yorkers also visited Roslyn yesterday, including Jess Sweetser, intercollegiate champion; Oswald Kirkby, former Metropolitan champion, and Gardiner White, this year's Metropolitan runner-up. The entries will be announced today and published in local newspapers tomorrow.

CANADA'S TEAM HERE TODAY

Representatives in International Golf Match Are on Way.

Colonel P. J. Myler, President of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, arrived in New York yesterday to make final arrangements for his team of Canadian amateur headliners who will meet America's best Saturday in the international matches at Roslyn. He was accompanied by J. Lewis Brown, formerly of Toronto, who yesterday assumed his new duties as editor of Golf Illustrated, succeeding W. H. ("Pipe") Follett.

The Canadian team, thirteen members strong, including three substitutes, will arrive today and spend this afternoon and tomorrow on the Engineers' course for practice. There have been two changes in the lineup, due to the inability of J. H. Cuthbert of Winnepeg and T. Gillespie of Calgary to make the invasion. They have been succeeded by Frank Thompson, one of the five Thompsons of Mississauga, who is a 21-year-old star, and Norman Scott of Montreal, one of Canada's longest drivers.

Other members of the team are C. B. Grier, champion; G. H. Turpin, W. J. Thompson, William McLuckie, George S. Lyon, Fritz Martin, Seymour Lyon and F. G. Hoblitzel. The substitutes are R. L. Anderson, Secretary of the R. U. G. A., A. A. Adams and F. N. Yeates.

GOLF BODIES AT ODDS.

Western Association Won't Accept the New Rule on Stymie.

The United States Golf Association was placed in a curiously embarrassing situation yesterday as a result of the announcement from Chicago that officials of the Western Golf Association, the large sectional body, would take no cognizance of the newly adopted rules for golf insofar as they apply to the stymie. The W. G. A. statement was to the effect that stymies will henceforth be barred from matches under its jurisdiction, as before.

It was this precise difference in rules in America that the U. S. G. A. special committee on rules tried to eliminate when it conferred during June with the Royal and Ancient at St. Andrews, Scotland. Golfers now know that the result of those important conferences was a half-way conciliatory measure which it was hoped would bring both factions of this country together. However, it was pointed out to the Britons that the W. G. A. would concur, for the controlling British association made the radical concession of agreeing to put the new stymie rule before its golfers in a referendum within the next few months. This followed the temporary cessation of conferences on the subject when the Britons first refused to consider a change. The American attitude was that for the best interests of golf in the future it should be played alike all over the world, and the Britons finally accepted this point.

Now the U. S. G. A. is placed in the position of having to answer to Great Britain for the attitude of many western clubs which are members of the U. S. G. A. While trying to get co-operation abroad for a general rule in golf which would apply the world over, the Americans now find that two sections of their own country are at odds.

As of the date of yesterday, Sept. 1, all the new rules of golf except the one standardizing the ball went into effect officially. The ball standardization will become operative May 1, 1921. The new rules will consequently be played next week at Roslyn, L. I., during the national amateur championships. The main changes are making the penalty for a lost ball the same as for an out of bounds ball. The player must go back to the spot where he played the original shot and lose a stroke and distance. Under the new stymie rule when a player is stymied he may remove his opponent's ball, thereby conceding his opponent the next stroke. When the player, within the limits of the putting green, lays himself a stymie this rule is not operative.

Two matches were arranged for Vardon and Ray when they return to the Metropolitan district by local clubs this week. They have been booked to play Sept. 20 at Cherry Valley, Garden City, and on Oct. 9 at Shackamaxon, Westfield, N. J. On the latter date they will meet Shackamaxon's two professionals, Pete and Pat O'Hara.

MRS. VANDERBECK WINS.

Defeats Miss Caverly in Golf Tourney at Cape May, 6 and 5.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 1.—By superior steadiness, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia Cricket Club, defeated her clubmate, Miss Mildred Caverly, in the women's invitation tournament at the Cape May Golf Club today, winning 6 and 5.

Mrs. Vanderbeck was 4 up at the turn. She won the tenth with a par 4 and the eleventh with a par 5. The twelfth was halved in 4 and the thirteenth in 6, Mrs. Vanderbeck thus winning 6 and 5.

Throughout the match Mrs. Vanderbeck consistently outdrove her opponent.

Ray and Vardon Win and Lose.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 1.—Ted Ray and Harry Vardon, British golfers, played two matches here today. In the forenoon they defeated Kenneth Reed, former State champion, and Sam Reynolds, 1917 Trans-Mississippi champion and four times State champion, one up. In the afternoon the Englishmen lost to Ralph Peters, State champion and John Redick, former State champion, four and three.

Says American Golf Links Are Superior to England's

Declaring emphatically that American golf courses are far superior to the English ones which she visited, Mrs. R. Percy Thompson, Secretary of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, is back from a two months' trip to Europe and yesterday resumed her work of mapping out a Fall schedule for the local linkswomen. While in England Mrs. Thompson visited many of the famous courses, spending some time at Walton Heath, Addington and Stoke Poges. She found the English putting greens in excellent condition, due to the careful, painstaking work spent on them daily, but she is emphatic in declaring that American fairways and other features of a golf course, such as club houses, are vastly better. Mrs. Thompson will direct the women's one-day tourney today at the Hollywood Golf Club, Deal, N. J., the first on the Autumn schedule.

PETER MANNING IS READVILLE WINNER

Murphy Celebrates Return to Sulky by Taking Historic Stake—Daystar Defeated.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 1.—After being out of the sulky for three weeks because of injuries received recently at Cleveland, Tom Murphy took the reins behind Peter Manning today in the historic Massachusetts stake at the Grand Circuit races and won in straight heats. The grandson of Peter the Great was easily the best of the field, taking the lead soon after the start of the first heat and never being headed thereafter.

Margaret Dillon, the Boston mare, displayed rare form in the Pilgrim, a $3,000 event for 2:11 pacers, taking first money in short order and stepping the two miles in 2:03¾ and 2:03¼.

The big upset of the day came when Natalie the Great took the measure of Daystar in the three-year-old division of the Horse Breeder Futurity. Walter Cox's filly lost the first heat because of a break near the finish, but thereafter was trotting all the while.

PATTEN WINS MEDAL.

Leads Qualifying Field of Golfers in Equinox Cup Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 1.—W. W. Patten of Schenectady won the gold medal for low score in the qualifying round of the Twentieth Annual Golf Competition for the Equinox Cup at Ekwanok Country Club today with a score of 78. S. C. Mabon of Garden City was out in 38 and home in 43 for his 81, which placed him in a tie for second place with Robinson Cook of Hartford. C. G. Comstock, Jr., of Sleepy Hollow was tied for fifth place at 86.

The scores of the first two sixteens follow:

First Sixteen.

W. W. Patten, Mohawk, 78; S. C. Mabon, Garden City, 81; R. Cook, Hartford, 81; George I. Lawyer, Albany, 82; J. T. Hunter, North Adams, 86; C. G. RACING COMES BACK TO BELMONT TODAY

First of the Autumn Meetings Around New York Will Open at Long Island Track.

Local turf followers will have an opportunity today to welcome the return of racing which for the past month has flourished at Saratoga. The sport will be resumed this afternoon at Belmont Park with the opening of the first of the Autumn meetings, which will last for twelve racing days, and which will be followed by meetings at Jamaica, Aqueduct and Empire City until the close of the New York season on Oct. 30.

Although it may be said with some accuracy that the crest of the season passed with the close of the Saratoga meeting, which brought together the horses from rival sections of the country, there is every assurance of good sport for the remaining months that the New York tracks will be in operation. While there will not be as many horses as were seen at Saratoga, there will be plenty if their owners wish to run them, and in addition some of the most important stake events of the year are to be decided. Among these are the Futurity and the Lawrence Realization, both of which will carry rich prizes.

Many of the stables which raced at the Spa have been divided, some horses going West and others coming here, but the horses owned by H. P. Whitney, Commander J. K. L. Ross, Samuel Ross, R. T. Wilson, Jr., Samuel Riddle and J. E. Widener among others, will be seen in action at the local courses.

During the next two weeks such stars as Sir Barton, Exterminator, Man o' War, John P. Grier and Boniface will be in action, but it is doubtful if Paul Jones, winner of the Kentucky Derby, will run here, as he is being prepared for some of the big stakes in Maryland and Kentucky. Man o' War will make his next appearance in the Lawrence Realization, in which he will have little trouble in adding to his long string of victories. It appears doubtful now if he will race against older horses this year as he may be retired for the season after next Saturday.

The Realization, which will be the feature of next Saturday's card, will give New Yorkers their first chance to applaud Man o' War since his Saratoga campaign. The giant three-year-old was never better and a new record for a mile and five furlongs may be looked for. There was a tendency to criticize Mr. Riddle for not sending his colt to the post for the cup at Saratoga, but the Pennsylvania sportsman was well within his rights when he contended that he might be asking too much of Man o' War—good as he is—to run a mile and three-quarters against such a doughty antagonist as Exterminator on Tuesday and ship to Belmont for the Realization on Saturday.

As for the Futurity, it would appear to be a foregone conclusion that this plum belongs to the Whitney stable, Prudery by her races at Saratoga demonstrating her superiority over the other juveniles. The straight course at Belmont Park will help her chances greatly, and with ordinary luck she should be returned the winner. It is doubtful if any of the fillies which won the Futurity in the past were superior to Prudery, and the fact that Maskette, The Butterflies and Hamburg Belle were real cracks is not lost sight of in this prediction. Whether she will stay as a three-year-old or not is another question.

The second race on the regular program failed to fill and the sixth race, having received twenty entries, was divided and will be run as the second and the sixth race.

The entries follow:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; six furlong, main course. D. of the V 110 pounds, Kinsul 105, Fair Claim 115, Peter Piper 120, On Watch 122, Arnold 110, Osgood 110, Motor Cop 127 and Curraghai'n 100.

REACH SEMI-FINALS.

Tennis Stars Advance in Women's Tourney at Cedarhurst.

Three places were filled yesterday in the semi-final round of the women's invitation tennis tournament at the Rockaway Hunting Club, the survivors being Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former national champion; Miss Eleanor Tennant, of California, and Miss Edith Sigourney, of Boston. Mrs. Robert Leroy, who won a surprising victory over Miss Corinne Gould in the third round, will contest the remaining bracket with Miss Marguerite Davis, the winner meeting Miss Sigourney. Today's upper semi-final brings together Mrs. Mallory and Miss Tennant in what should be the best match of the entire tournament.

The great Norsewoman showed most of her old skill yesterday in eliminating Miss Helen Baker, the Pacific Coast champion, at 6—1, 6—4, while Miss Tennant also played impressively to win two out of three sets from Miss Goss, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2. Miss Florence Ballin was within one game of victory over Miss Sigourney, leading at 5—3 after taking a 6—2 opener. But a slight let-up proved fatal, and the Boston girl by simply keeping the ball steadily in play, pulled out the set and eventually landed the rubber at 6—3.

It was steadiness also that decided the struggle between Mrs. Leroy and Miss Gould, the former clay court champion playing brilliantly in streaks, but making errors eventually when the New Yorker kept stubbornly returning the ball.

The summaries:

Singles, Third Round—Mrs. Robert Leroy defeated Miss Corinne Gould, 6—3, 1—6, 7—5.

Fourth Round—Miss Eleanor Tennant defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory defeated Miss Helen Baker, 6—1, 6—4; Miss Edith Sigourney defeated Miss Florence Ballin, 2—6, 7—5, 6—3.

Doubles, Second Round—Mrs. Mallory and Miss Goss defeated Mrs. William Dick and Miss Marion Hollins, 6—3, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. Barger Wallach defeated Mrs. George Chapman and Miss Chapman, 6—3, 6—3; Mrs. B. F. Briggs and Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Miss Katherine Force and Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, 6—1, 6—4.

Third Round—Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Raymond defeated Mrs. De Forest Candee and Miss Margaret Grove, 6—3, 7—5.

HORSE SHOW DATES SET.

Morristown to Have Nearly Fifty Classes in Ring.

A horse show will be held under the auspices of the Morris County Fair Association on Sept. 23, 24 and 25, at the Whippany River Club, Morristown, N. J. The prize list of nearly fifty classes has been arranged for hackney stallions and mares in hand, harness ponies, saddle horses, polo mounts, hunters and military horses. The prizes will be cups in some events and money in others.

W. M. Divers, Paul Moore, Mrs. G. R. D. Schieffelin, D. B. Schley and R. H. William, Jr., comprise the Horse Show Committee. The entries close Sept. 11 with W. S. Blitz, Assistant Secretary, 35 Nassau Street, New York. The judges will be Joseph Larocque, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., R. C. Vanderbilt, Lewis E. Waring and E. H. Carle.

Masten Park H. S. Sends Four Star Athletes to Columbia

Four star schoolboy athletes from Masten Park High School, Buffalo, will enter Columbia this Fall, it was learned yesterday. Three of the four were members of the relay team which won the one-mile high school relay championship of America at the Penn relays this Spring and all four played on the football team, which has not been defeated in two years. The relay runners are Elwyn Rodenbender, who also played left end on the unbeaten eleven; Walter Koppish, half back, and William Smith, tackle. They will try out for the Columbia freshman team and will be out for track work next Spring. Accompanying the trio was Gordon Streich, a guard on the eleven, and another good prospect for the Blue and White yearling aggregation.

VANDERBILT ENTRY WINS AT NEWPORT

Lady Dilham, Driven by Owner, Takes Blue on Opening Day of Annual Horse Show.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—The twenty-fourth annual Horse Show, which this year is being given for the benefit of the Newport Hospital, opened at the Casino this afternoon. While the entries this year are not as numerous as they have been in some years, still there are plenty of horses to make things interesting.

True to his promise, Reginald C. Vanderbilt is exhibiting some of his harness horses this year again, including his famous brown mare, Lady Dilham, the champion of many horse show rings, and which Mr. Vanderbilt has been considering retiring. Mr. Vanderbilt drove the mare in the class for harness horses, and was greeted with great applause from the stand when he appeared in the ring and again when Charles P. Williams, judge of the harness classes, pinned the blue on the bridle of Lady Dilham.

The summary:

Class 4, Novice, Single Horses in Harness—Won by Harry Newman's b. m. Lady Warwick; Franklin B. Jourdan's ch. m. Fairview Princess, second; Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester's ch. m. Attraction, third.

Class 25, Novice, Saddle Horses—Won by Harry Newman's ch. m. Marvis of Kildare; Narragansett Pier Stables' blk. m. Miss Patsey, second.

Class 18, Novice, Pony in Harness—Won by Delchester Farms' b. m. Trilio Fancy; Thomas B. Wanamaker, Jr.'s, ch. m. Maryland Lofty, second.

Class 37, Novice, Hunters over jumps, conformation counting 50 per cent.—Won by Quansett Farm's ch. m. Blooming Heather; Quansett Farm's br. m. The Witch, second; Quansett Farm's b. m. Rattler, third.

Class 5, Wave Novice—Won by Franklin B. Jourdan's Fairview Princess and Irvington Ganymede; Harry Newman's Lady Warwick and Lord Brilliant, second.

Class 33, Novice, Ponies to Walk, Trot and Canter, Saddle—Won by Thomas B. Wanamaker, Jr.'s, ch. m. Maryland Lofty; John R. Fell's gr. m. Lady Perfection, second; Narragansett Pier Stables' b. m. Gay Paree, third.

Class 27, Saddle Horses 15.2 and over—Won by Harry Newman's ch. m. Glittering Glory; Walter H. Hanley's gr. g. Sil

ARMY BOOTLEGGING LAID TO OFFICERS

THREE MEN ARE ARRESTED

Evidence Obtained by Government Investigators Employed by Village of Patchogue.

Following the arrest and arraignment of three men charged with trafficking in whisky in Patchogue, L. I., Leroy W. Ross, United States District Attorney in Brooklyn, announced yesterday that he had information which led him to believe the contraband liquor was sold to United States Army officers at Camp Upton and by these officers to enlisted men. Mr. Ross said he would begin a Grand Jury investigation into the matter today. The District Attorney would not reveal the names or the rank of the suspected officers.

Numerous complaints received by Mr. Ross recently charged that whisky was being sold almost openly in Patchogue to soldiers in uniform. He detailed William Archer, John Schaeffer and Christopher Stucky, agents of the Department of Justice, to investigate. They reported that the village of Patchogue was employing private detectives in an inquiry of its own. Under orders from Mr. Ross, the Government agents secured employment from the village to aid in its investigation.

The agents made reports to the village authorities and also to Mr. Ross and to Assistant United States District Attorney Wallace Collins, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for District Attorney of Suffolk County. When their work had been completed and before the village officials could act Federal warrants were issued and three men were arrested. The men are Henry Ridenhauer, a former soldier, now a taxicab driver in Patchogue; R. E. Curry, a soldier, who has been driving a taxi during a thirty-day furlough, and Henry Bernstein, owner of a number of taxicabs operating between Patchogue and Camp Upton. Ridenhauer and Curry are charged with selling whisky. Bernstein is charged with selling and possessing liquor. A search of his home disclosed forty-four pints and one quart of whisky, a five-gallon can alleged to be filled with cologne spirits and a can containing coloring matter. All three men were arraigned before United States Commissioner McCabe and held in $3,500 bail.

District Attorney Ross yesterday wrote to President Lester Foster of the village of Patchogue and Sheriff Frank F. Kelly, of Suffolk County, directing them to bring to his office all evidence gathered by them. The evidence will be submitted to the Grand Jury.

Assistant District Attorney Collins said he believed the Patchogue investigation was instigated by political enemies who hoped to cause the voters of Suffolk County to believe that he had failed in his duty as a Federal officer in not suppressing the whisky trade.

WOOLEN MILLS TO RESUME.

Open Preparatory Sections Sept. 13 and Others Later.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The American Woolen Company, whose mills have been shut down, will start the preparatory departments on Sept. 13 and other departments thereafter as soon as possible, according to an announcement by William M. Wood, President of the Company, today.

President Wood's statement added: "The wage scale will be the same as when the mills were forced to shut down in July."

The American Woolen Company has fifty-four mills in New England and New York, and employes upward of 30,000 operatives, about half of whom are in the mills at Lawrence.

Offering Poor at London Wool Sale.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—At the wool auction sales today 10,000 bales, comprising a poor selection, were offered. Training was quieter and prices were irregular.

Tastes in Wall Paper.

Wall paper that decorators will pick up for some of their best effects this year is a peacock design. There is a touch of brown with the blue and green which softens the effect and it is unusually attractive. This is a paper that it would have been impossible to sell a few years ago because of the superstition that peacocks and peacock feathers were unlucky. Any kind of a bird was almost equally bad as a luck killer, the paper man says, but now people buy them all, regardless. Many of the most attractive papers are in designs with birds. Individual cities have their special whims in paper buying. New Yorkers will not have dado and cornice effects in their papers. This is a matter of economy, as these cost much more to hang and it is considered a waste of money, while in Philadelphia they have a special liking for them and for other panel effects.

Dress Goods Trading Light.

Buying for filling-in purposes is practically all that is happening in the local dress goods market. No large transactions are reported, nor is there any disposition shown to contract ahead. Sales made known yesterday were all for September delivery. The printcloths, first hands let go of 39-inch 68-72s at 13 cents and of 38½-inch 64-60s at 14½ cents, while second hands disposed of 39-inch 72-76s at 16½ cents. In sateens 39-inch 64-104s, 4.20 yard goods, went at 18 cents, while 37-inch 3.95 yard twills brought 13½ cents.

Mohair in Scarfs and Hats.

Broad white mohair scarfs for sport wear woven with an outer fluff of long hair are among the smart new things and, made of the same material, are sport hats or turbans. With the same long-haired effect are scarfs and hats of camel's hair in the natural color. The man's hatter is putting touches of color in his soft felt sport hats, some of which are in the rough finish, but more of them smooth. The edges are bound with color, often in a two-tone effect, to match a narrow band. There is even a touch of metal thread in some of the sport hat trimmings.

Woolen Opening Date.

According to the best information obtainable in the market, the opening of the American Woolen Company for Spring will be held on either Sept. 14 or 15. Announcement was made from Boston yesterday that the preparatory departments of the company would be opened on Sept. 13. This, however, is a Jewish holiday, and it is thought that the main opening will be postponed to the next day or day after. The company stated that the wage scale involving a 15 per cent. increase to workers, which was adopted previous to the shutting down of the mills, will prevail when the plants resume work.

Carpet Opening Doubtful.

No definite date has been set for the naming of Spring carpet and rug prices. Certain large factors are in favor of an opening soon after Oct. 1 in order to re-establish values which are now said to be rather uncertain. Others in the trade believe that Nov. 1 will see the opening, if it is not delayed until after the election. Cancelations are being received by the manufacturers, it is said, but these revisions are confined mainly to goods which were ordered some time ago and have not yet been delivered. Reports reaching the manufacturers are to the effect that retail stocks are somewhat depleted but that buyers are hesitant over giving orders with prices so unsettled.

Good Prospects for Veils.

Dealers in veils profess to be pleased at the outlook for their goods. There will be more women to wear veils this year than ever before, and the young girls are coming out strong for them. The "drape" veil appeals to many. It has grace, beauty and style worn over the hat with none of the annoyances of the close face veil. It comes in a big loose mesh with a broad open-work border. The standard colors, brown, black and navy, as always, are good, but it is also to be found in other colors. A fine metal thread is woven into the borders of some of the veils, and in a few there are solid figure designs, like a flock of birds. Lightness and airiness is, however, the general effect.

Auction Sales of Woolens.

About the same buying tendencies were noted yesterday at the auction sales of woolens and worsteds as have been noted previously. Burling, Dole & Co., concluded a two-day sale yesterday, in which were included goods from the American Woolen Company, the Auburndale Mills and Arlington Mills. Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell offered 1,500 pieces of dress goods and men's wear fabrics from the Arlington Mills and others. A fairly active demand was found for the high grade goods, with medium and cheaper goods not so closely followed. Seasonal firsts were chiefly desired, and some of the first grade of seconds were also well sought. The sales were well attended and jobbers were especially active in the bidding.

Revising Clothing Prices.

The pressure for lower prices for clothing is expected to reach its stiffest point upon the naming of Spring woolen prices. It is understood that, while no official action has been taken by the different markets in revising their Fall quotations, quite a little bit of this has been done by individual firms. Outwardly, the manufacturers have insisted that either raw material or labor costs, or both, would have to be reduced before they would be in a position to name lower prices. As they have already bought their supplies of Fall fabrics, they have considered it impossible to make economies in this direction. However, buyers feel certain that, if the reductions in Spring woolens are important concessions, the manufacturers will see some way of bringing down clothing values.

Manufactured Fur Stocks.

Stocks of manufactured furs are not understood to be large, in spite of the existing surplus of raw skins. The strike in the trade has been in progress now for fourteen weeks and for that reason, even though goods have been made up in outside factories, the supply of manufactured skins is not great. In fact, it is stated on reliable authority that if a normal demand asserts itself, the present stocks will not last much more than four weeks. It is thought that the postponement of the auction sales in this country will change the ideas of buyers who were looking forward to further declines, and induce them to place the orders that have been withholding. Quite a fair business is reported from the cloak and suit trade for furs to be used in trimming garments of the better sort.

Drug and Chemical Revisions.

Price revisions continue to be made in the drug and chemical market. Fine and heavy chemicals have been reduced, and very little business is being done in dyes pending the opening of the textile mills and the improvement in the transportation situation. Drug and Chemical Markets will report declines in the price of a number of mercurials owing to the lower cost of quicksilver. Antimony is easier and resale acetanilid is weak. Oxalic and tartaric acids are lower and declines have occurred also in epsom salt and formaldehyde. Among the heavy chemicals, reductions have been made in caustic soda, aluminum sulphate, muriatic acid, ammonium sulphate, red arsenic, sodium bichromate, nitrate and nitrite. Advances occurred in barium carbonate and yellow prussiate of both soda and potash. Vegetable oils continue weak, and crude drug prices, especially foreign botanicals, are still tending downward.

TAFT SEES NO BAR TO JOINING LEAGUE

Those Who Doubt Constitutional Power Would Class Us with Infants, He Says.

ADDRESSES CANADIAN BAR

Tells Lawyers He Has No Fear for Our Sovereignty — Canadians Make Him Honorary Member.

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—Speaking before the Canadian Bar Association at luncheon here today, William Howard Taft, former President of the United States and official representative of the American Bar Association, dealt with the constitutional aspects of the League of Nations.

"I do not think," he said, "that those people who contend against the power of the United States to make contracts and enter into obligations with other nations fully realize how completely such a construction of the Constitution would relegate our great nation and Government to the limbo of infants and irresponsible persons who may not undertake obligations that are binding upon them."

The token of sovereignty, he held, was the power to make and break agreements at will.

Mr. Taft declared that the question in which Canadians were interested, and with which he proposed to deal, was "what are the powers of the United States, as a neighbor, in making treaties?"

He said he would not discuss whether or not the United States should become a member of the League of Nations, but instead wished to turn the attention of those present to the constitutional aspect of the case, and try to discover whether or not the United States had the power to enter the League.

Mr. Taft outlined the features of the United States Constitution which vest in the President and Senate the power of making treaties, but give to Congress all control of the purse strings. However much it might be minimized, he said, it was no mean power that was vested in the President and two-thirds of the Senate when they were authorized to enter into treaties with other nations.

Precedent, Mr. Taft said, did not support the present attitude of the United States, and he pointed to the agreement with the Republic of Panama for proof. He cited the refusal of President Washington to submit the details of the Jay treaty to Congress as a proof that the United States would not lose sovereignty in entering the League of Nations.

Mr. Taft said there was so much constitution in the United States that when it was intended to honor a man he was referred to as a Constitutional lawyer. Some of these he believed to be decidedly unconstitutional.

Mr. Taft said that the result of the Presidential election in the United States would not necessarily mean the decision of the people of the United States regarding the League of Nations. There were other issues involved in the election.

It was claimed that to enter the League the United States would have to part with some of her sovereign powers. This contention he disputed. The fact of the matter was that a sovereignty which could not enter into agreement with other nations was a minor, and ought to have a guardian.

The luncheon was attended by the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General; members of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, leading figures of the Canadian bench and bar, and a great gathering of the legal fraternity.

Premier William Martin of Saskatchewan, was in the chair, and in welcoming Mr. Taft referred to him as "one of the greatest authorities on jurisprudence and international law on this continent."

He remarked humorously that Mr. Taft had now been appointed to sit on a Canadian Commission, and that it would be a good thing for Canada to do away with certain features of our naturalization law so as to make the visitor a citizen of the Dominion.

Following Mr. Taft's speech, Sir Douglas Hasen, Chief Justice of New Brunswick, moved that the representative of the American Bar Association be made an honorary member of the Canadian Bar Association, which was carried with enthusiasm.

Woolens Reduced Ten Per Cent.

Just as "regular" stores are beginning to show Fall and Winter Woolens at "opening" prices—(which are the prices from which they are to be "reduced" later on)—we have taken a 10 per cent. reduction on all Woolens.

When we first placed these Woolens on sale they were marked very low, indeed, and, at 10 per cent. off, and in an "opening" market, they are wonderful values.

Navy Tricotine $1.00
Less ten per cent.
A bargain of unusual importance. 36 inches wide, good quality, part wool, fast dye. Navy Tricotine, suitable for dresses, skirts and children's wear. Be sure to see this cloth before it is too late.

Cheviot Mixture 75c.
Less ten per cent
A good quality, part wool cheviot, mixture in two shades of brown, basket weave, 54 inches wide, splendidly adapted for bath robes, house gowns, dresses, suits, children's dresses and coats. An outstanding value in this great sale.

Imperial Serge $2.75
Less ten per cent.
Ask for No. 3015. This is an exceptionally fine quality Serge for women's suits, skirts or dresses. 50 inches wide, fast dye. You will be more than pleased with this number when you see it.

Plaid Back Coating $3.75
Less ten per cent.
A wonderful fabric for storm coats, auto robes, couch covers and many are buying it for blankets; 54 inches wide, weighing 24 ounces to the yard, in several very pretty patterns—this is a bargain.

Handsome Velours $4.25
Less ten per cent.
Beautiful quality Velours, 54 inches wide, in five fashionable shades, including Burgundy, blue and mole. You should see this cloth in order to fully appreciate what an extraordinary value it is at this very low price.

Unfinished Worsted $4.25
Less ten per cent.
Ask for No. 3007. This is 56 inches wide, and a quality far beyond anything you have any right to expect at this price. Fast dye, 14 ounce weight, and a splendid bargain. Do not fail to see it.

Bolivia Cloth $8 and $9 a Yard
Less ten per cent.
It has been a long time since such a quality of Bolivia has been offered at anything like such a low price. For coats and capes this fabric is very desirable. Comes in mixtures, blues, drabs, mole and black and white.

Children's Cloaking $1.50
Less ten per cent.
This is a fairly heavy wooly fabric, in green only. A splendid cloth for children's school coats. Will give good wear, and looks like plush. A fare bargain.

MacSWINEY GROWS WEAKER

F. P. Walsh Appeals to President and Colby — Says Latter Promises to Act.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, Sept. 1.—Unionist workers proceeding to the shipyards this morning were fired on from side streets in the Millfield district, and again in the neighborhood of the docks. The docks street cars were filled with loads of humanity in dungaree, who provided an excellent target for snipers, and many a driver has a thrilling tale to relate of bending low over his steering gear and forcing the car at a furious speed past the danger spot.

The curfew law came into operation last night and proved effective in so far as it reduced rioting and looting to a negligible quantity.

During the proclaimed hours two men were killed. One, Private Jamieson of the Scottish Rifles, was on leave in the city and was accidentally shot. The other was a looter. A military patrol surrounded a saloon in Bankmore Street in which they heard voices, notwithstanding that the building was on fire. A sergeant called upon those inside to come out and a man who emerged failed to stop when ordered and was shot dead.

Apart from these tragic incidents Belfast experienced the quietest night since the riots began a week ago. From half past 9 o'clock the streets were deserted and the calm was broken only by the sharp note of a sentry's challenge of the passage of some belated motor car. Occasionally, too, fire engines clattered along.

The number of premises completely destroyed in the city is now 214, and Head Constable Clarke declared today that during all his years of service he had never seen such wholesale and wanton destruction of valuable property. The military are gripping the situation with a firm hand. Soldiers are carrying their bayonetted rifles at the port, moving on all who loiter for a few seconds. There are those who are inevitably disgruntled at this policy, but the majority approve any measures, however stringent, which will put an end to the intolerable conditions here.

Belfast is essentially a business community, and the mob law which thus far has prevailed is seriously injuring trade, while responsible citizens are appalled at the cost of damages which will have to be met, presumably out of their taxes.

It is difficulty to perceive a definite end to the intensity of feeling and its inseparable evils while Catholic workers are excluded from employment. The latter appear to have an inexhaustible supply of revolvers and ammunition, and seeing their religious opponents prosperously pursuing their avocation, compared with their own dubious future, is provocative of reprisals when least expected.

Sniping Continuous Throughout City.

Soldiers on duty at these storm centres quickly opened fire on places where snipers were suspected of lurking, and such was the curiosity of the crowds that at times the soldiers were aiming along veritable lanes of people. In the area of Peter's Hill the soldiers were firing steadily for 15 minutes before they silenced the sniping, all of which was from revolvers. One man was killed there.

At the docks, shipyard employes promptly exacted revenge from Catholic laborers discharging ships, and here a docker was killed.

So this insensate vendetta continues, with its toll of lives and wounded. One section is attacked, and retaliates on another, and persons which had no connection with the original quarrel suffer its consequences.

The death roll this afternoon had reached the terrible total of 25, and still snipers continue at their grim work until disabled by soldiers. So uncertain is the state of some notorious areas that one can never be sure of safety at any time. Falls Road district had been fairly passive throughout the morning, for instance, but this afternoon it flamed up into intense shooting, until the military, who are in strong force in the district police barracks there, had obtained command and driven the snipers to cover.

I visited some of the affected areas today, and the scenes are like nothing so much as a devastated town of France familiar to ex-service men. Wrecked houses and boarded windows, torn-up roads, and only a strifled, nervous movement is visible in these sections, except for ragged children who weave fanciful patterns fro mthe debris used by their elders in bitter fury. There are even refugees, hunted and harassed, cherishing their portable possessions as they flit from the tortured background of their persecution.

Bands of self-appointed eviction agents are industriously foretelling out their victims. Sometimes, if a house is unoccupied, the tenants having fled from terror, they must open the door and throw articles of furniture into the street. If a match is handy there is a small bonfire. In several cases the police have arrived opportunely, and have added to their functions that of furniture removers. I have seen them come up to such a house, drive away looters and pile all the articles inside upon a box for storage in a safe place. Their service to the community cannot be overestimated.

Military dispositions today are extensive and thorough, but the wide distribution of the conflict makes their task intricate to a degree and many of the younger men betray evidences of fatigue.

BELFAST, Sept. 1 (Associated Press).—Sinn Fein snipers are alleged to have fired on girls leaving a linen warehouse in the southern part of the city during the afternoon. Only the intervention of the Rev. Father Murphy saved the life of a van driver for a Belfast firm, who had been captured by a crowd in the Falls district. The man, it is asserted, failed to answer test questions and found himself confronted with a volunteer firing party of six men with revolvers. His van was burned.

This evening the military dashed along Gresham Street, which abuts on North street, in pursuit of a man who was alleged to have fired on them from close range. The troops are being hampered by the curiosity of friendly onlookers, who persist in getting across their line of fire. Their unfamiliarity with the winding of the streets constituting Millfield and Carrick Hill, the latter Sinn Fein localities, is also proving a great handicap.

The Falls Road Orangemen continue in aggressive mood. A descent this afternoon on Shankill Road by way of Boundary Street seemed proof of this, as the rioters could have reached the same objective through friendly quarters.

An attempt to attack a Catholic Church in Alfred Street tonight resulted in an exchange of shots lasting half an hour. Several persons were wounded before the military dispersed the combatants.

Three Killed in Other Towns.

CLAREMORRIS, Sept. 1.—Two policemen were shot dead last evening while patrolling near Ballaghadereen.

DUBLIN, Sept. 1.—An official report of the Ballaghadereen killing says that five policemen proceeding from Ballaghadereen to the French Park petty sessions were attacked by sixty armed men.

Constable Murphy and one civilian were shot dead. Another Constable, McCarthy, was dangerously wounded. The other policemen made their escape.

DUNGARVAN, Sept. 1.—During a raid on a private residence near Dungarvan on Monday night, by twenty armed men, one of the occupants resisted and was shot dead.

ENAGH, Sept. 1.—Former County Inspector Foley, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, was shot last evening by armed men and seriously wounded. His assailants were raiding his residence near here for arms.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 1.—The Coast Guard at Crookhaven reports that all the buildings at Brow Head including the war signal station and the post office and power station, were destroyed by fire and bombs last night.

MacSwiney Shows Emaciation.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The condition of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, in Brixton Prison, tonight was without change, except that he appeared a trifle weaker.

His relatives seem less anxious than they were a few days ago, Mrs. MacSwiney not paying her customary visit tonight.

Father Bernard Vaughan, who is famous for his sermons and writings, today made the following statement to the Press Association regarding the subject:

"Personally, from my reading of theology, moral and dogmatic, I should not feel entitled to administer the rites of the Church to any one, no matter what his nationality, who was deliberately dying through a hunger strike. But I am free to admit that other theologians, far more learned than I am, would reverse my verdict on the subject.

"Some moralists there are who deny that hunger striking cannot be justified; others have drawn a fine motion between objective truths and subjective error. But, as you are asking for my personal view of the subject, I give it for what it is worth, without comment upon any one who may differ from me.

SAYS COLBY PROMISED TO AID CORK'S MAYOR

Frank P. Walsh Quotes Secretary as Saying "I Will Endeavor to Do Something Quickly."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Frank P. Walsh, who was Chairman of President Wilson's Industrial Commission and later Chairman of the United States War Labor Board and a member of the commission sent to Paris during the Peace Conference by the Irish Race Congress which met in Philadelphia in February, 1919, made an appeal today to President Wilson and Secretary Colby to request Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain to release Lord Mayor MacSwiney from Brixton Prison.

Mr. Walsh left at the White House a letter addressed to President Wilson containing the appeal, and he had a personal interview with Secretary Colby at the State Department. The President and the Secretary of State were each asked to appeal to Mr. Lloyd George either officially or personally.

In conversation with newspaper men, Mr. Walsh quoted Secretary Colby as having made this statement to him:

"You will recognize the great difficulty of doing anything, but nevertheless I will endeavor to do something and do it quickly."

Mr. Walsh told the newspaper men that he had argued briefly with Secretary Colby in favor of American intervention in Mayor MacSwiney's behalf. He cited as a precedent for governmental action that representations protesting against the Jewish pogroms had been made by the United States to Russia during the Roosevelt Administration. Mayor MacSwiney, he said, had a brother and sister in this country, who were American citizens, and he declared that millions of sympathetic admirers and friends were interested in the fate of Cork's Lord Mayor.

No information came from the White House or the State Department as to what action would be taken on Mr. Walsh's appeal.

The letter from Mr. Walsh to President Wilson follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"Hon. Terence MacSwiney, the democratically elected Mayor of one of Ireland's largest and most important municipalities, is confined in the Brixton jail, in England, for the commission of acts which are held by the free peoples of the world to be not only innocent, but praiseworthy.

"He is dying of starvation, and his attending physicians assert that unless immediately released his death will ensue within the next twelve hours.

"I have been requested by the organizations of American citizens of Irish blood, numbering millions in membership and sympathetic affiliation, to appeal to you to use your good offices to save his life.

"If you could see your way clear to make direct official or personal appeal to Mr. Lloyd George we feel sure that this tragedy would be averted.

"We therefore beg of you to make this direct appeal, either officially or in the name of our common humanity.

"With assurances of my deep respect and esteem, as always, sincerely yours,

"FRANK P. WALSH."

Pershing for "Good Will" Tour of South America

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Consideration is being given by the State and War Departments to a suggestion that General Pershing pay a "good will" visit within a few months to South American countries, it was said today by officials of the two departments. Final decision on the matter has not been reached, it was added, and until that time the countries to be visited and the time of the trip will not be determined.

Visits to the United States have been made by a number of officials and diplomats from South American countries since the war and officials here are known to have given considerable thought to a proper return of such visits. The fact that the name of General Pershing as leader of the American forces in France became well known in South America led to the suggestion that he was extremely well fitted for the return of such courtesies. Should General Pershing be asked to make the visits, it is understood that he will do so before retiring from the army.

2 DEAD, 20 INJURED DAY'S TOLL BY AUTOS

Girl of 4 and Boy of 7 Die in Hospitals as Result of Being Struck by Cars.

2 WOMEN DRIVERS IN LIST

Accidents Include Four Collisions in Which Machines Are Badly Wrecked.

Eighteen persons were injured in automobile accidents in this city yesterday and two persons, both children, died as the result of injuries received. The accidents included four collisions in which machines were wrecked.

Three persons were injured when a taxicab operated by William Simmons of 217 East Eighty-sixth Street, collided with an automobile at St. Nicholas Avenue and 141st Street. James Duffy of 1,876 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, was at the wheel, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Suchman of Hempstead, L. I., the taxi passengers, were injured. They were taken to Harlem Hospital. The chauffeurs received minor bruises.

Anthony Dorelo of 32 Thompson Street, received lacerations of the back and was otherwise bruised when his auto truck collided with a mail wagon at Greene and Grand Streets.

While negotiating a traffic jam at Ocean Parkway and Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn, an army truck driven by Harrison Wareskowsky, of Manhattan, collided with a touring car. The automobile was overturned and wrecked. Herman Metznick, of Broome Street, Manhattan, who was in the car, was thrown out and severely injured. He was taken to the Kings County Hospital.

An automobile driven by Rose Altmark of 561 West 143d Street, collided on the East Drive in Central Park last night with a car driven by Virginia Wayte of Bellehaven, Greenwich, Conn. Both drivers were cut by glass and Arthur Hertz of 115 Clay Avenue, the Bronx, who was riding with Miss Altmark, was also slighdly hurt.

Bayonne Preacher Injured.

While crossing Grand Boulevard at 170th Street, the Bronx, the Rev. Peter Egan of Bayonne and William Haverty of 209 Sixteenth Street, Jersey City, were struck by an automobile. They received slight injuries and refused medical attention.

Beatrice Adams, 4, died in St. Mary's Hospital from injuries received when she was struck at Twenty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue. She lived at 249 West Twenty-ninth Street. Michael Cardona, 7, died in Bellevue Hospital as the result of injuries received at Twenty-third Street and Second Avenue on Monday night.

While unloading lumber from a truck in front of 316 East Sixty-fifth Street, George Heidenberg of 509 East 162d Street was struck by a passing automobile. He was taken to the Reception Hospital with a fractured leg. Another patient received at the same hospital was Charles Geisler, 15, of Howard Beach, L. I. His right foot was injured in jumping from an automobile in front of 853 Third Avenue.

Walter Baer, 10, of 1,562 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, is in Fordham Hospital with a fractured wrist and bruises. He was struck while playing near his home. Theodore Bronkmint, 13, of 1,001 West 100th Street, received lacerations when struck at 2,672 Broadway. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital. Elizabeth Considine, of 68 East 235th Street, the Bronx, was injured by a taxicab at 32d Street and Fifth Avenue. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Samuel Glickman, of 1,517 Charlotte Street, the Bronx, was struck at Murray Street and Broadway. He was attended for lacerations. Leon Greenberg of 5 West 104th Street, was struck by an automobile at 108th Street and Columbus Avenue. He received lacerations of the face.

Jersey City Man Dies of Injuries.

Nicholas Barry, 47, of 3,033 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City, died in the City Hospital, Jersey City, yesterday, from injuries received when he was run down by an automobile at Van Winkle Avenue, Tuesday night. The car was driven by Jeremiah Driscoll of 238 Wilkinson Avenue, who was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Edward O'Neal, a street sweeper, 59, of 1,314 First Avenue, was struck by an automobile while he was working in front of 331 East Forty-fifth Street last night. He was taken to Reception Hospital suffering from a broken right leg and a fracture of the right arm. The machine was owned by Alice Haynes of Hope Street, Springfield, Conn., and was driven by her brother Frederick, of the same address, who was arrested by Patrolman Martin Connelly, charged with felonious assault.

Walter Richart, 3, of 243 East Forty-fifth Street, while crossing Second Avenue at Forty-fifth Street last night was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Edward F. Dunn of 102 West 103d Street. Dr. Mulligan of Flower Hospital said the boy had a possible fracture of the pelvis and took him home.

Dead Girl Identified.

The body of the fifteen-year-old girl who was killed on Tuesday morning at Third Avenue and 150th Street by an automobile which did not stop, was identified at the Morgue last night as that of Rebecca Frosch, 15 years old, of 526 St. Paul's Place, The Bronx. The identification was made by the girl's father, Frank Frosch of the same address, who said his daughter had been employed in a candy store at Third Avenue and 149th Street.

Alexander Banfreth, 8, of 88 Catharine Street, fell off the rear of an auto truck at Catharine and Cherry Streets into the path of an automobile driven by Alexander Bonbolsi of 33 Great Jones Street and was run over. Bonbolsi took him to Volunteer Hospital, where it was said he had suffered internal injuries.

Louis Philips, 3, of 8 Crosby Street, was knocked down by an automobile operated by Thomas Moody of 81 Jackson Street, at Crosby and Broome Streets. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital suffering from internal injuries.

NEW MARKET, N. J., Sept. 1.—Elias Richards, 19 years old of this place, was killed early today when the automobile he was driving for the C. E. Kelly Company, was struck by a passing train at the Prospect Avenue crossing of the Lehigh Railroad. The train was going about sixty miles an hour. The youth was thrown onto the pilot of the engine and the automobile was demolished.

THREAT TO GEORGE V. HERE

Made at an Excited Bronx Meeting of Sympathizers with MacSwiney.

More than 5,000 Irishmen and women crowded into Ebling's Casino, St. Ann's Avenue and 156th Street, last night at a meeting to protest against the continued imprisonment of Terence MacSwiney, the Irish hunger striker. As many more were turned away from the hall by the police.

"MacSwiney's last words to me as I left him there in Brixton Prison were, 'Give my regards to Peter (his brother here) and the boys in New York,'" said James Connolly, a resident of the Bronx, who was one of the speakers. "Tell them in New York that they will never be able to crush the Irish Republic.'

"Irishmen, if MacSwiney dies, King George will—" shouted Connolly, the anticipating shouts of the audience drowning out the last word of his sentence.

Dudley Field Malone, the next speaker, declared that every effort should be made to bring "action" into the fight for Ireland's cause.

Jeremiah O'Leary related the incidents leading up to the Mannix and MacSwiney affairs and declared he had been fighting for free speech since 1913.

May Let Japanese Here Be Naturalized And End Immigration to Settle Problem

HONOLULU, Aug. 31 (Associated Press).—Negotiations between Secretary of State Colby and Ambassador Shidehara at Washington have reached a solution of the Japanese immigration problem in the United States, according to a Tokio dispatch to Nippu Jiji, a Japanese paper here, giving its authority as the Kokumin Shinbun, a Tokio newspaper which credited the report to a reliable source.

According to this report the United States will permit all Japanese now in the United States to become naturalized and Japan will prevent further emigration to the United States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Press reports from Tokio via Honolulu that an agreement had been reached here on the Japanese immigration question apparently are premature.

Officials at the State Department said today that the discussions in progress between Secretary Colby and Ambassador Shidehara of Japan had not passed the stage of informal conversations for the purpose of reaching an agreement on principle, although Mr. Colby last week indicated that he regarded the progress made as favorable.

Ways and means to make such an agreement effective will have to be worked out after it has been reached, officials added.

SUFFRAGE TANGLES DON'T WORRY COLBY

He Says Action of Tennessee House Has No Bearing on His Proclamation.

WOMAN'S PARTY CONFIDENT

Will Make No Active Campaign to Obtain Ratification by Thirty-seventh State.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Secretary Colby intimated today that he was not worried over the action of the Tennessee Legislature in the matter of the Federal woman suffrage amendment.

When asked whether the course taken by the Legislature would affect his action in issuing a proclamation that the Nineteenth Amendment had been ratified, Mr. Colby replied that the proceedings in the Tennessee House raised a question with which the State Department was not primarily concerned. He explained that the duties of the State Department in the matter were ministerial and not judicial, and that he had proceeded on the facts set forth in the record submitted by the Governor of Tennessee and then issued the proclamation that thirty-six States had ratified the amendment.

After a long-distance telephone conversation today with Alice Paul, Chairman of the National Woman's Party, now in New York City, it was announced at the headquarters of the Woman's Party that so secure is the legality of the ratification of the adoption of the suffrage amendment by thirty-six States and of Secretary Colby's proclamation that no active campaign for a thirty-seventh State is planned." This applied, it was explained, even to the case of Connecticut and Alabama, where special sessions have been called for Sept. 14.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (Associated Press).—An application filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court at the instance of the National Constitutional League, seeking to restrain Secretary Colby from proclaiming ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment, was dismissed today on motion of the applicants. The suit was filed after the Tennessee Lower House had voted for ratification. Counsel for the league, Alfred D. Smith, said the previous similar action, filed before the Tennessee House voted and pending on appeal, raised the point sufficiently.

The Appellate Court would be asked, he said, to refer the action to the Supreme Court of the United States in order that final decision might be had with as little delay as possible.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—By a vote of 17 to 8 the Tennessee Senate today in effect refused to join with the House in an attempted reversal of ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment.

The Senate's vote was recorded in favor of a motion to return to the House the latter's message announcing that it had voted non-concur, 47 to 24, in the Senate's adoption of the ratification resolution, and had expunged from its record the concurring vote of Aug. 21.

The motion for the return of the House message as passed carried an explanation that the ratification resolution has been taken out of the Senate's hands, and therefore no further jurisdiction over it was possessed by the Senate. A disclaimer also was made of any intention of discourtesy.

Reports were current at the Capitol tonight that the anti-suffrage majority of the House, incensed at the Senate's action, would attempt the adoption tomorrow of a resolution officially notifying Governor Roberts of its action in voting not to concur in the Senate in the ratification. Several anti-suffrage House members suggested that the majority vote against all Senate bills, while others favored an immediate sine die adjournment.

Governor Roberts said today that he had not been "officially advised" of the action of the House, and that he could not say what he would do until he had been so informed.

WIDOW TELLS OF RUM DEALS

Mrs. Eckert Said to Have Named Men Associated with Husband.

Mrs. Florence Eckert, widow of Robert Eckert, head of a band of bootleggers who was murdered two weeks ago on Staten Island, yesterday was reported to have revealed to Alfred V. Norton, Chief Assistant District Attorney of Richmond County, the relations of her husband and members of his band with politicians anad others on Staten Island in the contraband liquor traffic.

Norton is said to have sent a copy of the statement to LeRoy W. Ross, United States Attorney for the Eastern District.

The names of the men said to have been mentioned by Mrs. Eckert were not made public. Mrs. Eckert is reported to have told Mr. Norton that she obtained the information from her husband.

Mr. Ross will resume his inquiry into the bootlegging allegations this morning. He has issued subpoenas for several Staten Islanders to appear before him. It was reported that a high official is among them. William F. McGuire and James Weldon, prohibition enforcement agents, who were examined by District Attorney Maloy of Richmond County last week, probably will be questioned by Mr. Ross today.

It was admitted that the murder investigation virtually was at a standstill, but detectives assigned to the case were said to have received information in the preceding twenty-four hours which they believed would eventually unravel the mystery.

Mrs. Margaret Eckert of Brooklyn, mother of the slain bootlegger, will fight for his estate. She filed a caveat in the Surrogate's Court at Newark yesterday to prevent Eckert's widow from obtaining letters of administration.

ROB. HARRON SHOT AS HIS PISTOL FALLS

Film Star in Critical Condition as Result of Accidental Wound.

FACES SULLIVAN ACT CHARGE

He Is Moved Into Prison Ward at Bellevue After Policeman Places Him Under Arrest.

Robert Harron, best known to moving picture fame as the hero in "Hearts of the World" and now starring in his own pictures, the Robert Harron Productions, shot himself accidentally early yesterday morning in his room at the Hotel Seymour and is in a critical condition in Bellevue Hospital.

Harron, who is twenty-nine years old and unmarried, and whose good looks as depicted on the screen have evoked maidenly sighs the world over, was fighting hard for life when his managers got a late report from the hospital, and, though he had lost much blood, they entertained some hope of his recovery.

If he gets well, he will have to face a charge of violating the Sullivan law for, as soon as he had received first aid, Patrolman Yarcznski placed him under formal arrest and he was moved to the prison ward at the hospital. A uniformed man, hurried from Mamaroneck when he heard of his nephew's misfortune. He went to the police station and the hotel for details of the accident and then hurried to Bellevue to be with the young star. At the station he said he would remain there to look after the young man's interests and to furnish bail for him if he should be able to leave the hospital.

The police did not learn how Harron happened to have a pistol without a permit, but the supposition arose that he probably had used it at one time or another in some of the many pictures in which he has appeared. He became a screen favorite at 14, while he was an office boy in the office of D. W. Griffith. Griffith saw the possibilities of his appearance and personality and gave him a small part. His success ended his office boy days.

Harron, known among his associates as a quiet, winning, modest young fellow, was a great favorite at the hotel, and the accident caused profound regret there.

He had just dressed, preparing to go to the studio, where he was engaged in acting in "The Brand of Fear," and for some reason not learned lifted some clothes from a trunk. The pistol fell to the floor and exploded, the bullet lodging in his chest.

He telephoned to the office for help and Manager Montgomery hurried to his room on the ninth floor. Harron was smiling and remarked through set teeth:

"I'm in a devil of a fix; I've shot myself."

Montgomery assured him his condition was no joke, but Harron refused to allow an ambulance to be called, insisting upon the summoning of a local physician. Only when no one could not be found immediately did he consent that a call be sent to Police Headquarters for a Bellevue ambulance. Then he demurred at the stretcher and wanted to be taken down stairs in a cab.

Theodore Mitchell of Twenty-eighth Street, Beachhurst, L. I., last night furnished $500 bail in the Night Court before Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham, for the release, as a prisoner in the hospital, of Herron.

ATTACKS OLD THEORY CONCERNING NEW STARS

French Astronomer Thinks Mere Approach of Two Dark Bodies Causes Incandescence.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—The new star which appeared suddenly in the constellation of Cygnus a few days ago is exciting the attention of French astronomers, and yesterday's meeting of the Academy of Science devoted its entire attention to it.

The interest felt is due to the fact that some phenomena which have attended its appearance tend to discredit the theory that new stars are invariably caused by collisions of astral bodies and their consequent combustion. This new star has not, it appears, developed heat enough to support this theory. On Aug. 27 its temperature was only 6,000 degrees, while two days later, although it had diminished considerably in size, it had a temperature of 8,000 degrees. At best this "nova" was a star of only the second magnitude, and now it has sunk to fourth place and seems likely to disappear altogether.

The contrast between its size and the heat generated has led to the conclusion that there was no actual collision in the heavens, and that a theory which has been advanced on former occasions is correct, namely, that combustion was caused by the mere approach to each other of two dark astral bodies. This, it is argued, was sufficient to dislocate the surface of one and give rise to a great outburst of incandescent gas. If the stars had been in collision the outburst of heat would have been greatest at the first moment and would not have increased while the surface decreased.

These conclusions, which were communicated to the Academy by M. Deslandres of the Meudon Observatory are regarded as confirming the theory that conflagrations in the heavens do not necessarily depend upon direct collision.

POLISH NORTH ARMY NEAR GRODNO FORTS

Bolsheviki in the South Driven Out of the Greater Part of Galicia.

SOVIET MAKING THREATS

Savinkoff, Ex-Russian War Minister, Raising Army of Muscovites in Poland to Fight Reds.

WARSAW, Sept. 1.—(Associated Press)—Polish forces advancing toward Grodno have nearly reached the banks of the Neimen River, which flows past Grodno toward the north, according to reports from the northeastern front.

The greater part of Eastern Galicia has been recovered by Polish and Ukranian troops, who are masters of all the left bank of the Dniester River. Pursuit of the Bolshevist forces which appeared along the upper reaches of the Bug River near Sokol continues. In the region of Przemyslany, twenty-five miles southeast of Lemberg, the Poles have scattered Soviet forces that attempted to start an offensive operation.

General Pawlenko's Ukranian columns, which crossed the Dniester River south of the city of Buczacz, have developed their offensive successfully, obliging the Bolsheviki west of the Sereth River to retreat hurriedly in order to avoid being surrounded.

In an official communique issued today the northern wing of the Polish Army is reported to be advancing without resistance. It has captured Grodek, says the statement, taking more than 1,000 prisoners.

A group of Red detachments operating east of Cholm for the purpose of supporting General Budenny's cavalry was repulsed with heavy loss when it attempted to take the aggressive by attacking the Poles in the district between Dubienka and Moniatycze.

General Budenny's forces in the region of Zamosc continue to meet with firm resistance on the part of the Poles, the communication goes on. Although Zamosc has been surrounded by the Bolsheviki, "the brave garrison is defending itself heroically, inflicting heavy losses upon the enemy." A Polish column said to have been proceeding in the direction of Grabowic, has been repulsed after heavy fighting.

The statement declares that General Budenny's activities have been paralyzed by the breaking up of the effective activity on the part of the Polish pursuit group operating in his rear, which succeeded in cutting off a considerable quantity of the enemy's supply trains." In Galicia the situation remains unchanged. Polish cavalry which has occupied Chodorow is in pursuit of the Bolsheviki, who are retreating toward Rohatyn.

A new Russian volunteer army, which is already assuming respectable proportions, is being formed by the Russian National Committee, founded in this city by Boris Savinkoff, Russian War Minister during the Kerensky régime, and M. Robitchev, Social Democratic leader in Russia. M. Savinkoff fought with Polish volunteers during the battle waged along the banks of the Bug River against the Bolshevist forces which attempted to take Warsaw.

The committee's program comprises establishment in Russia of a Republican democratic régime, distribution of land among peasants and wide provincial autonomy.

George Tchitcherin, Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, in a wireless message received today says he is happy to note the Polish Government has declared itself in favor of peace, but threatens a new offensive if the Poles "do not conform their acts to their promises." M. Tchitcherin asserts that the fighting power of the Soviet armies has not diminished in the least.

SEE CHANCE OF RESULT IN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Radek, Acting Unofficially for Soviet, Made Suggestion to Polish Socialists.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Sept. 1.—Returning here, M. Dombski, head of the Polish delegation which met the Russians at Minsk, declares that the last session inspired him with more hope for a favorable outcome of the negotiations soon to be renewed elsewhere than previous assemblies had done.

From reliable sources I learn that certain events more or less behind the scenes and of a highly significant character effected this changed atmosphere. After several futile days there arrived at Minsk Radek, who, without holding a definite office under the Soviet Government, is recognized as the alter ego of Tchitcherin, the Foreign Minister. Radek let it be known that he wished to meet privately the Socialist members of the Polish delegation, who agreed, after having obtained the assent of their chief.

To them Radek said in effect:

"The Soviet genuinely wishes to conclude peace with Poland. Our difficulty is this, that because of your associations with Wrangel we can't feel sure that you will be able to keep your word. France has recognized Wrangel, and we are afraid that France might urge you into another war. If you can give us some guarantee that some day you won't march with France against us, then we are willing to make peace on the fundamental principles which your Government suggests."

The Polish Socialists were convinced that the declaration was sincere, and it was really this intervention which prevented a complete breaking off of the peace negotiations.

Fear of Wrangel's continued success is what is urging the Bolshevist Government along the path of peace with Poland. Informants lately in touch with Moscow assert that Wrangel's offensive is recognized as constituting the most serious threat which Soviet Russia has yet had to meet, coming, as it does, at a time when the Western army is tied down. Hence the tempered mood of the Bolsheviki in dealing with the Poles, though they are still desirous to resume negotiations at Reval instead of at Riga.

It understand that the Polish Government has made it quite clear to their opponents that the new conference must begin with a clean slate; in other words, that the famous fourteen points of the Bolsheviki now have not, so to speak, any point.

Further, the Polish Government is willing to regard the so-called Curzon line as the starting point for discussion, though everybody wants some sort of modifications. These are not serious, except in one instance.

All political parties are united in demanding Vilna, to which Lithuania, they aver, has no right. This problem is likely to prove the great stumbling block to the negotiations, as Vilna is allotted to Lithuania in the treaty concluded between that State and Soviet Russia.

LITHUANIANS END PARLEY.

Say Polish Demands Would Violate Treaty Made with Soviet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 1.—A dispatch from Kovno says the negotiations with the Polish staff officers over the matters in dispute between Poland and Lithuania have been broken off, the Lithuanians having considered continued discussion useless in view of the fact that they consider the Polish demands unreasonable.

The Poles demand the use of the railway lines Lydo-Molodestno and Grodno-Vilna, as also the right of provisional occupation of Vilna, all being in conflict with the Russian-Lithuanian peace treaty.

Lloyd George Decides Not to Meet Prince Feisal

LUCERNE, Sept. 1.—David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, has decided not to receive Prince Feisal, King of Syria, who left Milan today for Como, Switzerland. The Prince will not come to Lucerne.

It is understood Mr. Lloyd George's decision was taken in order not to hurt France's feelings. President Motta of Switzerland, who conferred today with Mr. Lloyd George, said the principal question discussed was the League of Nations.

The British Premier's health has been greatly benefited by his rest in Switzerland. Yesterday, accompanied by his son, the Premier walked down Rigi Peak. The trip occupied two hours.

SOVIET RULE SPREADS IN MILAN FACTORIES

Revolutionary Flag Now Flies from 280 Plants—Government Still Keeps Hands Off.

MILAN, Sept. 1.—Two important decisions were taken today respecting the metal workers agitation. On the one hand the Government intends to maintain for the present its attitude of strict neutrality. On the other hand metal workers' union has given orders to confine the seizure of factories to the Milan district.

The number of industrial establishments in the city actually in undisputed possession by force of the wage earning staffs reaches 280. From the roofs and tall chimney of the Breda Foundries, Stigles Factories, Isotto-Franschca Motor Works and most of the larger places of industry revolutionary flags are flying.

The gates and walls are covered with portraits of Lenin and emblems of the Soviet.

Thousands of beds have been set up under the workshops and a food commission has been appointed to keep inmates amply supplied with provisions. These commissions take good care to restrict wine rations so to prevent squabbling and violence. Nobody is allowed entrance unless provided with a special permit signed by the committees.

Watchmen are stationed at the highest vantage points of factories, while sentinels are posted along the boundary walls and the corners of neighboring roads and are in their turn visited by inspectors during the day and night, when rockets and fires are used for signaling between one factory and another.

The departmental foremen and clerical staffs continue at their posts and work is everywhere proceeding.

The only untoward event thus far has been a murderous attack on the General Manager of the Breda Works.

The Workers' Syndicate denies a report that money safes have been tampered with, though there has been momentary borrowing from the unemployment and pension funds of several firms for food purchases.

LOST ALL ILLUSIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Dittmann, German Socialist Leader, Tells of Plight of Teuton Colony There.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—The Independent Socialist Party tomorrow will hear the report of its delegation to the Communist Congress, which recently took place in Moscow, and decide whether the Bolshevist faith shall be accepted or rejected by its members.

If the Bolshevist and Lenin dictates are approved by the meeting it will mean the disruption of the Independent Party, most of whom will then probably join the Communist Party or form a new party in conjunction with the Communists, while the minority would remain under the leadership of the former Reichstag members, Dittmann and Ledebour.

Dittmann, who was with the delegation in Moscow, makes no secret of his great disillusion and disappointment with Bolshevism, which, according to his idea, is no form of government at all and no good to anybody. Among other things Dittmann in his report relates his visit to the German colony numbering 120 in Kolomna, near Moscow, where they recently emigrated.

"Almost without exception they desired to return to Germany immediately," he says, "but the Russian Government refused permission. Their disillusion is complete. In Germany Russian agents told them each would have his own little workshop in his own little house, but at Kolomna there are no little houses and anybody who desires one has got to build his own hut himself.

"There is a big factory which formerly employed 17,000, but now has only 5,000 hands. The buildings are in an extremely unhealthy and loathsome condition and many immigrants are sick with dysentery or lung trouble. All are starving."

"The bread looks like peat and is indigestible. What is 11,000 or 12,000 rubles monthly wages if one pound of butter costs 3,500 roubles and all other victuals in proportion?"

Dittmann's report is printed in book form and has been circulated among the members of the Independent Socialist Party.

MILUKOFF TO JOIN WRANGEL.

Ex-Foreign Minister of Russia to be Member of Crimean Government.

PARIS, Sept. 1 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Professor Paul N. Milukoff, former Foreign Minister of Russia, has left for the Crimea, where he will take an important position in the government of General Wrangel.

Professor Milukoff accepted the position on the express invitation of General Wrangel.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31 (Associated Press).—The retreat of General Wrangel, head of the southern anti-Bolshivist forces, along the Dnieper is explained here by his lack of heavy artillery. The Soviet troops have reached Novo Alexievka and cut the railway, threatening General Wrangel's communications in Taurida Province.

General Wrangel has begun a counter-attack against the Soviet centre. One of his columns landed on the Sea of Azov, but was repulsed, according to advices received here.

Rail Shares Point Way for Recovery of Industrial Issues —Call Money Eases.

The strength of railroad shares in yesterday's dealings was sufficient to turn the industrial stock list from an unsteady position to one of firmness in the last hour of business. The upturn occurred under a volume of trading somewhat larger than the day before and considerably in excess of the indifferent markets of last week. Union Pacific recovered its quarterly dividend, the payment being deducted from the quotation at the start, and strong gains were recorded by Great Northern preferred, Lackawanna, Reading, Southern Pacific, New York Central and others of the more prominent group, the advances in some cases running well in excess of a point. There appeared, however, to be more insistent speculation among the non-dividend paying shares, and railroad bonds were in substantial demand.

The general improvement of the afternoon reflected a rather unexpected easement of the call money rate from 8 to 7 per cent., and the market tone of the entire session appeared to be stiffened by observations on credit conditions coming from the Federal Reserve Board and local banks. The Reserve Board, in its monthly business survey, detected signs of improvement, with indications that the transition period from indifferent to better business was in sight. The banks which issue monthly discussion of credit and business felt that the Autumn demands would be met without undue strain, which was in line with suggestions from less important sources of late, but of influence upon sentiment because of the confirmatory matter contained. The easement of the demand loan rate occurred at a time when the Street had thought the month end shifting of funds, incident to corporation payments, might bring a rate as high, at least, as any seen in the last fortnight. But it was evident that the banks had made full preparation for the calls upon them, and offerings of call money were considerably greater than borrowers needed.

Among the stocks which failed to profit much from the broad advance elsewhere were motor issues and shares allied with them. Steel trade reviews of the week note that steel makers serving the automobile trade are adjusting their production to other business, with the result of some irregularity of output. The steel industry is finding transportation conditions growing better, which had aided in reduction of accumulations of finished materials and in a rather freer movement of raw materials and fuel than a month ago. The process of distributing new freight charges over steel prices had evidently not made much progress, with the result of a quiet state of new buying. The Iron Trade Review states that credits connected with purchases of steel are receiving close scrutiny, which also has influence in retarding forward contracts.

The cotton market disclosed in its movement of the day that actual crop considerations are having less influence upon prices than reports of consumption at home and abroad. The Government's report on the growing crop yesterday showed a condition of 67½ per cent., which was more bullish than the composite trade opinion had made it in advance, yet there was a heavy decline of quotations in the futures market in the afternoon. The Federal percentage was fully 5 per cent. lower than the most optimistic printed estimate of the week, and the estimated yield of 12,783,000 bales stood well below the preliminary figures of the trade.

The foreign exchange market was distinctly dull and rates were hardly changed at all from Tuesday's last quotations. The pressure of commercial bills has slackened considerably this week and, according to dealers, speculation appears unwilling to take a chance on possibilities of the next few weeks. It is possible that announcement of terms for the disposal of France's portion of the Anglo-French loan maturity will lead an important influence toward the shaping of exchange movements in succeeding months.

Movie Profits Are $2,204,570.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation for the six months ended June 26 reports net profits of $2,204,570 after Federal taxes. This is equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $8.50 a share on the common stock. In the corresponding period of 1919 net profits were $1,033,253. The gross income for the first six months of this year was $15,890,714, as compared with $13,073,937 during the first half of 1919.

STANDARD OIL HITCH-MELON CUTTING OFF

SHARES MAY BE SUBDIVIDED

Majority of Stockholders Fail to Appear in Person or Proxy at Meeting to Act on Plan.

The 200 per cent. stock dividend decided upon by the Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New York some time ago and which was to have been ratified by the stockholders yesterday, went into the discard when it was announced that the meeting had been abandoned because a full majority of the stockholders had failed to appear in person or by proxy. Word of the hitch was received with some amazement in the financial district where it was taken as a foregone conclusion that the action of Standard Oil Directors would receive the approval of stockholders. It was rumored that the failure in the present instance was due to a difference of opinion between the Rockefeller interests and the Pratt interests as to the advisability of a stock distribution. This, however, could not be confirmed. Inquiry at the offices of the Standard of New York disclosed the fact that no officers were there yesterday afternoon.

One report had it that the stock dividend had been abandoned because of the possibility of such dividends being made the object of an indirect but heavy tax by Congress. Such a tax was talked about shortly after the Supreme Court decision holding that stock dividends were not taxable as income, but took no definite form in legislative channels.

In some quarters it was considered that the stock dividend plan had been abandoned in favor of another plan under which the stock would be subdivided on the basis of four new shares for one old share, the new shares to have a par value of $25, as compared with a present par of $100 a share. It was assumed also that in this case the dividend rate on the subdivided shares would aggregate more than on the present old stock. The capital, however, would not be increased as was proposed in the stock dividend plan. A 200 per cent. stock dividend would have raised the capital of the company from $75,000,000 to $225,000,000.

Insiders in the Standard Oil Company, it was pointed out yesterday, have apparently known for some time that the stock dividend plan would not go through. Following the first announcement of the dividend the stock rose some sixty-five points and afterward eased off with no high degree of activity in the over-the-counter trading. Yesterday morning when word was received that the stockholders had failed to ratify the plan the stock broke sharply, there being practically no demand for the shares around 380. Later in the day there was another pronounced change, the stock moving up to about 385 with no stock offered at that level. This increased belief in the idea that a plan was under consideration for subdividing the shares and would be announced shortly.

During the last two weeks there have been rumors to the effect that the stock dividend would not go through. It was hinted here and there not to be too sure about the dividend, but for the most part the rumors were taken with the proverbial grain of salt since it could not be recalled when a recommendation of a stock dividend by the Directors of a Standard Oil Company had been turned down by the stockholders. It was pointed out that only the defection of large interests could have brought about the present siuation and this was a cause of speculation, since the large interests in Standard Oil companies are usually conversant with the plans before any announcement is made. This intensified the thought that there had been a split between the large interests, but whether before or after the stock dividend was announced some three weeks ago no one was prepared to say.

EASTERN STEEL CO. DIVIDEND

Quarterly Payment on Common Passed, but Preferred Is Declared.

The Eastern Steel Company passed the quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock which would ordinarily have been declared at this time. The last quarterly dividend was paid on July 15 in Liberty Bonds. In announcing the passing of the dividend the company says that although earnings are sufficient to pay the regular quarterly dividend on the common, the money stringency, and larger capital requirements, make it advisable to omit the dividend.

The regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. on the first and second preferred were declared. They are payable Sept. 15 to stock of record Sept. 1

D., L. & W. TO DISPOSE OF PART OF SURPLUS

Proposal Made to Segregate the Coal and Rail Properties— $64,875,729 Involved.

ANNOUNCEMENT THIS MONTH

New Move Explains Market Action of Stock, Which Has Advanced Materially.

Plans are under discussion for a distribution among stockholders of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad of a portion of the company's $64,875,729 surplus, and a definite public announcement of the final plan may be made before the end of this month, according to information obtained in authoritative quarters yesterday. It is understood that proposals have been made for a segregation of the coal and railroad properties and a separation of the management thereof which would embrace the formation of a coal operating company. This, however, is opposed in some quarters, as the present operation of the properties is within the law and results in economies of operation which would be lacking were the properties separated further.

A dispatch from Philadelphia which was circulated widely through the financial district yesterday to the effect that a new coal operating company was to be formed with a capital of $42,277,000, which is the outstanding capital of the railroad, the capital stock to be distributed to present D., L. & W. stockholders as a 100 per cent. stock dividend, was officially denied for the company by William S. Jenney, General Counsel and Vice President. He said that no such plan had been adopted and that nothing of the kind had been submitted to the Board of Directors.

It has been evident for some time in the financial district that something has been developing in Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the market action of the stock, which has advanced materially, being the outstanding indication. Speculation has been active as to the scope of the proposals which the Board of Directors would make to shareholders, but nothing definite has been forthcoming until now.

The date upon which the new plan will be announced has not been set, but it is believed that it will come within the next three or four weeks.

FRISCO RAILWAY REPORTS A GAIN

Pro Forma Account Shows Gross Corporate Income of $13,939,762 for 1919.

FIXED INTEREST INCREASES

Total Current Liabilities Also Are Greater, as Are the Total Operating Expenses.

The annual report of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company and subsidiary lines of last year shows in a pro forma income account a gross corporate income of $13,939,762 as compared with $13,698,414 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1918. Total deductions from income were $758,574 as compared with $637,397 in the preceding year, leaving a balance available for interest of $13,181,188 as compared with $13,011,017. There was an increase in interest paid on fixed charge obligations from $8,448,887 to $8,894,825 which served to show a debit after the payment of other interest charges amounting to $152,052 as compared with a surplus in 1918 of $125,587.

The balance sheet of the company as of Dec. 31, 1919, showed an increase in investment in road and equipment from $339,210,389 to $342,085,780, while total current assets increased to $18,531,291 from $10,850,976 in 1918. Total current liabilities were $10,829,767 as compared with $9,594,057 in the year before.

The consolidated income account of the company, also pro forma by reason of the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission had not finally certified the road's compensation, showed that under Government control total operating revenues increased 13.4 per cent. last year to $82,202,919, while net operating revenue increased 23.6 per cent. to $18,133,295 from $14,668,004 in 1918. Operating income was shown to have been $15,317,477 as compared with $11,831,848, while the available balance increased 32.9 per cent. to $14,267,109. This was $5,872,285 in excess of the company's fixed charges and $933,869 in excess of all charges including interest on both classes of income bonds.

Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation

We have been consistent believers in the Sinclair Oil Corporation since its formation in 1916, and our confidence in the property increases steadily. The Corporation was formed on lines which seemed to us destined to bring about a great success under wise and skilful management.

It gives us pleasure to express the opinion that the time has come when we can discuss actual accomplishments by the Sinclair Company. The turn in the tide came recently when the statement of earnings for the six months ending June 30, 1920, was published. This shows a steady upward progress. During the period of preparation and formation, beginning with 1916, the Company has earned (after deducting interest and discount and Federal taxes) income available for surplus and reserve of $71,330,963.28. In 1919 the Company had an income available for surplus and reserve of $19,601,235.82 and for the six months ending June 30, 1920, this amount was $15,542,676.65, or at the rate of practically $31,000,000 for the year. Its gross earnings for six months of 1920 were about $66,000,000, against $76,000,000 for the entire year of 1919.

The rapid growth in earnings was due to the money which has been invested in the property beginning with the programme of extensive expansion and improvement started in 1919. Much more than $100,000,000 has been expended in various directions since that time—the acquisition of new properties, the extension of its fine pipe line system, the enlargement of the refineries and other manufacturing plants, the increase in the number of tank cars for distributing the products, the extension of the system of distributing and filling stations in the territory served by its refineries, the installations in Mexico, Cuba and along the Atlantic Coast for the handling of fuel oil and the construction of tank ships and barges for the transportation of oil in foreign and domestic service.

The money expended in the latter part of 1919 and the early part of 1920 is thus shown in the increase in earnings from a yearly rate of about $22,000,000 to a yearly rate of about $31,000,000. The reports of the Company, coming in from month to month, indicate in our opinion that the earnings for the second half of this year will be considerably in excess of those for the first half. For instance, it is shown that in July, 1920, the pipe line handled and delivered 1,236,591 barrels, which was exclusive of the crude oil delivered to the refineries at Houston, Texas; New Orleans, Louisiana; and Wellsville, New York. In July, 1920, it manufactured 1,264,133 gallons of casing-head gasoline, against 834,287 gallons in July, 1919. The figures for its lubricating oil business for the first six months of 1920 show an increase of more than 200% in the sales of motor oil and more than 60% in the sales of other lubricants. These instances are taken at random from the reports of progress issued by the Sinclair Company.

Thus the great Sinclair machinery, which has been prepared so carefully, has begun to operate with financial results which will be more favorably revealed each succeeding month—and especially after the new tank ships which the Company has under construction are put in operation this Fall and next Winter. We feel confident that the earnings of 1921 will show an even larger increase over 1920 than 1920 is showing over 1919.

Sinclair has now about 20,000 stockholders and the largest and smallest alike seem to be holding on to their securities because they feel that the Company will be paying dividends next year. The earnings for the first half of 1920 were $4.13 a share in the common stock, or at the rate of $8.26 for the year. There are now outstanding 3,757,593 shares of common stock. At the rate at which it is selling in the stock market today, the market value of the property is about $100,000,000. The assets of the Company as of December 31, 1919, if liquidated and applied to the common stock, would represent a net value of $55.41 per share.

In this period of readjustment it seems that there are three industries that are measureably free of the cuts which must take place in costs of production. These are petroleum, steel and building materials. But petroleum seems to be entirely free of this necessity for readjustment. It is the industry in which the labor cost is the lowest, in which the demand for its products are steadily on the increase and in which its methods of transportation, cash on delivery and freedom of operation places it in a class by itself.

In its issue of August 18, the "National Petroleum News" printed an article of comparison of the business of nine companies in the United States engaged in the industry and it placed the Sinclair Consolidated Company third in rank among the large corporations. It gave total assets of the first three in the list as follows:

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey	$353,092,511
Standard Oil Company of New York	299,592,590
Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation	265,380,114

We are prepared to execute orders for the purchase of the stock of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation for cash or "on margin."

SCARCITY OF LABOR AND GOODS IS OVER

Price Level Falling and Pressure Slackens with Increase of Unemployment.

LONG DEPRESSION UNLIKELY

Plenty of Work in Arrears, Says National City Bank, but Wage Rises Are Untimely.

The September letter of the National City Bank takes a hopeful view of the future business condition of the country and expresses the opinion that a prolonged depression is improbable. The letter reads in part:

"The industrial field over the general trend of prices is downward, and the pressure is slackening with an increase of unemployment. An abundance of labor was available for the harvest, and it is probable that some of the labor which has been attracted from the farms during the last five years will now return and remain. The period of acute scarcity both for goods and for labor appears to be over and a competitive situation is developing. It is well that there shall be general recognition of the fact that the upward movement has run its course and that further wage and price advances are untimely.

"It does not necessarily follow, however, that the very pessimistic prognostications are justified. It was a mistake when the war ended to think that an immediate readjustment upon a lower level of values would be effected; there was a great shortage of goods and a backed-up demand for labor which promptly absorbed all that was released from the armies and war industries. Hence the quick revival of business and the rise of wages and prices in 1919. That situation was as abnormal and as temporary in character as the industrial situation during the war. It is now showing numerous signs of relaxation, but it may be as great a mistake now as in the early months of 1919 to think that a period of general and prolonged depression is at hand. There still is a great amount of work in arrears, and an imperative need for construction work and the production of goods to satisfy the wants of our people as well as of the rest of the world."

City of Norfolk, Va.

One Year 6% Bonds

Dated September 1, 1920. Due September 1, 1921. Principal and semi-annual interest payable in New York City. Coupon bonds with privilege of registration in denomination of $1,000.

Exempt from the Federal Income Tax

The City of Norfolk is one of the most important seaports on the Atlantic Coast, it being officially stated that during the past year the tonnage of its harbor was second only to that of New York and valued at over Four Billion Dollars, exclusive of the tonnage carried by transports, battleships and other government vessels. The City is the business center for a population aggregating 675,000.

The Charter of Norfolk imposes most conservative restrictions on the financial management of the city, the debt comparing favorably with other large cities.

It is officially stated the City has paid promptly, principal and interest, on all of its bonded indebtedness from the year of its settlement, 1680.

CROP NEWS BULLISH BUT COTTON BREAKS

Local and Southern Selling Causes Net Declines of 102 to 163 Points.

SPOT PRICE DROPS TO 30.25

Government Reports Condition as 67.5% and Indicates 12,783,000 Bale Yield.

The Government's report on crop condition yesterday had rather surprising results in the futures market, for an admittedly bullish statement was followed shortly by a sharp decline of quotations. The market, which had scored declines running from 60 to 70 points before the Federal report appeared, bulged 80 to 100 points from the minimum levels immediately afterward and then turned downward with an insistence that disclosed heavy pressure from local and Southern interests. The net decline of the October option was 163 points, December 131, January 135, March 132, May 105 and July 102 points.

The Government reported a condition of 67.5 per cent. of normal and an indicated crop of 12,783,000 bales. The day before the market consensus called for a condition of slightly more than 69 per cent. and a probable yield of 13,000,000 bales. The most optimistic prediction issued in print during the week suggested 72.6 per cent. and a return of more than 14,000,000 bales. A month ago the Government statement made the condition 74.1 per cent. and the yield forecast was 12,519,000 bales. The crop as of Aug. 25, the date of the latest survey, was somewhat less favorably situated than the average had been for the season during the last ten years, this figure being 68.2 per cent.

The trend of prices and the substantial flow of selling orders indicated that outside influences were more potent than probabilities in respect to the year's yield. Exports since Aug. 1 have been less than one-third those of the same period last year and the trade at home and in Europe has been decidedly unsettled over the consumption of textile goods for the last two months. Speculation as well as purchases for manufacture have been directed by thought of a demand unable to absorb the year's output and the result has been a fall of more than 10 centh a pound from maximum levels of the year.

FARMERS PLAN WHEAT POOL

Aim at Co-operative Control of Marketing—Question Candidates.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 1.—Formation of a gigantic wheat pool in the United States, whereby the farmers will virtually control the marketing and selling of grain, is one of the more important subjects to be planned by farmers who are here attending a three-day session of the National Board of Farm Organizations. More than 150 farmers, representing, it was said, practically every agricultural State in the union, are in attendance.

The Board of Farm Organizations now controls 1,500 grain elevators in the country, and does a yearly co-operative farm business of $2,000,000,000, according to officials.

Their plans are to take over, or build, grain elevators at every point where wheat is shipped. It will be possible, it was said, to control 40 per cent. of the country's wheat output.

"Profits will be stabilized and prices to the consumer greatly reduced," said Charles S. Barrett of Union City, Ga., President of the organization.

E. M. Pollard of Nebraska, former Congressman, is Chairman of a committee working out plans for the wheat pool. The committee is to report tomorrow evening.

On Friday morning Governor Cox will be interrogated and asked to fill out a special questionnaire. The same afternoon the farmers will go to Marion and present the same questionnaire to Senator Harding.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Harris, Forbes & Co. are offering $800,000 City of Norfolk, Va., one year 6 per cent. bonds, due Sept. 1, 1921, at 99¼ and interest, yielding over 6% per cent. The bonds are exempt from the Federal income tax.

Prince & Whitely announce the opening of a bond department to deal in high-grade issues of municipalities, railroads, corporations and foreign governments.

An increase of the present capital stock of the Grape Ola Products Corporation to an amount not exceeding 750,000 shares, common stock, with a par value of $10 per share, and 1,175,000 shares of preferred stock, with a par value of $10 per share, will be voted upon at a special stockholders' meeting, Sept. 7.

Walter S. Griffith, who has been Cashier of the Columbia Bank for thirty years, resigned yesterday and was succeeded by Guernsey R. Jewett, formerly in charge of the New York office of the State Banking Department. Employes of the bank presented Mr. Griffith with a loving cup.

12,783,000 BALES, AUGUST COTTON SIGN

But Crop Is Some Weeks Late, as Boll Weevil Danger Grows.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Continued improvement in the cotton crop through August, amounting to an increase of more than a quarter of a million bales in the month, was announced today by the Department of Agriculture in its forecast of a total production of 12,783,000 bales, based on Aug. 25 conditions, which were figured as 67.5 of normal.

Remarkable growth took place during the month, officials said, but the crop is from two to three weeks late, and a late Fall is necessary for favorable termination. Boll weevil damage will be greater than usual, they said.

Production was forecast last month at 12,519,000 bales, and the condition of the crop July 25 as 74.1 per cent., while the forecast made in July was 11,450,000 bales, based on a condition of 70.7 on June 25. Last year's production was 11,239,755 bales, and the condition of the crop on Aug. 25 a year ago was 61.4. The ten-year average condition on Aug. 25 is 68.2.

The condition of the crop this year on Aug. 25 by States was:

Virginia	81	Texas	67
North Carolina	79	Arkansas	75
South Carolina	71	Tennessee	75
Georgia	58	Missouri	83
Florida	57	Oklahoma	84
Alabama	58	California	80

SWISS MAY ASK NEW LOAN.

National Finances Disorderd by the Money Exchange Situation.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 1.—Owing to conditions caused by the war Swiss finances have become so much deranged that the Government has just called a financial commission of forty experts to consider the best method of averting a financial crisis.

Because of the high value of the Swiss franc and low value of the money of all the neighboring countries Switzerland cannot sell her products and many leading industries are seriously crippled. In the watch industry the factories are working only three or four days weekly or are obliged to close altogether. Many watch factories in the Jura have transferred their machinery to France because they are unable to export watches thither and some factories have been purchased by New York firms.

The hotel industry naturally is also seriously affected, because foreign tourists, except American, cannot afford the loss of exchange which they must undergo in Switzerland.

Moreover the Federal Government budget is likely to be 150,000,000 francs overdrawn during the next few years, besides which all cantonal budgets show balances on the wrong side.

To meet this deficit the financial expert commissions now sitting recommend a state tobacco monopoly and an increase in the tobacco taxes and also extension of the Federal alcohol monopoly and increased taxes on alcoholic drinks.

In banking circles here it is declared that unless exchange soon becomes more normal Switzerland will be obliged to raise another loan in the United States.

WHEAT MARKET FIRM.

Good Export Demand Causes Good Advance in Prices.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Considerable firmness resulted in the wheat market today from hope of a good export demand. Notice was taken, too, of assertions that a holding attitude had become widespread among farmers. Opening quotations, which ranged from ¼c. off to 1¼c. advance, with December $2.34 to $2.34½ and March $2.31½ were followed by a moderate general setback and then by a rally to slightly above yesterday's finish.

ORGANIZATION!

MANY advertisers lose sight of one important fact: that advertising itself is only one part of the work to secure new accounts. No matter how many inquiries or new accounts may be produced by the publicity, there is much loss and waste unless the advertisers' organization does its share.

You must, in actual performance, accomplish those things which are promised in your copy. Your organization must have the capacity to do what it undertakes. Your statistical department must be ever alive to the opportunities that present themselves to draw the customer closer. You must plan and conduct a systematic follow-up of the inquiries received and accounts secured.

Let us consult with you. We shall be glad to show just how we can add greater force to your advertising. No obligation.

HUERTA ADDRESSES MEXICAN CONGRESS

Requests Enactment of Progressive Measures and New Curb on President's Power.

WOULD REALLOT ALL LANDS

Labor Department and Woman Suffrage Also Suggested—Fear Bandit Zamora Killed Captives.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1 (Associated Press).—Provisional President de la Huerta tonight delivered his message to the Twenty-ninth Congress, which was installed Tuesday evening.

The message treated briefly with the international relations of Mexico. It reviewed the recent movement which resulted in the downfall of the Carranza Government, and also the aims of the present administration.

New legislation suggested for enactment includes increasing the responsibility of the President and the Ministry, and adding to the list of impeachable offenses the misappropriation of national funds.

Other legislation requested includes the formation of a Department of Labor and Sunday rest for workmen.

The reallotment of land throughout the republic and votes for women also were suggested.

The status of the petroleum legislation controversy was treated in general terms.

General Manuel Garcia Vigil, leader of the Liberal Constitntional Party, (Obregonistas), was elected President of the Chamber of Deputies, and Carlos B. Zetina, President of the Senate. General Vigil is one of the strongest supporters of General Alvaro Obregon, candidate for the Presidency of the republic, elections for which are to be held next Sunday.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—Complete lack of information relative to the whereabouts of "Sandy" Gardiner, a United States citizen, and W. B. Johnson, a British subject, who were kidnapped more than a week ago by Pedro Zamora, the Jalisco bandit, gives rise to fears that both may have been executed by the outlaw.

The faint hope that the prisoners made their escape during the recent fight at Rancho Dividero between the bandits and Government troops is waning with the failure to receive tidings from them or from their released companions.

REPORT MEXICAN TAX ON MISLEADING BASIS

Information to State Department Shows Oil Levy to be Nearer 25 Than 10 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Report from Mexico City that American oil companies had paid the export tax of 10 per cent. for the May-June bimestre has brought to the attention of the State Department the entire matter of export taxes imposed by the Mexican Government, a question that has been carefully studied by experts in the department.

Certain incongruities have been disclosed by evidence in the possession of the department, it was said today, which indicate that while Mexican Government officials say they have levied only a 10 per cent. export tax in reality it amounts to from 25 to 35 per cent.

The Mexican Government at present fixes a valuation of $1.20 a barrel in Tampico, upon which it levies the 10 per cent. export tax. However the average price as reported officially to the State Department, received by the principal American companies exporting fuel oil in the May-June period was forty-nine cents a barrel. Thus the twelve cents tax works out to approximately 25 per cent., and not the nominal 10 per cents of the Mexican Government's figures.

Similarly with light crude oil, the valuation a barrel is placed at $1.56 and the 10 per cent. tax yields the Mexican Government 15.6 cents a barrel, but the companies received for light crude in the May-June period an average of 60 cents.

The rate on crude gasoline is 6 per cent. for the export tax and on the Mexican Government's valuation of 28.8 cents a gallon, which yielded a tax of 1.7 cents a gallon, but the average price received by the companies was 13.5 cents.

There are similar discrepancies in the other grades of oil produced by the American companies. Word has just been received from Mexico City that the export tax prices may be increased still further.

Bishop Temple Is Ill Here.

The Right Rev. Edward Arthur Temple, Episcopal Bishop of North Texas, is seriously ill in St. Luke's Hospital, suffering from hiccoughs, and can speak only with difficulty. When Bishop Temple arrived Monday from England, where he attended the Lambeth Conference, he was taken at once to the hospital. He made the trip on the Philadelphia, and having become gravely ill while on board, was under the constant care of the ship's surgeon, Dr. W. Moore.

Files Judgment Against Borglum.

A default judgment for $4,057 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, by Mrs. Dorothy Payne Whitney Straight, widow of Willard D. Straight, as the balance due on a note for $5,650, made in 1917. No answer was filed in the case.

NEW EXPRESS RATES ON.

Further Rise to be Asked Now to Meet Wage Award.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 1.—The 12½ per cent. increase in express rates authorized a few days ago by the up-State Public Service Commission went into effect today. The new rates affect everything handled by the American Railway Express Company and other carriers in the State, with the exception of milk and cream and milk products. There is no change in the rates which apply to these commodities.

Rates authorized by the commission may be suspended and investigated within thirty days on complaint, but after thirty days the commission has not the right to suspend.

It is expected that the up-State Public Service Commission will be asked within a short time to grant another increase in express rates to cover the War Labor Board's recent increase in wages granted to express company employes. It could not be ascertained today just when this increase will be asked for, but it is expected within a few days.

GIRL FALLS INTO NIAGARA.

Rescuer, Cut Leaping Gorge Rocks, Draws Her from Whirlpool.

BUFFALO, Sept. 1.—Miss Matilda Schoenert of Philadelphia was saved from certain death in the whirlpool rapids at Niagara Falls this evening by Gordon W. Dunn of Montreal, who was severely cut in making the rescue.

They were among the passengers on a gorge route trolley that was blocked at the edge of the whirlpool rapids by a fallen rock. The passengers got out of the car and were walking on the brink of the river.

The girl fell over the slight embankment some fifteen feet in the river, but caught and clung to a projecting rock.

Dunn saw her instant danger and vaulted the embankment. He landed on a slight beach of rocks and cut himself severely on the hands and head. Getting to his feet, he seized the girl before she was swept away.

Help was quickly at hand and the pair were taken back to Niagara Falls. Dunn, after his cuts were dressed, left the hospital. Miss Schoenert was still suffering from shock.

TELEPHONE CHARGES RISE.

Rates Effective Yesterday Will Net Company About $3,500,000.

The new schedule of exchange rates filed by the New York Telephone Company with the Public Service Commission for the Second District on July 30 became effective yesterday, and the exchange rates all over the State outside of New York City went up yesterday. This will mean an increase of between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 annual revenue to the telephone company, and according to the Public Service Commission an increase to out-of-the-city subscribers of between 20 and 25 per cent. over the rates that maintained until yesterday.

The new rates have already been protested by several up-State cities and the entire question will be investigated by the commission.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW.

Uncertainty as to prices is the big factor in the iron and steel industry, according to the Iron Age, which says of conditions:

Price s and volume of business in iron and steel are still governed by factors out of line with the re djustments going on in other industries. New buying is not large, but consumption is on a scale that promises well. Testimony to a freer movement of steel products from mills is definite.

The effect of so large an advance in freight rates is one of the great uncertainties. That the Steel Corporation will not raise its prices because of the increase in its cost is now more generaly counted on; but a more doubtful factor is the extent in which the railroads will buy if the independent producers' prices are materially above those of the leading interest.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Anxiety of consumers of iron and steel to place orders for shipment months ahead to protect themselves gradually, is passing and purchases are being regulated more and more by specific wants. The greater freedom with which blockaded shipments from mills and furnaces now are moving to destination is relieving the shortage of material and the pressure of spot demands.

SEABOARD TO PAY NOTES.

$750 Cash and Extended Three-Year 7% Note for $250 Offered.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway Company has arranged to take care of its $4,000,000 6 per cent. notes which fall due Sept. 15, according to a letter sent out to noteholders yesterday by S. Davies Warfield, Chairman of the board. On each $1,000 note the company will pay $750 in cash and $250 in an extended note due in three years from Sept. 15, with interest at 7 per cent.

Mr. Warfield's letter states that in making the loan to the road to meet this obligation in part, the Interstate Commerce Commission certified to the Secretary of the Treasury that "the prospective earning power of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company, together with the character and value of the security offered, furnish reasonable assurance of the ability of the railway company to repay the Government loan at maturity." The letter also points out that the loan made by the Government does not mature for fifteen years, with the first payment in eleven years, while the portion of the note extended matures in three years.

It also expresses the belief that when the earnings of the carriers fail to yield the 6 per cent. on aggregate property value prescribed by the Transportation act, the commission will see that the 6 per cent. return is assured by adjusting rates.

GOMPERS ATTACKS 'OPEN SHOP' IDEA

Denounces Stand of the United States Chamber of Commerce as Hostile to Unionism.

CALLS PLATFORM DISHONEST

Federation of Labor Head Accuses Chamber of "Wielding Weapons of Treachery."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. — Samuel Gompers, as President of the American Federation of Labor, announced tonight the attitude of the Executive Council of that organization in challenging the position taken by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States respecting the principles underlying the relation between capital and labor in this country. In his statement, which attacks the stand taken by the chamber, Mr. Gompers asserts that the chamber's approval of the right of open shop operation is a "direct challenge to the trade union movement coming from the heart of America's financial power."

"The Executive Council of the federation," said Mr. Gompers, "had under consideration at its recent meeting certain propositions just adopted by the United States Chamber of Commerce through referendum vote. These propositions were adopted by the chamber in two reports made to the membership by committees of the chamber.

"The first was a report by the Committee on Industrial Relations and is entitled 'Principles Underlying the Employment Relation.' It contains a declaration in favor of the so-called 'open shop' which is in reality a closed shop against union men. Contained in this report are twelve planks. Plank II. is as follows:

The right of open-shop operation, that is, the right of employer and employe to enter into and determine the conditions of employment relations with each other, is an essential part of the individual right of contract possessed by each of the parties.

Calls It Challenge to Trade Unionism.

"This is a direct challenge to the trade union movement coming from the heart of America's financial power. The proposition set forth by the United States Chamber of Commerce in this plank involves no principle. On the contrary, it is merely a statement of what the United States Chamber of Commerce hopes the employers of the United States will do if they have the power to do it. The spirit of it coincides exactly with the spirit of the jungle man who started out to kill.

"The effort to make it appear that the so-called 'open shop' involves the 'individual right of contract' is so far outworn and aged as to be pitiable. The right of an individual to undermine and destroy the standards of living and the industrial safety of his fellow-workers has been so long since exploded as to be unworthy of further discussion. The individual has no such right, and no enlightened society anywhere today recognizes such a right.

"The United States Chamber of Commerce itself discredits its own position in that regard by the next plank in its industrial platform, which is as follows:

All men possess the equal right to associate voluntarily for the accomplishment of lawful purposes by lawful means. The association of men, whether of employers, employes or others, for collective action or dealing confers no authority over, and must not deny the right of, those who do not desire to act or deal with them.

"It is here clearly set forth that the right of voluntary association is a right possessed by all. Of course, the Chamber of Commerce finds it necessary to protect the greed of its membership and the reactionary character of its desires by the insertion of a dubious clause about 'lawful purposes' and 'lawful means,' and by making provision for 'those who do not desire' to associate with their fellows.

Questions Chamber's Motives.

"In plank IV. the United States Chamber of Commerce evidently has something in mind which it does not care to set forth specifically and in plain language. The plank is as follows:

The public welfare, the protection of the individual and sound employment relations require that associations or combinations of employers or employes, or both, must equally be subject to the authority of the State and legally responsible to others for their conduct and that of their agents.

"Of course, all Americans, all organizations of Americans, are equally subject to the laws of the land. What the Chamber of Commerce doubtless means, but does not care to say for reasons of its own, is that it would like to have trade unions subjected to law in a manner not applicable to chambers of commerce and associations of employers. It is obviously seeking to devise some method by which organizations of workers may be disadvantageously subjected to the desires of employers through the machinery of State.

"The entire declaration is a cunning device calculated to create the impression of fairness while wielding the favorite weapons of treachery. It is calculated to banish trade union organizations while creating the impression of acquiescence in the actual desires of the workers.

"The document is a dishonest document. Its dishonesty will be apparent at once to those who read planks II, III and IV, and then who read, in connection with these, planks VIII and IX, which are as follows:

Adequate means satisfactory both to the employer and his employes and voluntarily agreed to by them should be provided for the discussion and adjustment of employment relations and the just and prompt settlement of all disputes that arise in the course of industrial operation.

When, in the establishment or adjustment of employment relations, the employer and his employes do not deal individually, but by mutual consent, such dealing is conducted by either party through representatives, it is proper for the other party to ask that these representatives shall not be chosen or controlled by, or in such dealing in any degree represent, any outside group or interest in the questions at issue.

"The American labor movement has achieved a strength which cannot be destroyed by methods such as those adopted by the United States Chamber of Commerce. It has contributed a record of service to the development of our country which cannot be denied or undermined by the dishonesty and deception of such attacks.

Assails Chamber's Membership.

"That the Chamber of Commerce has gone outside of its legitimate field in launching this attack upon the trade union movement is not surprising, because the membership of the Chamber of Commerce is overwhelmingly an employing membership, a membership long in opposition to the trade union movement, and a membership not above using any instrument with which it thinks the progress of the trade union movement may be impeded and its beneficial work retarded.

"It is to be regretted that there are those in America who care so little for human progress, who have so little of the real idealism of the public, who have so small ability to express themselves in anything but the terms of greed and exploitation, who have so slight regard for the welfare of humanity as to make declarations of this character possible in this period of our history. But so long as there are those to whom greed is a watchword, to whom the principles of liberty and justice make no appeal, who have no shame in the practices of modern barbarism, who know no humility in the face of humanity's suffering, and who have no concept and no longing for a better and brighter day for humanity, to struggle against these forces will be necessary.

"There is no movement in America so well equipped to make this struggle and so filled with willingness to sacrifice for its sake than the American trade union movement which is the American Federation of Labor. It was with all this in view, with a profound sensibility of the crucial nature of the time in which we live, that the Executive Council gave consideration to the action of the employers in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"Whatever sacrifice may be required for the advancement of our people will be made. Whatever sacrifice may be required for the safeguarding of the rights and the liberties of the working people and of the great masses of all our people will be made. Those who believe in liberty never hesitate in its defense."

SHIP BROKERS TO FIGHT SUIT

Lawyer Denies They Will Dissolve Following Indictments.

The Sherman law indictment and civil suit brought against certain members of the Steamship Freight Brokers' Association and the Transatlantic Associated Trade Conference will be contested, declared Louis Hess, counsel for some of the brokers yesterday, in commenting on the report that the brokers were undecided whether to defend the case or to dissolve their organization.

Mr. Hess denied that the defendants would dissolve their association. A meeting of the freight brokers will be held at the Produce Exchange tomorrow, and the entire case will be discussed.

The defendants will be expected to appear on Tuesday in the Federal Court to answer to the indictment charging conspiracy to restrain and monopolize trade and commerce. Bonds for the individual defendants will be fixed at $5,000 each, it was said. The corporations will not be required to furnish bonds.

PLAN BUSINESS DEAL IN AIR.

Coleman du Pont and W. C. Wrigley in Party to Fly Over Long Island.

It was announced yesterday that at 11 o'clock this morning, at the foot of Eightieth Street and the North River, the aeromarine aerial cruiser will start on a flight with William C. Wrigley, Coleman du Pont, Barron G. Collier, B. L. Atwater, Frank V. Baldwin, Clarence P. King, William Brewster, Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati, Ohio, and several others as passengers.

The party will fly over Long Island to look for a manufacturing site and also to decide upon a sub-division of property.

Brooklyn Transactions.

Realty Associates sold to James L. Meeks the lot, 20 by 100, on the south side of Sixty-eighth Street, 78 feet west of Fifth Avenue. The purchaser will improve this lot in connection with the land he now owns fronting on Fifth Avenue.

Meister Builders, Inc., sold to Nicola Lumia the three-family stucco building, on a lot 16.8 by 100, at 301 Seventeenth Street.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Operators Buy $130,000 Weeks Avenue Apartment House.

Apartment house properties were a strong feature of Bronx realty trading yesterday. The Reva Realty Company sold to Isaac Lowenfeld and William Prager, operators, the southwest corner of Weeks Avenue and 173d Street, known as 1,865 Weeks Avenue, a five-story new law apartment, 84x95, housing thirty-five families, with a rentroll of $18,000. The property was held at $130,000. It was a cash transaction. Charles Goldberg was the broker.

A. Phillips sold for A. Kregafield to Joseph Rosenbaum the five-story new law apartment on a plot 40 by 109, at the southwest corner of Faile and Aldus Streets, renting for about $14,000 per annum and held at $81,000.

The Isear Realty Corporation sold to Emil Stein the six-story apartment at 673-675 Morris Avenue, northwest corner of 153d Street, on a plot 50 by 100.

Emil J. Vilanyi sold to Gusse Lowe 574 Union Avenue, southeast corner of 150th Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 90.

Andrea Ribando sold to Salvatore Macaluso 910 Courtlandt Avenue, a three-story building, 27 by 127.6.

William W. Lyon sold to James G. Levine 358 East 18th Street, a three-story dwelling, 25 by 102.8.

Catharine Murphy sold to Elizabeth Brennan 2,259 Creston Avenue, a three-story dwelling on a lot 37.6 by 125.

Bronx Land-Mortgage and Real Estate Co. sold for J. M. Schumacher 2,052 Prospect Avenue.

Richard Dickson sold for Morris Rosen 1,238 Fulton Avenue, a one-family frame dwelling on a lot 15 by 100 to Vinusta Cognaci.

J. Clarence Davies sold for William Reiner the vacant plot 50 by 100 on the north side of Gleason Avenue, between White Plains Avenue and Leland Avenue, to H. Nob Moro-Lin, who will erect a residence.

Raffaleina Ferracci bought from Giuseppe Greco the two-story dwelling 2,411 Bathgate Avenue, on a lot 19.10 by 100.

The Benenson Realty Company purchased from a client of A. Phelps 1,130 Union Avenue, a four-story apartment on a plot 40 by 100.

James J. Connors sold for Mary Schult the five-story flat at 749 Jennings Street, on a plot 57 by 100 to Emanuel Podanskey.

APARTMENT DEALS.

The Brayman Is Resold to the Ricmes Realty Corporation.

The six-story apartment house, on plot 50 by 100, at 3 and 5 West Ninety-second Street, has been sold by Robert D. Blackman to the Ricmes Realty Corporation. The realty, which was valued at about $120,000, has changed hands three times within the last few months. It is known as the Brayman.

The Trinity Church Corporation sold to Lucy Madden 398 Hudson Street, near Clarkson Street, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100.

The four-story flat, 20.8 by 101.7, at 237 East Seventy-fifth Street, has been purchased by Morris Bernstein from Antonio Caltabellotta.

The Alcalde Realty Corporation sold to Abraham Kuther the five-story flat, 27 by 100.10 by irregular, at 67 East 114th Street.

The Louis H. Goldberg Company sold for Daisy I. Goldberg 333 to 337 East 124th Street to Abraham Mell, two six-story tenements with four stores, 50 by 100.11.

William Prager purchased from Livingston Phelps 89 and 91 Sixth Avenue, a six-story tenement, on plot 31.8 by 80, containing two stores.

McCotter & Davis sold 46 Sixth Avenue, a five-story apartment with stores, to Samuel Guttenberg, for investment.

TWO BIG LOANS MADE.

A Twelve and a Thirteen Story Structure Financed.

The L. & G. Realty Company has obtained through Lawrence, Blake & Jewell, from William Henry Barnum & Co., a loan of $700,000 for the erection of a thirteen-story mercantile building on the site 213-223 West Thirty-fifth Street, having a frontage of 131 feet on the street, and a depth of 98.9. The structure will be ready February 1, 1921. The annual rental is estimated at $267,500.

The same brokers recently secured from Barnum & Co. a loan of $350,000 on the southeast corner of Broad and Front Streets, containing about 5,000 square feet, for the improvement of the plot with a twelve-story office building.

Charles B. Van Valen, Inc., has placed for Thomas B. Fowler et al, a loan of $170,000 on the five-story apartment, 50 by 101, 260-262 West 125th Street.

PRIVATE HOUSES IN STRONG DEMAND

Buyers for Occupancy Prominent In Market Reflecting Interest in Widely Scattered Realty.

ACTIVITY ON WEST SIDE

Dwellings on Manhattan Avenue, 105th Street and Seventy-eighth Street Are Purchased.

Private house buyers took over a considerable number of dwellings for occupancy yesterday. In a market characterized by a growing interest in real estate of this type west side properties figured prominently.

The Merit Realty Corporation sold the three-story dwelling, 140 Manhattan Av., on a lot 17 by 70 feet, through Milton Eisman to Mrs. Williams. The purchaser will remodel and occupy.

A. Kane Company sold to clients, for occupancy, the three-story dwellings, 367 West 116th Street and 244 West 121st Street.

John R. Davidson sold for James A. Trowbridge the three-story dwelling, 28 West 105th St., on lot 16.8 by 100, to M. Cowan.

Martha N. Bayles sold to Ella G. S. Bryant the three-story dwelling, 18.9 by 102.2, at 208 West Seventy-eighth Street.

The two four-story dwellings, on lot 25 by 98.9, at 316 and 318 West Twenty-eighth Street, have been sold by Sidonia Weiss to Elizabeth Smith.

Douglas Gibbons & Co. sold for Miss Jane C. Austin 153 East Forty-sixth Street, a four-story house, 16.8 by 100.

Morris Flores sold for Sarah A. Clark the dwelling at 155 East 117th Street, 16.8 by 100.11.

James Henry sold for the estate of William F. Haradon to a client for occupancy the three-story dwelling at 319 East 123d Street, 18 by 100. This is the first sale of the property in forty-six years.

C. M. Folsom & Co. sold for John L. Tupper the three-story dwelling at 212 West 121st Street to Louis Berris. The buyer was represented by Charles Siegall.

Marcus R. Peppard of Wood, Dolson Company sold for Mrs. Elizabeth Kuhn 26 West 95th Street to Maurice Prevot.

Abraham J. Gotlieb sold to Lydia Soukup 17 West 127th Street, a three-story dwelling, 18 by 90.11.

In practically all of these transactions the buyer bought for occupancy.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

Estate Leases Sixth Avenue Dwelling for Restaurant Use.

The estate of Frederick Heimsoth leased for a term of five years from July 1, 1921, the building at 991 Sixth Avenue at an aggregate rental of $33,250. The tenants, Alexander Photos and Peter Spiros, will open a restaurant on the premises. The estate was represented by Joseph W. Heimsoth and the lessees by Joffe & Joffe.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. leased the building at 116 East Fifty-seventh Street for the United States Trust Company, as trustee, to Wolf & Berk; and the building at 65 West Forty-eighth Street for Moritz Elsner and Edoardo de Girolano; also stores at 64 West Forty-sixth Street to James W. Elliott, at 27 East Sixty-fourth Street to Murray & Young and at 507 Madison Avenue to the Knickerbocker Cleaning and Dyeing Company.

Harvey Bloomer leased for John Armstrong to the Hotel Theresa Pharmacy Company the store and basement at the southeast corner of 121st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue for a long term of years; also for the United Cigar Stores Company to Charles Blackham the corner building at St. Mark's Place and Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn. The leases aggregate a total of $125,000.

89 Maiden Lane Plans.

The National Surety Company announces that, while the Federal Reserve Bank is dismantling 89 Maiden Lane and replacing it with a seven-story stone building to be opened next May, the company's brokers' branch will take temporary offices in the Lawyers Building, 46 Maiden Lane. These temporary offices will be occupied next Tuesday. As soon as the Federal Reserve Bank's structure has been completed the National Surety Company's brokers' branch will move to the new building.

Other Manhattan Deals.

David Lion sold the four-story building at the northeast corner of Park Avenue and 108th Street, 27 by 74, to Nathan Ballac, for his business. J. H. Simpson was the broker.

Frank Lier sold to Vaclav Sloup and Frank Klein the two-story building, 25 by 102.2, at 421 East Seventy-first Street.

Buys Pleasantville Home.

The California bungalow on the Briarcliff Road, Pleasantville, belonging to David Thompson, has been sold to James R. Coon of New York City. George Howe was the broker.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The pressure is low over the Canadian Maritime Provinces and on the Pacific Coast, and it is high over all interior districts east of the Rocky Mountains. The maximum pressure is over the upper lake region and Montana. There has been a considerable fall in temperature in the last twenty-four hours in the interior of the West Gulf States, the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys. In the Middle Atlantic and New England States temperatures are now generally below the normal for this date east of the Rocky Mountains, and above the normal in the Pacific States. There have been showers within the last twenty-four hours in the Plains States, West Gulf States, Florida, North New England and West New York. Fair weather prevailed in other parts of the country.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Thursday and Friday in the States east of the Mississippi River. Moderate temperatures will prevail over the Eastern half of the country during the next two or three days.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast: North of Sandy Hook, fresh northwest, fair weather Thursday; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate to fresh northwest, fair weather Thursday; Hatteras to Florida Straits and East and West Gulf, gentle, variable, partly cloudy, with occasional showers.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

1920.	1919.		1920.	1919.
3 A. M.....67	68	4 P. M.....73		70
6 A. M.....64	68	6 P. M.....72		67
9 A. M.....66	63	9 P. M.....67		66
12 M.....69	69	11 P. M.....64		64

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 68; for the corresponding date last year it was 67; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 65; at 8 P. M. it was 68. Maximum temperature, 73 degrees at 5 P. M.; minimum, 64 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 72 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 47 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.78 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.91 inches.

TRUSTEE'S SALES.

Harold J. Ross, E. Tudor Gross and James H. Hurley, Auctioneers.
AUCTION SALE.

The undersigned, the Trustees of the Rhode Island Trolley Lines, appointed by the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, by decree entered October 17, 1914, in the suit of The United States of America, Petitioner, v. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and Others, Defendants, in Equity No. 11-301, by virtue of the authority conferred upon them as such trustees by an order entered in said cause on August 25, 1920, will sell at public auction on Friday, September 3, 1920, at ten o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time, (eleven o'clock A. M., Daylight Saving Time,) in the large court room in the Federal Building, Exchange Place, Providence, Rhode Island, the following bonds and shares of stock, subject to the prior private sale thereof in accordance with the terms of said decree of October 17, 1914, and upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, to wit:

1. 7,000 shares of the capital stock of the Seaview Railroad Company, being the entire issue of said capital stock.
2. $600,000 par value of the Five Per Cent. First Mortgage Gold Bonds of the Seaview Railroad Company, due July 1, 1948, consisting of 600 bonds of the par value of $1,000 each and being the entire issue of such bonds, with the interest coupons due January 1, 1919, and all subsequent coupons attached thereto.
3. 9,132 shares of the capital stock of the Providence and Danielson Railway Company.
4. $600,000 par value of the Five Per Cent. First and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds of the Providence and Danielson Railway Company, due May 1, 1931, consisting of 600 bonds of the par value of $1,000 each, and being the entire issue of said bonds, with the interest coupons due November 1, 1918, and all subsequent coupons attached thereto.
5. 96,885 shares of the capital stock of The Rhode Island Company, being the entire issue of said capital stock.

Said sale is upon the following terms and conditions:

Each item of stock or bonds as above enumerated will be offered as a whole and sold to the highest bidder without reserve, except as the next two paragraphs provide.

The stock of the Seaview Railroad Company will be offered for sale before the bonds of that Company are offered, and if no bid is received for the stock, the bonds will not be offered.

The stock of the Providence and Danielson Railway Company will be offered for sale before the bonds of that Company are offered, and if no bid is received for the stock the bonds will not be offered.

Each purchaser before receiving any of the said shares or bonds purchased by him will be required to make and deliver to the Trustees an affidavit in the appropriate one of the forms annexed to said decree of October 17, 1914, to the effect that in making such purchase the purchaser is not acting for or on behalf of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company or in concert, agreement or understanding with any other person, firm or corporation for the control of the corporation whose shares or bonds are purchased, in the interest of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, but in the deponent's own behalf and in good faith.

Payment must be made, twenty-five per cent. (25%) of the purchase price in cash or by certified check at the time of the sale and the balance of seventy-five per cent. (75%), at the office of G. L. & H. J. Gross, the auctioneers, in the Union Trust Company Building, Providence, in cash or by certified check on Saturday, September 4, 1920, at ten o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time, (eleven o'clock A. M. Daylight Saving Time,) upon delivery to the purchasers of the stocks or bonds purchased by them.

WIFE IS ACCUSED IN MURDER CASE

CHILD'S STORY OF MURDER

Victim's Daughter Testifies That Wade Stabbed Nott as He Fell on His Own Porch.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 1.—That Mrs. Ethel Hutchinson Nott, wife of George E. Nott, slipped a long carving knife into the hand of Elwood B. Wade, as Wade was locked in a death struggle with Nott in the hallway of the Nott house on Sunday, is the charge made by young Wade today. Wade was a prisoner in the County Court House while the murder hearing was being conducted by Coroner John J. Phelan.

A statement made to the police by Ruth, the 11-year-old daughter of the victim, furnished a sensation at the inquest. The statement told of the fight between Nott and Wade and declared that Ruth saw Wade stab her father with a carving knife.

Wade, Mrs. Nott and John E. Johnson are held on technical charges in connection with the murder of Nott, whose body was dragged from a swamp in Easton, where it had been hidden in a trunk. As Thomas H. Flood, Assistant Superintendent of Police, repeated the story of the murder, as he said it was told him and other police officers by Wade, the accused man appeared cool. He smiled frequently and joked with the policemen guarding him.

The little girl's statement said that her mother and her father had a quarrel Sunday morning. Some time later in the morning the girl saw Elwood Wade in the kitchen. Her mother spoke of the quarrel and asked Wade not to go upstairs, but he nevertheless did so.

"In a little while I heard shooting," the child said. "Then the other man (Johnson) who was with Wade ran downstairs and ran out. Then father came downstairs. He was covered with blood. He looked at ma, and said: 'Brownie, you didn't do this.' Then father fell on the door porch. Wade said: 'I will kill him.' Ma told Wade not to touch pa any more. Then I saw Wade take a butcher knife and stab pa near the shoulder. Ma said to Wade not to touch father any more. Then I saw Wade hit father again. Father said: 'I was going to get him, but he got me.'"

The statement continued by saying that "they put the body of father in the trunk. Wade told us (the witness and her brother George, 12 years old) to play the Manola. The children did not see Wade nor Johnson after that.

3 IN CLARENDON DEATH LIST.

Another Elevator Victim Dies at Bellevue—Girl Loses Leg.

The death list in the elevator accident in the Clarendon Building, at 215 Fourth Avenue, on Tuesday was brought to three yesterday with the death in Bellevue Hospital of Simon Katz of 899 Lafayette Street, Brooklyn. All the others injured in the ten-story drop of the car are recovering, except three, whose condition is still said by surgeons to be critical. They are Dorothy Brenner of 8 West 119th Street, Mannie Shaw and William Gatoff of 215 Fourth Avenue. Miss Brenner's leg was amputated yesterday.

An investigation was begun yesterday by the District Attorney's office, with Francis P. Marro, an Assistant District Attorney, assigned to the case. Co-operating with him are two inspectors detailed by Rudolph F. Miller, Superintendent of the Building Department. Every scrap of wreckage removed from the pit is being examined carefully and photographed. Dominick Peppe, the operator of the elevator, will be called to the District Attorney's office as soon as he is released from Bellevue, where most of the sixteen injured persons were taken.

WARNS TENANTS OF FAKES.

No Profit Should Be Made in Co-operative Schemes, Says White.

A warning to the public that in many fake co-operative housing projects the promoter is a heavy gainer, while in others the tenant owners are organized to make a profit off other tenants, was contained in a statement issued yesterday by C. R. White, Director of the Bureau of Co-operative Associations, of the Division of Food and Markets. He said that the State Bureau of Co-operative Associations at Albany, with a branch at 90 West Broadway, was ready to furnish advice and assistance free of charge to any one desiring to incorporate under the State Co-operative law.

An example of real co-operation was pointed out by Mr. White in the case of a group of people in Brooklyn who organized three years ago and erected apartments housing thirty-two families. These tenants are today paying $26 rent a month for a modern five-room apartment, and out of the rent they are paying off what remains of their loans at the rate of $1,000 a year. Similar apartments in the same neighborhood cannot be had at less than $70 a month.

Victims of gouging landlords are asked to appear at 11 A. M. today at the conference called by the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing at the City Hall and to submit their facts to the committee.

SUICIDE IN PASTOR'S HOME.

Woman Writer Kills Herself on Last Day of Lease.

Despondency is given by the police as the cause for the suicide yesterday of Mrs. Katherine C. Myers, a rug designer and magazine writer, in an apartment at 432 West 120th Street. Her body was found by the Rev. Dr. Jabez T. Sunderland, pastor of the Unitarian Church, Lafayette Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and his daughter Florence, who sublet their apartment to Mrs. Myers two months ago, when they went on their vacation.

Dr. Sunderland detected gas when he entered the apartment and then discovered the body of Mrs. Myers, clad in a pink kimono, in a chair. Tenants in the house said they last saw Mrs. Myers on Tuesday night.

Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, found letters addressed to Mrs. Myers from her husband, who signed himself "One Hundred Per Cent. Henry." In one of them it was written: "It seems you and I can get along better alone."

In a handbag the police found $30 and a ring set with two large diamonds. There also was a bank book showing a balance of $544.

Duff Firm Not in Liquidation.

Jay Robinson Duff, broker, who filed an answer in the Supreme Court on Tuesday in a suit by the Trust Company of New Jersey, of which his father-in-law, General William C. Heppenheimer, is President, to recover $12,500 on a note signed by Duff and members of his firm of Duff, Freiday & Co., said yesterday that his answer stated inadvertently that because of the calling of a loan to the brokers by the trust company the firm was forced to liquidate. Mr. Duff said that the firm is still doing business and is not involved in the litigation.

CHELSEA PIER STRIKE ENDED

Longshoremen Return to Work on the Liner Baltic.

The strike of the longshoremen on the Chelsea piers, which was started by women pickets last Saturday as a protest against British action in Irish affairs, ended last night when the men started to work on the White Star liner Baltic. The Italian and Austrian longshoremen on Pier 61 had worked all day on the Red Star liner Zeeland, which flies the British flag, and the Italians had been loading the vessels with coal all the week. If the Baltic had not been discharged she would have taken her cargo back to Liverpool on Saturday, Sept. 4, and the longshoremen would have lost the money they would have otherwise earned on the ship.

The Irish women pickets walked up and down Eleventh Avenue yesterday carrying their banners but no interest was taken in their movements by the Italian longshoremen.

The Anchor liner Calabria sailed at noon for Piraeus and the Cunarder Mauretania will sail at noon today for Cherbourg and Southampton.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The longshoremen who quit work on the Leyland liner Nitonian yesterday as a protest against England's attitude toward Ireland continued their strike today, notwithstanding that officials of their union said the action was unauthorized and illegal.

Women pickets paraded, carrying placards which said "Boycott all British ships until MacSwiney and Mannix are free."

The strikers received accessions during the noon hour. Thirty-five of the 100 men working on the British freighter Anglo-Mexican did not return to work, and twenty-five of the crew of 110 handling the cargo of the Leyland liner Caledonian joined the strikers. The places of the sixty original strikers will be filled tomorrow, the agent of the line announced.

Boy Shot by Policeman Dies.

Peter Brennan, 17 years old, of 238 West Nineteenth Street, who was shot in the right side early Tuesday by Patrolman Giuseppe Triello of the West Twentieth Street station and later taken a prisoner, charged with grand larceny, to the New York Hospital, died last night. Brennan, with two other boys, according to Patrolman Triello, was caught stealing a valise from an express wagon which was passing through West Sixteenth Street.

"Yes—It's Rachmaninoff, You Couldn't Mistake Him"

"ONE evening early this spring my wife and I stayed in town to attend a recital by Rachmaninoff. I had long been an admirer of his compositions but had never heard the great Russian play. It was a revelation—the power and individuality of the man were expressed through his masterly interpretation so amazingly that you felt as if you knew him intimately. In his playing, as in his compositions, Rachmaninoff expresses his own rich nature.

"So impressed were we by the beauty of the recital that we again realized the need for music in our own home, both for ourselves and for the children. The following afternoon we stopped in the Knabe Warerooms to select a piano for the children's lessons—we had determined to have music of some sort in our home.

"Suddenly, from a little distance, I heard the Rachmaninoff Prelude—played exactly as I had heard it from the hands of the master! Quietly walking to the next room I looked in and found a great Knabe Grand. It was playing alone—not a hand touched it! Then it dawned on me that here was a new instrument such as I had never dreamed possible. Not the ordinary player piano, but a wonderful instrument that reproduced the playing of great pianists exactly as they had recorded it.

"Here were form and fullness and personality in every bar. Golden melody, sparkling with genius came from the bewitched instrument. It had something to say to me that no disc or record had ever said. There were air, earth, water and fire in the music. It was life—genius incarnate.

"And it is this reproducing piano—the Ampico—that has made a new place of my home. My wife and children are delighted with it. And to me, left to myself these lonely summer evenings, it is a comfort and pleasure beyond words. I know that now you have heard the Ampico you will not be long without one in your own home. To you, as to us, Ampico will mean musical perfection."

You are cordially invited to hear this wonderful instrument reproduce the playing of great pianists in the Ampico Studios.
